U. S. TARIFF BOARD VIRTUALLY RUINED BY THE PRESIDENT, COSTIGAN CHARGES

Witness Recommends That Commission Report Direct to Congress, Not to Chief Executive.

TELLS OF PARTISAN INFLUENCE AT WORK

Describes and Classifies Colleagues in Concluding Testimony Before Senate Investigators.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Edward P. Costigan, a member of the United States Tariff Commission, in concluding his testimony today before the special Senate committee investigating that body, placed directly on President Coolidge the responsibility for the present failure of the commission to function in the judicial manner intended by Congress.

"The troubles in the commission," said the witness, "have occurred largely since the passage of the Forney-McCumber tariff act of 1922. They are directly traceable to the use of the appointive power by the White House and to the reluctance of the majority of the commission, springing in part from the reluctance of the President to deal with the tariff judicially."

Commission Not Wholly to Blame.

"The commission faces the charge of having abused the trust committed to it by Congress, but the circumstances surrounding this abuse are not wholly confined to the commission."

"President Harding both strengthened and weakened the commission. He strengthened it by broadening its powers, and weakened it by his appointments. Next President Coolidge this highly significant experiment, which American public opinion almost unanimously demanded, has been ill but destroyed."

Costigan declared that if no other relief could be had from an intolerable condition, Congress should perform a drastic "surgical operation" on the commission. Withdrawal of its appropriations because of its breakdown as a judicial, fact-finding body would be notice that Congress intended to "insist on the dignity and supremacy of organized government, on fidelity to official duties, and on true value of American institutions."

Costigan Makes Suggestions.

He believed, however, that it would be practicable for Congress to compel the commission "to return to its former custom of rigorously excluding consideration of special interests from its deliberations." With this end in view, he made a number of constructive suggestions.

At the end of Costigan's statement, which had consumed part of six days, the investigating committee adjourned till a week after next, when it is expected that William S. Culbertson, a former tariff commissioner, will be the first witness. Culbertson who is minister to Rumania, is now on his way here in response to a summons from the committee.

In leading up to his plain-spoken criticism of President Coolidge, Costigan had told of the appointment of "tariff lobbyists" (Commissioners Marvin and Burgess) by Harding, of Coolidge's support of Commissioner Glassie in the latter's refusal to withdraw from the sugar case, in which he had an admitted personal interest, of Coolidge's effort to delay the submission of the embarrassing sugar report, recommending a reduction of the sugar tariff, till after the campaign of 1924, of Coolidge's reconstruction of the commission to give it a clear high-tariff majority, and of numerous other incidents in the gradual destruction of the commission's judicial character.

Glassie Almost Always Wrong.

Costigan today drew vivid word pictures of some of his present colleagues on the commission. He described Glassie, a Harding appointee, as a pleasant and courteous gentleman, an "abler lawyer than his record on the commission would indicate," and a man with a "sylogistic mind," not so much concerned with the soundness of his premises and conclusion as with the correct technical statement of his syllogism. He said Glassie was interesting and

WAVE DROWNS THREE YOUTHS

Dashed from Rock on Fishing Trip in Sonoma County, California.

By the Associated Press.

SANTA ROSA, Cal., May 1.—Three San Francisco youths, all from prominent families, were drowned today while fishing off a rock in the ocean near Wright's Beach, Sonoma County. They were Jack Davidson, 21-year-old stepson of Timothy Healy, attorney; George Boschke, 19, son of George W. Boschke, chief engineer of the Southern Pacific and Ted Barrett, 19, son of Charles Barrett, and official of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

High waves washed the youths into the ocean.

SENTENCED FOR TONIC SALE

Jail Terms Suspended and Indianans Will Appeal.

By the Associated Press.

GARY, Ind., May 1.—George Diamantakos, local merchant, arrested several weeks ago for selling malt extract beer that the Government had announced could be dispensed for tonic purposes, was found guilty today of violating the Indiana bone dry law and was sentenced to 60 days imprisonment and fined $180. The sentence was suspended.

Paul Ramos, a clerk employed in the store, also was found guilty and given a similar sentence, which was suspended. Both men announced they would appeal to the Indiana Supreme Court.

Expect to Raise Submarine S-51.

By the Associated Press.

NEW LONDON, Conn., May 1.—Taking full advantage of the first favorable weather since the latest attempt to raise the submarine S-51, was begun a week ago, navy divers today succeeded in lowering the second pontoon to the bottom and fastening both to the hull of the submersible. After eight pontoons are attached and filled with compressed air, it is expected the S-51 will be raised.

$189,000 COST OF LIQUIDATING TWO WRECKED BANKS

Settlement of Night and Day Failure Has Cost $136,068 to Date, or 8 3-10 Per Cent of Claims.

$55,000 FEE SHARED BY CASE & MILLER

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 1. — Expenses of liquidating the wrecked Night and Day Bank of St. Louis, since it closed Jan. 6, 1922, have totaled $136,068, or 8 3-10 per cent of the $1,607,036 paid thus far to depositors on $2,600,000 in claims, according to a report filed with the State Finance Department today by Charles N. Gilles, special deputy finance commissioner in charge of the bank.

One of the principal items in the expenditures, all paid from the assets of the failed bank, is $55,000 in attorney's fees paid to Thomas E. Francis and the law firm of Case and Miller of St. Louis, special counsel in liquidation of the bank. The firm of Case and Miller included Mayor Victor J. Miller of St. Louis and Clarence Case. Since the time of these services Miller has resigned from the firm.

Other items in the Night and Day report included $36,758 in miscellaneous office expenses during the four years and three months the liquidation has been in progress, and $41,590 in salaries paid persons employed in the liquidation, aside from the attorneys.

Gilles also submitted a report on expenses thus far in liquidation of the defunct Chippewa Bank of St. Louis, for the period from the closing of the bank on Dec. 20, 1923, to Dec. 31, last. It shows a total of $53,642 in expenses.

Depositors of the Chippewa Bank have been paid $1,815,070, or 75 per cent of approximately $2,450,000 in claims. The Chippewa expenses thus far are about three per cent of the payments to depositors. Expenses of the Chippewa liquidation include $25,000 in legal fees paid to Francis, as special counsel in the liquidation. Other items are $20,300 in salaries and about $8000 in miscellaneous expenses.

Gilles receives a salary of $350 a month as liquidating officer of the Chippewa Bank and $150 a month as liquidating officer of the Night and Day Bank.

Court O. K'd Legal Fees.

The $80,000 in legal fees paid thus far special counsel in liquidation of the two banks was authorized in orders issued by St. Louis Circuit Court. The special attorneys were appointed by former State Finance Commissioner Frank C. Millspaugh, who was removed from office in March, 1925, by Gov. Baker, during an investigation of the conduct of his department.

Finance Commissioner C. E. French has declined to approve fees paid to special attorneys in bank cases, taking the position the attorneys would have to present their claims to Circuit Court without a recommendation by the department.

END OF ACADEMY OF MUSIC

Historic New York Theater Gives Way to Office Building.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The old Academy of Music will close its doors for the last time tomorrow night. The theater, built in 1856 at a cost of $335,000, with seats for 4600, must yield its site at Fourteenth street and Irving Place, to the 24-story office building of the Consolidated Gas Co.

The theater began its career 74 years ago with a fanfare of grand opera. It closes it with a flicker of film. The last notable legitimate production was the "Hamlet" of E. H. Sothern in June, 1910.

Premier Curbs Enthusiasts Who Would Name Streets After Him.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, May 1.—Premier Mussolini, a Cabinet action today indicated, prefers to have history judge the durability of his name rather than his enthusiastic contemporaries.

The Cabinet has recommended that Fascists refrain from renaming stretes, towns and associations after the Premier and other living notable persons. The restoration of previous names has been ordered in all recent renamings.

DEFIES SMALLPOX TO WED MAN IN NOVEL CEREMONY

Preacher Bawls Question From Safe Distance From Pair on Pest House Porch.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CORNING, Ia., May 1.—They were to have had a romantic honeymoon; instead they are spending it in a pest house.

Miss Esther Lund of Red Oak and Russell Noland of Corning became engaged some months ago and since that time their days have been full of plans. The wedding date was set. Then the doctor came again, hustled Noland off to an improvised quarantine. He fumigated the Noland home and segregated the prospective newlyweds' home with a big red sign—"smallpox."

Miss Lund found herself outside, but that did not stop her. She collected her parents, license and a pastor and advanced on the pest house. The patient was well enough to come out on the porch and with the couple holding hands on the veranda the relatives lined up 50 feet away and the minister bawling out the marriage service at the top of his voice, they were married.

"Do you take this man to be your lawfully wedded husband," yelled the preacher, sending the familiar words booming down the driveway.

"I do," cried back the bride.

Friends 50 feet away were in no doubt but that she meant it. And then the pastor bellowed, "I pronounce you man and wife."

"HOME" THE MOST BEAUTIFUL WORD, SAYS CHAUNCEY DEPEW

Birthdays Do Not Die, They Accumulate, He Thinks at 92; Life Worth the Living.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The most beautiful word in the language is "home," Chauncey M. Depew, 92 years old, told members of the Montauk Club at the thirty-fifth annual birthday dinner given him by the organization last night. His address sounded the sentiment that life is worth the living.

"Birthdays do not die, they accumulate," he said. "If we are wise we remember only the people and events which have added to our happiness and the happiness we have been able to distribute and share with others. As the package grows, it becomes more precious, and is a perpetual reminder that life is worth living."

"The most beautiful word in our language is 'home.' I remember a wonderful gathering in London to hear Patti sing. It was late in her life and few of her notes could be heard. A great lady sitting near me expressed the hope that the singer 'won't bore us as she always does with "Home Sweet Home" as an encore.' The encore came, and it was 'Home Sweet Home.' The great lady burst into tears and begged Patti to sing it again."

THIRD WOMAN IN RACE FOR TEXAS GOVERNORSHIP A WET

"Prohibition a Failure," Declares Latest Contestant for Mrs. Ferguson's Seat.

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., May 1.—Voicing her disapproval of the prohibition laws, Mrs. K. M. Johnson of San Antonio, today made formal announcement of her candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the Governorship. She seeks to succeed Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, whose office also is sought by Mrs. Edith Wilmans of Dallas, and by several men.

Mrs. Johnson, formerly operator of hotels in North Texas and now owner of a ranch in Mexico, declared she had never used intoxicants, but was opposed to prohibition because it had proved "an utter failure."

"Prohibition has been making drunkards, invalids and imbeciles of the boys and girls of our country, almost yet in their infancy," she said.

AMENDMENT TO CONFINE SENATE DEBATE TO PENDING SUBJECT

Jones of Washington to Propose Change in Rules Directed at the Filibusters.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Another blow was struck today at Senate filibusters.

Senator Jones of Washington, the Republican whip, gave notice that he would propose to amend the rules to require Senators to speak to the subject before the Senate.

Such a rule would be in line with changes suggested by Vice President Dawes in his campaign to prevent delaying tactics and would put an end to an ancient custom of Senators reading articles from newspapers, magazines or other publications to delay action on a measure.

The change suggested by Senator Jones is similar to amendments to the rules previously introduced. These are before Rules Committee, which has failed to meet this session.

TEST TRIP SHOWS UPPER RIVER CAN HANDLE BARGES

Towboat and Four Craft Which Left St. Louis Nine Days Ago Nose to Dock at St. Paul.

REGULAR SERVICE TO START IN SPRING

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 1.—A towboat and four barges, which left St. Louis nine days ago nosed to dock in St. Paul tonight with a convincing answer to an old conundrum and an important one.

Can the upper Mississippi River be used to carry freight; is there a channel that will ride boats steadily through the 675 miles between the mouth of the Missouri and the head of navigation? Can the boats carry enough freight at one time to earn money for themselves while yieldihg shippers a substantial saving?

The answer is that a fleet of boats to carry freight at lower than rail rates, with regular sailings each six days from the Twin cities and St. Louis will be started next April 1. The Mississippi will become an arm of the sea from its mouth to the falls of St. Anthony.

Such confidence arises out of the experimental trip now completed of the Inland Waterways Corporation, the Government agency set up to foster the development of river shipping, which began in St. Louis on April 22 when the Government towboat, Wynoka, left Market street dock in St. Louis, pushing northward five barges loaded to represent 1200 tons of freight. The Wynoka paddled forever astern the illusion that the Mississippi in its upper reaches was dew in the morning and sandbars at night. In some respects it is a better freight-carrying stream than the lower Mississippi.

Gen. Ashburn Aboard.

Aboard the Wynoka were Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, chief of the Inland Waterways Corporation, who wanted to observe for himself the freight-carrying qualities of the river. He announced as the boat was approaching its destination that if $600,000 is not enough to create a fleet which can give dependable, regular six-day service, that he would furnish from a revolving fund at his disposal the further money required.

Another passenger was Irving Cox of New York, who has designed river steamers for the principal large rivers of the world. He said that a towboat having both power enough to breast the swiftest reaches of the river and draft light enough to ride the shallowest crossings was possible. His answer to the problem is a 150-foot stern-wheel towboat drawing only 3½ feet of water, yet holding 600 horsepower.

T. R. Tarn of Pittsburg, consulting naval architect, concluded that a 120-ton, double-deck barge for both bulk and package freight, could carry 250 tons at four-foot draft and 500 tons when the river is high. The river has four feet at all seasons. Five such barges would make a tow compact enough to be maneuvered in the narrow stretches of the river. This much freight at $4 a ton, a saving of $1 a ton to the shipper, would compensate the line, Gen. Ashburn estimated.

Triumphal Entry Spoiled.

So the fleet will be this type, with three towboats and 15 barges to start and more as rapidly as the freight justifies.

A triumphal entry to the Twin Cities was marred within 17 miles of the journey's end. For 660 miles the Wynoka plowed up the river without the pilot sounding slow speed signal once. An estimated schedule of three miles an hour was exceeded for hours at a time. In some stretches the towboat averaged as high as five miles an hour.

For years the Twin Cities have fretted for revival of the river. They chafed and stormed when a barge fleet was placed upon the lower river out of St. Louis by the Government. Last year they changed their coaxing to demands and threats. Their business men raised $600,000 with which to build a fleet, carried it to Washington and said "there's the money to build the fleet, build it and operate it."

They carried it to the President himself, and won his interest. So

PARLEYS HELD TO STAVE OFF GENERAL STRIKE IN ENGLAND

GANG WAR TAKES NEW VICTIM AS THREE ARE BURIED

Hanger-on of Chicago Underworld Who "Knew Too Much" Taken for Ride in Taxicab and Shot

AUTHORITIES AT ODDS OVER INQUIRY

Inquest Adjourned to Await Action by State's Attorney — Witness in Jail to Escape Reprisals.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Chicago gang warfare claimed another victim today at almost the same time the bodies of the three victims of Thursday night's machine gun attack were being lowered into the grave.

The latest victim was Martin Garrity, hanger-on at a saloon whose bartender was one of three men held while the actual killers of Assistant State's Attorney William H. McSwiggin, James Doherty and Thomas Duffy were sought. Garrity was "taken for a ride" in a taxicab, shot to death and his body dumped into an alley in the "valley" district on the Southwest fringe of the city.

Police said Garrity paid gangland's price for "knowing too much."

Principal developments in the investigation today centered around Alex V. Korecek, hardware dealer, who after incessant questioning admitted he sold three machine guns to gangsters who he could identify. Korecek remained under the protection of police tonight.

Witness Fears Reprisal.

He trembled in terror when brought into court today to answer a writ of habeas corpus to release him. He said he did not desire liberty because he feared for life and that anyone who had filed the writ was no friend of his. The lawyer did not present himself and the petition was dismissed.

Meanwhile the friction hinging around investigation of the McSwiggin murder increased.

The Coroner's jury of six prominent business men announced the inquest had been postponed until Tuesday, the day after that set for the calling of a special grand jury with Robert E. Crowe, the State's Attorney, as the officer in charge of the presentation of evidence.

Oscar Wolff, the Coroner, said the inquest was postoned because of the illness of John J. Healy, former State's Attorney, who had been requested to serve as the Coroner's personal counsel during the inquiry.

Healy Reported Out of Inquiry.

From other quarters it was understood, however, that Healy had declined to serve because he felt that his participation might give the inquest a political tinge. He is a law associate of Charles S. Deneen, United States Senator for Illinois, who headed a Republican faction in opposition to that led by Crowe in the recent primary.

Judge William V. Brothers, acting Chief Justice of the Criminal Court, who issued the call for the special grand jury upon petition of Crowe, with whom he is politically allied, was in conference with Coroner Wolff and the jury.

Wolff said Judge Brothers was asked about testimony he had ruled out at a recent trial. As offered by Patrick H. O'Donnell, an attorney, it was declared to be a revelation of the connection of at least 300 policemen with the notorious Genna gang of illicit liquor handlers.

Harry Eugene Kelly, head of the Nonpartisan Union League Club, maintained his contention today that the special grand jury as called by Prosecutor Crowe did "not fill the bill," and stated that the agreement of the State's Attorney-General, Oscar Carlstrom, to confer with Crowe tomorrow might tie the State officials hands.

Unusual Honors for McSwiggin.

In the last ceremonies for the victims today unsual honors were paid McSwiggin, the youthful Assistant State's Attorney, who, at the age of 26 had achieved a remarkable record for efficiency. He was buried with the highest church and full military honors. Too young

HUNTING A WAY OUT

PREMIER BALDWIN.

RIFFS DEPART WITH TERMS, FEARING WAR

Will Submit Final Offer of Spain and France to Krim—Answer by May 6.

By the Associated Press.

NEMOURS, Algeria, May 1.—Heavy-hearted and distressed, Si Mohammed Azerkane, the Riff "foreign minister," and Haddou Ben Hannou, bearing what they have found to be an unacceptable ultimatum to Emir Abd-el-Krim from France and Spain, boarded the French destroyer Senegalaise this evening. They are proceeding to the Riff on a mission which they fear can only end in war.

The conference between the French, Spanish and Riffian delegates at Oujda adjourned today and Abd-el-Krim, the Riffian chieftain, has been given until midnight May 6 to accept or reject the terms which Azerkane will lay before him.

"Our hearts are sad," the chief Riff delegate said to the Associated Press correspondent just before embarking.

"We have made no progress during these two weeks' negotiations and we are further from peace this evening than when we first met at Campe Berteaux two weeks ago tomorrow," he continued.

"We are not vanquished," declared Azerkane, "and we cannot agree to be treated as defeated armies. It now looks like war, but it has been forced upon us, and if we are to disappear from a land of free people, it will cost a price that will stagger the men who are intent upon crushing us."

Socialists and Communists Fight in Warsaw, But Quiet Prevails in Other Cities of Country.

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, Poland, May 1.—May day in Warsaw witnessed the traditional clashes between Socialists and Communists. There were frequent free fights and the casualty list in this city numbered five killed and 28 wounded.

Other Polish towns were quiet, while in the coal basin of Dombrowo labor boycotted the holiday completely.

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 1.—Edmund Pennington, chairman of the Board of Directors, and former president of the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie (Soo Line)) Railway, died from heart disease at his home here late tonight. He was 77 years old and had been critically ill for a week.

STILL SOME HOPE FOR SETTLEMENT, SAYS LABOR MAN

Trades Unions, 5,000,000 Strong, Ordered to Walk Out Tuesday If Negotiations With Miners Fail.

STATE OF EMERGENCY PROCLAIMED BY KING

Rules for Fuel Rationing Issued — Troops Dispatched to Trouble Zones for Precaution.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 2 (Sunday.)—The meeting between the Cabinet Ministers and the negotiating committee of the Trades Union Congress ended at 1:30 o'clock this (Sunday) morning.

J. H. Thomas, secretary of the Railwaymen's Union, announced there was still hope that further negotiations on the strike situation would take place later in the day. The Royal Commissioner's report on the coal industry, he said, was issued in March, but not a single proposition came from the mine owners or the Government until noon yesterday.

Thomas said later that Premier Baldwin had invited the committee to explain the letter which the Trades Union Congress had sent to him during last evening.

"A long discussion took place," Thomas said, "and it was found necessary that further explanations should be given. This was done.

"The matter is, therefore, adjourned with hope that further negotiations will be held today (Sunday)."

Complete Paralysis in Prospect.

Complete paralysis of industry is a prospect this week unless before Tuesday some agreement is reached for settling the coal strike which began Friday.

One million miners are affected by the strike; they will be backed, if the strike continues, by 5,000,000 workers belonging to 202 trades unions. The representatives of these unions decided yesterday to put all their strength behind the miners, for the issue is characterized by labor as no longer one between the mine owners and the miners, but as affecting all labor.

A proclamation by the King which gives the Government almost unlimited powers and establishes a "state of emergency," which, while not so far-reaching as the proclamation of martial law, permits the authorities to use all the resources of the state to guard the nation's vital interests.

Troops Sent to Mine Areas.

Already, as a precautionary measure dispositions of troops have been made in the coal mining areas of South Wales, Lancashire and Scotland. The Organization for the Maintenance of Supplies is prepared to join with the Government in hundreds of centers throughout the country in maintaining essential services, while there are indications that the Government itself is making ready to take over the control of coal, both in the mines and aboard ships.

Yet, in the midst of the gloom of a possible general strike, there is a ray of hope, for late last night a committee from the Trades Union Congress resumed negotiations with Premier Baldwin and his ministers at Downing Street.

The labor men left the premier's residence shortly before midnight, and it was understood they had gone to confer with the miners' executive and might return later.

Ready to Parley for Miners.

A conference of the Trades Union Congress yesterday afternoon went thoroughly into the question at issue, and late last night a communique was issued from the prime minister's office announcing that the council of the congress had written to the premier informing him that the miners had entrusted

DAVID M. PROCTOR IN G. O. P. SENATE CAMPAIGN AS DRY

Kansas City Lawyer and Former State Senator to Stress Liquor Issue in His Contest.

NO BIG DEMAND FOR CANDIDACY, HE SAYS

Declares Against Any Compact or Treaty That Would Impair Sovereignty of the U. S.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, May 1.—Active opposition to the nomination of United States Senator Williams as the Republican candidate to succeed himself developed today with the announcement of David M. Proctor, Kansas City lawyer and former State Senator, that he would seek the nomination.

Proctor will run as a "dry." Senator Williams has not stated his position on the Eighteenth amendment or on amendment of the Volstead act. The only other announced Republican candidate is former Congressman Atkeson of Butler, also a dry.

The Proctor Platform.

He expressed the opinion that the prohibition issue would overshadow all others in the campaign, and announced his platform to be:

"In the contest between the opposing forces over prohibition, you can classify me as a dry. I will observe a solemn oath to support the Constitution of the United States and all the amendments thereto, including the eighteenth. I will not vote for any legislation that will whittle away or weaken the eighteenth amendment, either in letter or in spirit.

"I favor strict law enforcement. To demonstrate the virtue of a good law, enforce it. To expose the defects of a bad law, enforce it.

For Farm Relief.

"Adequate, long-time credits at reasonable rates for the farming industry; and a comprehensive plan for advantageous marketing of excess products of the farm.

"Adequate appropriations for making the Mississippi, Missouri and their principal tributaries navigable.

"Strict governmental economy in support of President Coolidge in his relentless efforts to cut the cost of government.

"Federal appropriations for making and marking transcontinental highways which may be used as arteries of comerce in times of peace and military roads in time of war.

"Repeal of all obsolete, overlapping and conflicting Federal laws.

"I will oppose further encroachments of the Federal Government on the province of functions that belong to the states.

"I will not vote for any compact or treaty that will surrender or impair the independent sovereignty of the United States or that will enmesh this country in the political entanglements of any foreign power or powers."

POLICE HAVE LITTLE FAITH IN "DILLY PLANT" BULBS

So Woman Who Was Selling Them Is Booked for Blocking the Sidewalk.

Pretty flowers exhibited in a goldfish bowl by a woman peddler in a doorway at 914 Locust street were sweet peas and watercress, stuck in a "bulb" which was weighted with shot, two traffic policemen found upon inspecting them yesterday.

They took the woman who was selling curiously shaped bulbs of the "imported dilly plant" for 10 cents each, to Central District, where she said she was Mary Smith, 35, and had no home. She was booked for blocking the sidewalk and peddling without a license. She was carrying $106.

To a reporter she said her real name was Mrs. Mary McKean and she was staying at the St. Francis Hotel. She explained that she had a license and that the fake bulbs were some she had prepared for exhibition in lieu of the real product of the bulbs she was selling. Why didn't she grow the real ones? she was asked.

"I travel," she replied, "and they won't grow in a closed jar. I tried it. What would I look like, getting on a train with a goldfish bowl full of lillies under my arm?"

CHILD HURT BY AUTO TAKEN TO DOCTOR BY DRIVER OF CAR

Boy, 6, With Skull Injured and Fractured Leg, Later Removed to a Hospital.

Albert Alberici, 6 years old, son of Steve Alberici, of 6215 Page boulevard, suffered a possible skull fracture and a fracture of the left leg yesterday when he was struck by an automobile driven by G. S. Remer of St. Charles.

Remer was driving east in Page boulevard, when the boy ran into the street near his home. Remer took the boy for emergency treatment to Dr. J. A. Konselman, 6122 Page boulevard, who sent him to St. Mary's Hospital.

Together 50 Years, Woman, 74, Scrubbed Office Floors to Support Invalid.

Lizzie Kuhlenbeck, who is 74 years old, and her "little sister," Mary, 73, have at last accepted the city's care. Yesterday afternoon they were taken to City Hospital from their littered little rooms at 1447A North Fifteenth street. At the hospital they did not give her a "black bottle" which would cause her death, as Mary, who doesn't understand things very well, had feared. Instead, she was given a bed and plenty of food.

Until last Tuesday, Lizzie, who is only five feet tall and weighs less than a hundred pounds, had for a half century washed clothes and scrubbed office floors to support her paralytic sister, fulfilling the promise made her dying father when she was 24. Tuesday Lizzie was unable to move from bed, and she told Mary she feared she was going to die. Mary answered by saying she would commit suicide, either by setting fire to their rooms or by jumping from the second-story porch, and would keep her company.

Stayed Inside Room.

This talk was overheard by their neighbor, Mrs. George Wellenkamp, when she brought them some warm milk to the door. Only to the door, for never in the four years since they moved their belongings into the rooms, wheeling them in a baby carriage, had they allowed anyone inside.

Mrs. Wellenkamp went to the adjoining building at 1502 Cass avenue, and informed Dr. O. L. Wolter, the landlord, who never has asked for rent from the sisters, and who supplies them with coal and food, and often with money. Dr. Wolter felt that they would be better off in the hospital, and called an ambulance. Now Mary thought that they were going to take Lizzie away from her. When Lizzie told the ambulance attendant to wait a moment until she found her crucifix, Mary walked to the porch with the aid of a kitchen chair, which she pushed in front of her and attempted to jump over the rail. They rescued her in time to grab her. She was placed on a stretcher and carried downstairs. Lizzie thought then that she was to be the one left behind, and she started for the railing. But she also was held and the sisters were driven to the hospital.

Worked for Fifty Years.

"We got along all right for 50 years," she told a reporter, "but times are hard now and everybody insists on doing their own washing. I guess I was eating the wrong kind of food. But I'll be all right soon and then I am going to take my little sister home. I promised my father I would take care of her, and I have done it. We'll get along if I can just get my father's pension—he was in the Civil War. For some reason or other we don't get it, and it amounts to $500."

Charitable organizations have offered them help several times, but as long as Lizzie was well and working these offers were refused.

Guardian for Lady Houston.

JERSEY, CHANNEL ISLANDS, May 1.—Lady Houston, widow of Sir Robert Houston, noted shipbuilder, who died April 14, leaving a fortune estimated at £7,000,000 ($35,000,000) has been found "incapable mentally and physically of taking care of herself or her fortune." A guardian will be appointed to look after Lady Houston and her estate. Sir Robert left his widow the bulk of his fortune.

COOLIDGE SIGNS PENSION INCREASE OF $19,000,000

Waited Until Last Day in Order to Arrange Financing of Spanish War Veterans' Measure.

WARNS OF DANGER OF HIGHER TAXES

Action "Not to Be Taken as Encouraging Other Large Continuing Appropriations."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—President Coolidge late today signed the bill to increase pensions of Spanish war veterans and their dependents nearly $19,000,000 annually. Under this measure some classes will receive a maximum of $50 a month.

At the same time, in a formal statement, he said his approval was not to be taken "as an encouragement to further laws for large continuing appropriations." He gave a warning that it might be necessary to inerease taxes if Governmental expenditures were greatly increased.

Although he had been of the opinion the increased outlay would raise the expected deficit for the coming fiscal year to approximately $40,000,000 Mr. Coolidge said savings undoubtedly could be devised to absorb the increase carried in the bill. In his statement, the President said:

"According to the best estimates that can be secured, the results of the present financial year, which ends June 30, will show a moderate surplus. This can be used to meet moderate expenditures that are not continuing in their nature and require but one appropriation. For the next fiscal year present indications show a deficit of a little over $21,000,000. When the requirements of the Spanish War pension bill of nearly $19,000,000 are added, that deficit becomes $40,000,000.

"This bill calls for continuing appropriations, once it becomes law, and each budget must be made with a recommendation for sufficient funds to pay these additional pensions. If it were in the nature of a law for building and construction work, when the budgets are made up in the future the state of the finances could be considered. If the money were not available, such building and construction would be delayed until there are funds in the treasury. Such laws are on a different basis than laws for pensions.

Meeting the New Expense.

"It has been necessary to consult the treasury. I understand that means, in all probability, can be devised by savings in other directions to meet this moderate additional expenditures."

AUTO RUNS DOWN PEDESTRIAN

Man Severely Injured at Deer Street and Easton Avenue.

Ferdinand Brennan, 30 years old, a concrete worker, of 4266 Edgewood street, Pine Lawn, suffered concussion of the brain, a lacerated scalp and posibly a fracture of the skull at 9:10 o'clock last night, when he was struck by an automobile at Deer street and Easton avenue.

The machine was driven by Frank D. Blackford, 40, of 8670 Burton avenue, St. Louis County, who said, on his arrest, that Brennan stepped from the curb into the path of his car. At city hospital Brennan's condition was said to be serious.

CALLES' DAUGHTER UP IN AIR

Enrolls for Course of Flying at Roosevelt Field, L. I.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Senorita Ernestine E. Calles, 19-year-old daughter of President Calles of Mexico, made her first flight in an airplane today preparatory to beginning a course in flying next week. Her completion of the course, however, is conditional upon the answer she receives when she wires her father of her action tomorrow.

Senorita Calles, accompanied by a large party, went to Roosevelt Field on Long Island and enrolled for the course under Capt. Roscoe Turner, who immediately took her for a ride in a transport plane.

BOY, 8, INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE

Russell Peppers Suffers Fracture of Collarbone.

Russell Peppers, 8 years old, was knocked down near his home at 4227 Castleman avenue at 7:30 o'clock last night by an automobile driven by Roy C. Koch, 23, of 4051A Russell boulevard. The boy suffered a fracture of the collarbone and possibly a fracture of the skull.

Infected Carbuncle Fatal.

James E. Mulvey, 34 years old, 4755A Washington boulevard, died Friday following a week's illness caused by an infected carbuncle. Interment will be Monday at Sandwich, Mass., whence Mulvey, a veteran of the World War, came to St. Louis six months ago. He is survived by his widow, his mother and a sister.

Charges Coolidge Wrecked Tariff Board

Of Commissioner Baldwin, a recent Coolidge appointee, Costigan said that he had never heard him make a constructive suggestion.

"At the meetings of the commission," added the witness, "Mr. Baldwin, for the most part, says nothing and when he does speak it is generally to say that he feels appalled at the problems confronting the commission."

Commissioner Broussard, who, at the instance of Senator Smoot (Rep.) of Utah, was promoted from the staff of the commission to a place at the top, was said by the witness to "have a settled policy not indistinguishable from a certain immaturity of approach."

Calls Broussard a Partisan.

Broussard, he continued, brought to the work of the commission "an essentially partisan mind," was invariably allied in its decisions with Chairman Marvin. Since becoming a commissioner Broussard had shown great zeal in getting places on the staff for residents of his home State of Utah.

The witness cited, as an example, the appointment of one of Broussard's former classmates to a $4800 job, one of the best positions at the disposal of the commission.

This man was named at the "insistent urging of his close personal friend," Costigan added that in comparison with the salaries of other staff members, Broussard's protege was being greatly overpaid.

Senator David A. Reed (Rep.) of Pennsylvania, who showed a disposition to defend Broussard, read the commissioner's academic record and suggested smilingly that it would indicate his invulnerability to "the seductive fascinations of Senator Smoot."

Costigan had high praise, in general for the technical experts of the Commission, but he added that the partisanship which had been injected into the commission was reflected in the attitude of the staff toward problems that ought to be considered on a wholly scientific basis. He said that one of the ablest men on the staff confessed to him, about a year ago, that he had been acting as a partisan.

All of Them Doing It.

The excuse was that other members of the staff were doing likewise.

After unburdening himself, the employe told Costigan that he had undergone a change of heart and would thereafter make his reports purely scientific.

Answering a question by Reed, the witness said that the attitude of the present majority of the Commission (Marvin, Glassie, Broussard and Baldwin) was "dictated by an undue regard for special interests rather than the public interest."

Costigan denied that either he or his two former associates of the opposition group (Culbertson and Lewis) had been influenced in any of their findings by partisan considerations.

Costigan pointed out that no investigation of woven fabrics of wools had ever been started, although the experts of the textile division recommended one last year on the ground that the duties on the products were plainly higher than necessary to cover the difference in manufacturing costs here and abroad.

Reluctant to Investigate.

"This," he commented, "is another illustration of the reluctance of the present majority of the commission to press certain investigations."

Costigan had previously testified that Chairman Marvin, before appointment to the commission by President Harding, was a lobbyist at Washington for textile interests.

The witness reviewed and threw new light on the taximeter case, incidentally bringing Senator Reed of Pennsylvania into the picture as an assiduous go-getter for some of his constituents.

Makers of taximeters, it appeared, asked the commission to go into the question of production costs with a view to recommending a change in the tariff under the flexible section of the Fordney-McCumber law.

Costigan, who at that time was virtually a lone wolf on the commission, opposed snap judgment, saying that all the data in the possession of the commission were obsolete and it ought to take the time to bring the cost figures down to date.

Senator Urged Action on Case.

Senator Reed wrote repeatedly to the commission, urging action. In one letter he referred to his "Pittsburg friends" who were interested in the case.

Reed asked the witness to recall that he merely urged action in the matter, and not an increase in the taximeter tariff rate. Costigan agreed that this was so.

Despite the inadequacy of their data, Costigan said, the majority of the commission, some of whom had never participated in the investigation at all, went ahead and wrote a report recommending an increase in the duty.

When Costigan, in a dissent, challenged the right of members to pass upon a case into which they had not inquired, the majority of his colleagues were highly indignant, saying that he had accused them of "moral delinquency." Marvin, he said, objected to the submission of the minority report to the President. Costigan insisted and finally won his point.

Decrease Really an Increase.

The form of the taximeter increases recommended by the majority of the Commission and proclaimed by the President is interesting. A duty of 45 per cent of the foreign valuation, plus $3 per taximeter, was changed by the President to 27 per cent of the American valuation, plus $3 per meter This on its face looks like a decrease.

But, as Costigan explained to the investigators, the change from foreign valuation to American valuation as the basis of the ad valorem rate meant an actual increase in the tariff of about 128 per cent.

Costigan also, as an instance of the inconsistency which has marked the administration of the flerible tariff section, pointed out that the majority report on taximeters excluded transportation costs as a factor in production costs, although the wheat cases had established a contrary precedent. This change in the method of computing had the effect of boosting the tariff rate beyond what it would have been if the rule in the wheat case which later was approved by the Attorney-General had been followed.

Silent About Halibut Case.

In deference to a request from the Secretary of State, the witness refrained from discussing the halibut case.

A letter from Secretary of State Kellogg to Chairman Robinson indicated that the American tariff on halibut had become an issue of some consequence between this Government and Canada.

In further illustration of the reluctance of the present Commission to take any steps toward a tariff reduction, the witness said that the report in the butter case, on which the President himself had requested prompt action, was not sent in for a year and a half after the start of the investigation.

Meantime, Costigan said, conditions had been utterly changed by the fact that Canada had supplanted Denmark as the principal competitor of the United States. The butter report, moreover, figured production costs in a way that excluded 50 per cent of the butter produced commercially in the United States.

The testimony again revealed the personal animosities in the Commission. While the Attorney-General was passing on the controversy over transportation costs, Costigan wrote him a letter calling attention to a secret discussion that bore upon the issue. Glassie thereupon charged Costigan with having abused his privilege as a commissioner.

Paid No Attention to Glassie.

"I dismissed this absurd suggestion," said the witness, "and told Mr. Glassie that I did not care to be lectured on ethics by a commissioner who had insisted on sitting in his own case."

Reed asked the witness whether, if he had the power to make over the Tariff Comission, he would drop Marvin, Baldwin, Brousseau and Glassie from membership.

"A different standard of public service than these gentlemen had been representing should be set up," Costigan replied.

Reed caught at a remark by Costigan that the President was ill equipped to carry out the duties imposed on him by the flexible tariff provision. It seemed to Reed that the President had executed these duties "with singular fidelity."

Costigan replied by telling about the linseed oil case, in which the President held the report of the commission for a year and then returned it. The President, he added, passed the report for review to Secretaries Hoover and Jardine.

Not Meant for Cabinet Review.

"It is my judgment," he said, "that Congress never intended that reports from the Tariff Commission should be reviewed by any person other than the President. I have never said that the conduct of the President was reprehensible, but I do not think that essentially judicial reports should be subjected to political review by any member of the Cabinet, however talented."

Reed inferentially criticised the witness for going to the late Senator La Follette in the summer of 1924 in an effort to blast the sugar report out of the commission. Costigan defended his course. He was only interested, he said, in seeing that the purposes of Congress in creating the commission were carried out.

"Young Bob" La Follette, a member of the committee, came warmly to Costigan's aid. With a note of pride in his voice the young Senator brought out the fact that the campaign to block the submission of the report to the President ceased immediately after his father's challenging statement on sugar.

What Culbertson Will Face.

Further question by Senator Reed indicated the line to be taken by administration defenders in quizzing former Commissioner Culbertson.

Reed will seek to show that so far from having been "kicked upstairs," Culbertson, from the beginning of the Coolidge regime, was an active applicant for a foreign diplomatic post.

In his constructive suggestions at the close of his testimony Costigan said that "in view of the demonstrated breakdown of judicial presidential rate-making under the flexible provisions of the tariff act" there should be a prompt termination of the relationship between the President and the commission.

"The modern President's willingness, if not obligation, to function at times as a party chief," he said, "would appear to disqualify the President to act as an impartial tariff judge. To continue the flexible tariff system in its present form tends, therefore, to discredit the President."

Would Let Congress Decide.

It would be desirable, he said, to have the commission report to Congress instead of the President. He suggested that Congress might give a rate-making power to the commission, subject always to veto by a joint resolution, but with the express stipulation that in the absence of such veto the rates fixed by the commission would be effective.

"By such provisions of law," he said, "the authority of Congress over tariff-making and tariff changes would be undisputed, and at the same time the scientific services of which a properly constituted Tariff Commission is capable might be preserved.

"The controversies which have been engendered in the relatively short life of the Tariff Commission are not of a trivial or inconsequential sort. They represent nothing less than another decisive struggle between the forces which have often contended for and against the growing participation of science in government."

Urged Disinterested Agency.

"We are dealing with a statesmanlike endeavor to build upon a foundation of immovable rock a disinterested and trustworthy administrative agency, which may eventually do for the spoils system of tariff legislation what the Interstate Commerce Commission has done for the spoils system of unregulated railroad rates, and the civil service commission for the spoils system of political appointments."

EVIDENCE OF $43,000 GRAFT FOR DRY AGENTS

U. S. Attorney to Submit Memoranda Found on Liquor Ship to Grand Jury.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Evidence of $43,000 in graft paid prohibition agents and policemen by the largest rum ship ever captured here will be laid before the Federal grand jury next week.

United States District Attorney Buckner determined on this action today after studying memoranda found on the vessel and hearing the stories of Customs Guards who captured the Eker with $1,200,000 worth of raw alcohol below decks in special tanks.

The books found aboard the vessel, from which the captain and three officers escaped, also disclosed the name of a member of the Dwyer liquor ring who now is under indictment in connection with other activities of the ring that controlled a large part of the bootlegging business.

TEN INDICTED FOR FRAUD

Former Oklahoma Congressman Named in Indiana Affairs Charge.

MUSKOGEE, Ok., May 1.—T. A. Chandler of Tulsa, former Congressman from the First Oklahoma district, was indicted by the Federal grand jury here investigating Indian affairs, it was disclosed tonight. He appeared before the United States Commissioner at Tulsa today and furnished bond of $5000.

Nine other men indicted at the same time, including Shade E. Wallen, suspended superintendent of the Five Civilized Tribes, gave similar bonds here and at Vinita. The indictments have not been made public but they are understood to deal with the operations of a small land company at Vinita, Ok. Conspiracy to defraud the Government is the technical charge.

HELD UP, ROBBED, KIDNAPED

Janez Sieber of 6149 Waterman avenue, reported to the police that as he was about to park his machine in front of 5569 Maple avenue last night, two men approached, drew revolvers, jumped upon the running board and commanded him to drive west.

They took $4 from him and at Leona avenue, in St. Louis County, forced him from the machine and drove away.

JUDGE ENGLISH IN WASHINGTON

Will Appear in Senate tomorrow to Answer Impeachment Charges.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Judge George Washington English of East St. Louis arrived here to appear before the bar of the Senate at 12:30 p. m. Monday to plead to the impeachment charges instituted against him by the House of Representatives.

His counsel previously announced that he would plead guilty and stand trial for his political life.

The Judge was accompanied by one of his counsel, E. C. Ryan of East St. Louis.

Date for the trial will be set next week, Judge English being allowed to file an answer to the articles of impeachment and the House managers given time to reply.

U. S. DIPLOMAT TO DENMARK FOUND DEAD IN APARTMENT

Oliver Harriman Was Engaged to Marry Miss Helen V. Michell of Philadelphia.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, May 1.—Oliver Harriman, first secretary of the United States legation in Copenhagen, was found dead in his apartment today.

He was to have been transferred to Warsaw next month.

After a preliminary examination physicians reported that Mr. Harriman's death was due to heart disease.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Oliver Harriman was born in New York city in 1887 and his home was in Romney, W. Va. He was graduated from Harvard, and served as private secretary to the ambassador to Chile before he was admitted to the foreign service in 1915. He had served in Vienna, Havana, Mexico City, Montevideo and London.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—Miss Oliver Harriman, found dead in her room at Copenhagen, was engaged to Miss Helen V. Michell of this city. The engagement was announced last October, the wedding having been set for Dec. 16, but a week before that date it was postponed. Mrs. Michell today refused to discuss rumors that the engagement had been broken. Miss Michell saw Harriman off at Berengaria Dec. 9.

Harriman had been appointed Chairge d'Affaires since Minister John D. Prince went to Belgium April 3.

He was a son of J. Lowe Harriman, now living in Washington, and a nephew of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, prominent in the Democratic Women's National Democratic Club.

BALLOON RACE WON THIRD TIME BY VAN ORMAN

In "Goodyear IV" He Traveled to Petersburg, Va., 780 Miles From Starting Point at Little Rock, Ark.

LANDED FOR FEAR OF DRIFTING TO SEA

"Akron N. A. A." Flying 570 Miles and S-23 567 Miles Are Apparently Second and Third.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 1.—All contestants in the Litchfield Trophy and national elimination balloon race have landed, with Ward T. Van Orman, pilot of the "Goodyear IV," the winner for the third year in succession. The last balloon to land was the United States Army balloon S-23, at Mount Holly, N. C., a small town eight miles west of Charlotte.

The "Akron, NAA," which traveled 570 miles, apparently finished second and the Army S-23, from Scott Field, Ill., which covered 567 miles, third. The first three to finish will take part in the international balloon race at Antwerp. It will probably be necessary to await the formal announcement from Washington of examination of the instruments of the balloonists to determine which of three balloons win second and third places.

The S-23, last to land, hovered over the historic battlefields of the American revolution most of today before landing. She was reported by persons who believed her to be the S-20 at 10 a. m. Eastern time at Shelby. At 11:15 a. m. she passed over the famous Kings Mountain battlefield, traveling to the Southeast. An hour later she was reported over Gastonia in the same county, and only a few miles from Mount Holly, where she was brought down.

Lieut. William A. Gray, pilot of the United States army balloon S-20, tonight wired R. E. Steubner, a friend here, from Hitchens, Ky., that he had hit some trees in the Eastern Kentucky Mountains last night. Apparently Lieut. Gray had been unable to reach a telegraph wire, as his message was filed at 2:27 o'clock tonight. Gray did not mention the damage done to the balloon or whether his aid, Lieut. Kieburtz, had been injured, but said that he ruined his clothing and injured his back in landing. Hitchens is in Carter County Kentucky, 167 miles from Little Rock.

Records of Balloons.

These balloons landed today:

Goodyear IV, near Petersburg, Va., at 2 a. m., 780 miles from starting point; Ward T. Van Orman, pilot; Walter H. Morton, aid.

Army S-23, at Mount Holly, N. C., at 1:30 p. m., 567 miles; Capt. Hawthorne C. Gray, pilot; Lieut. Douglas Johnston, aid.

These balloons landed yesterday:

Detroit Aderaft, at Knob Lick, Ky., at 5 p. m., 520 miles; Svend U. A. Rasmussen, pilot; Edward J. Hill, aid.

Akron N. A. A., near Welch, W. Va., at 7:30 p. m., 570 miles; John A. Boettner, pilot; Herbert W. Maxson, aid.

Army S-21, near Hickory, N. C., at 6:00 p. m., 560 miles; Lieut. James Powell, pilot; Lieut. G. F. Early, aid.

Goodyear Southern California, near Brodhead, Ky., at 11:00 a. m., 435 miles; Walter A. Ham, pilot; Robert P. Lehr, aid.

Army S-19, in Lee County, Kentucky, 475 miles; Capt. Lawrence Stone, pilot; Capt. Guy R. Oatman, aid.

Detroit, in Pike County, Kentucky, at 2:00 p. m., 530 miles; Herbert von Thaden, pilot; Charles D. Williams, aid.

Army S-20, near Hitchens, Ky., 467 miles; Lieut. William A. Gray, pilot; Lieut. Roland Kieburiz, aid.

Feared Being Carried Out to Sea.

The Goodyear IV traveled 815 miles and was in the air 31 hours and 43 minutes. It landed at 2 a. m. today.

Fear of being carried out over the Atlantic Ocean caused it to wind, Pilot Van Orman, declared. He said he was fired on more than a score of times while passing over the mountains of Arkansas, Kentucky, West Virginia and Virginia, and that his bag was not hit.

The "Goodyear Southern California" apparently was the first of the contestants to drop out. Walter A. Ham and Robert P. Lehr of Los Angeles, in charge of the balloon, telegraphed the Associated Press that they had landed near Brodhead, Ky., about 100 miles southeast of Louisville, at 11 a. m. yesterday. They said persons on the ground were shooting at them with rifles.

All of the contesting balloons as well as the "Skylark," the balloon, exceeded the American record of 305 miles for balloons in the fourth category, which includes those of 35,000 cubic feet capacity filled with hydrogen. The "Skylark" was of 20,000-foot capacity and set a new record for the small category. The previous record was slightly more than 160 miles in an unofficial flight.

EXPLORER'S AIRPLANE LANDED DESPITE ICE

Commander Byrd Cheered by Rival Ship as He Takes Polar Flyer Ashore.

By RUSSELL D. OWEN,
Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

Copyright, 1926, by the New York Times Co. and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

KING'S BAY, Spitzbergen, May 1.—Commander Byrd's airplane has been landed safely ashore after a hazardous trip through the ice floes. Against the advice of everybody ashore, including the ice pilots, who feared the small boats would be crushed, Commander Byrd determined to take advantage of a beautiful day, and with characteristic daring forced his way to the shore of Spitzbergen, from which his plane, named the Josephine Ford, will rise for a dash to the pole.

Commander Byrd stood in the prow of the pontoon carrying the plane during the trip ashore, directing the rowers on each side like the crew of a Roman galley or an old ship of the Vikings. Isak Isaksen, ice pilot, nicknamed the "Viking," stood at the bow, shoving huge cakes of ice aside. He is a man built like a grizzly bear. Those not needed for rowing fended the ice off with boathooks and slowly and steadily the pontoon was forced through the white field of ice blocks, many five or six feet high.

"I felt like Washington crossing the Delaware," said Byrd, laughing.

Still Waiting for the Norge.

Work was immediately begun to get the motors ashore and installed in the plane. The Americans' success in overcoming conditions with which they were not familiar aroused the admiration of the villagers.

The actual presence of the plane ashore makes the situation take the character of a race between Byrd and Amundsen, although Amundsen smilingly says there is no possible conflict between them and it does not matter which is first. But there is an unmistakable feeling of rivalry, although the Norge is not yet here. The mooring mast is completed and the Norge probably will come next week.

LATE SPRING RETARDS CROPS

Ill-Effects to Be Felt Until Late In Summer, Says Report.

WASHINGTON, May 1—The late spring has delayed farm work, retarded the growth of crops and placed agriculture under a handicap that will be felt well into the summer, the Department of Agriculture said today in a statement. Wheat, cotton and hay were reported to have been especially affected.

Fairly good progress was made in planting spring wheat, said the statement, but growth has been slow. Cotton planting was declared to be behind and much replanting required in the early Gulf sections. It also was regarded as probable that the corn acreage would be no larger than last year, if as large.

Republicans in Texas Split.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., May 1.—Representative Harry M. Wurzbach, only Republican member of Congress from Texas, will be opposed for renomination by the Creager-Nolte faction of the Republican state organization, with which he has been at odds over patronage matters. Fred E. Knetsch, of Senguin, Wurzbach's home town, today announced his candidacy after a caucus attended by R. B. Creager, Republican National Committeeman.

the coming of the Wynoka had created public excitement. Minneapolis has not heard a steamboat whistle in 25 years. It had arranged for the Governor of Minnesota, the city's Mayor, representatives of industrial and civic bodies to be at the dock when the tow moved in. Bands were to play and whistles all over the city were to shriek at a signal which was to be given at the first glimpse of the tow.

So Gen. Ashburn planned a real thrill. He organized a parade of boats at Prescott, Wis. The stern wheel boat of the engineer corps, the General Allen, was sent to lead the way. Then came Wynoka and her tow and bringing up the rear was the stern wheeler, the Dandelion, of the Government Lighthouse Service.

Bottom Comes to Top.

The parade was moving majestically up the river just before dark, when the bottom of the river came to the top: Minnesota is experiencing a drouth. Wisconsin streams had provided a seasonable stage of water to the mouth of St. Croix. But above, water was at the level it reaches only rarely. The Wynokas tow 500 feet long struck a bar. The current drove the barges high on the sand. It required the combined efforts of the three tow boats 12 hours to free the barges. Three miles further up the water became more shallow and the Wynoka grounded. She had reached her farthest north.

She was unhooked and the lighter draft General Allen substituted for her. It was necessary also to drop off the barge carrying oil. The delay ruined the program at Minneapolis, which included also a jubilation dinner and a tour of the city for the General's party.

It is now expected that the tow will reach Minneapolis sometime today, when a portion of the program will be carried out.

Jubilant Over Channel.

Gen. Ashburn said at St. Paul that the channel of the upper river had exceeded his expectations.

"There is not the slightest doubt that this river can be navigated regularly with proper boats," he said. "We will undertake to supply the proper boats that will go at all seasons and all stages. I predict a seven-months' service. It is a better river than the lower river in many respects. The channel changes rarely, while in the lower river it will shift over night.

"There will be plenty of freight. Minnesota sends millions of bushels of small grains to the Southeast through Memphis each year. We will handle that. The State sent out 25,000 carloads of potatoes, chiefly South, last year. We will get that. I predict success for this line from the start."

Piles Can Be Cured Without Surgery

An instructive book has been published by Dr. A. S. McCleary, the noted rectal specialist of Excelsior Springs, Mo. This book tells how sufferers from Piles can be quickly and easily cured without the use of knife, scissors, "hot" iron, electricity or any other cutting or burning method, without confinement to bed and no hospital bills to pay. The method has been a success for twenty-six years and in more than twelve thousand cases. The book is sent postpaid free to persons afflicted with piles or other rectal troubles who clip this item, and mail it with name and address to Dr. McCleary, 566 St. Louis Av., Excelsior Springs, Mo.

LONDON PHOTO PRINTED IN U. S. DAY OF TAKING

New York World Receives It With Strike Story—Letter Sent to Wales.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 1.—While readers of The New York World were seeing today for the first time on record a news photograph filed simultaneously with a cable dispatch of a London event, the miners' strike, the trans-Atlantic Radio Photo circuit, opened midnight Friday, continued to fill the ether with its stuttering song of dots and dashes, transformed in London and New York to automatic pen-drawn fac-similes of the original pictures, early 4000 miles away.

The duplex circuit, working both East and West at the same time, was kept in continuous service.

At the time of going to press a second radio photo of Lord Cecil had been received by the The World from its London bureau, and three others, illustrating the news of today in the English capital, were on the way.

These last three were the 13, 14 and 15 in order of tranmission from London. Six radio photos had been sent from New York to London.

The first of these was a letter to the Prince of Wales, signed by Harold Bolster, managing director of the Radio Exhibition Corporation, inviting the Prince to open the radio show here next September 10 by wireless.

A complete fac-simile of the typewritten letter was received in London and delivered to the Prince.

Reception time varied greatly during the first 24 hours. Pictures took as long as an hour and forty-five minutes, and short as 27 minutes. Engineers of the Radio Corporation of America, who handle arrangements on this side of the Atlantic, said the time could be cut down to about 20 minutes a picture eventually. The standard size is 2¼ by 4¼, which unit costs $50. The size is not limited for transmission, this unit merely serving to determine cost of full size desired.

COOLIDGE SAYS NATION BUILDS ON FAMILY LIFE

There Is No Substitute for Home Influence and Religious Training He Tells Boy Scouts.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—"Parents cannot shift their responsibility. It they fail to exercise proper control, nobody else can do it for them," said President Coolidge here tonight in addressing the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America. He said the Boy Scout movement "can never be a success as a substitute, but only as an ally of strict parental control and family life under religious influences."

Reminding his audience that much talk is heard of "the decline in the influence of religion, of the loosening of the home ties, of the lack of discipline—all tending to break down reverence and respect for the laws of God and man," the President continued:

"Such thought as I have been able to give to the subject and such observations as have come within my experience have convinced me that there is no substitute for the influences of the home and of religion. These take hold of the innermost nature of the individual and play a very dominant part in the formation of personality and character.

"This most necessary and most valuable service has to be performed by the parents, or it is not performed at all. It is the root of the family life. Nothing else can ever take its place. These duties can be performed by foster parents with partial success, but any attempt on the part of the government to function in these directions breaks down almost entirely.

Praises Scout Organization.

"The more I have studied the Boy Scout movement, its inception, purposes, organization, and principles, the more I have been impressed. Not only is it based on the fundamental rules of right thinking and acting, but it seems to embrace in its code almost every virtue needed in the personal and social life of mankind. It is a wonderful instrument for good.

"If every boy in the United States between the ages of 12 and 17 could be placed under the wholesome influences of the Scout program and should live up to the Scout oath and rules, we would hear fewer pessimistic words as to the future of our nation."

Recognizing the training the Boy Scout and kindred movements give for community life, Mr. Coolidge expressed the opinion that it had been "necessary for society to discard some of its old individualistic tendencies and promote a larger liberty and a more abundant life by co-operative effort."

"This theory," he said, "has been developed under the principles of the division of labor, but the division of labor fails completely if any one of the divisions ceases to function.

Co-operation in the World's Work.

"It is well that boys should learn that lesson at an early age. Very soon they will be engaged in carrying on the work of the world. Some will enter the field of transportation, some of banking, some of industry, some of agriculture; some will be in the public service, in the police department, in the fire department, in the Postoffice Department, in the health department.

"The public welfare, success, and prosperity of the Nation will depend upon the proper co-ordination of all these various efforts and upon each loyally performing the service undertaken. It will no longer do for those who have assumed the obligation to society of carrying on these different functions to say that as a body they are absolutely free and independent and responsible to no one but themselves.

"The public interest is greater than the interest of any one of these groups, and it is absolutely necessary that this interest be made supreme. But there is just as great a necessity on the part of the public to see that each of these groups is justly treated. Otherwise, government and society will be thrown into chaos. Oh each one of us rests a moral obligation to do our share of the world's work. We have no right to refuse."

Officer Elected.

The Boy Scouts Council elected Walter W. Head, Omaha, Neb., president, succeeding Milton A. McRae, Detroit. The following were chosen members of the council's Executive Board: John T. Wallace, Des Moines; Daniel A. Tobin, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Charles E. Cotting of Boston.

President Coolidge was reelected honorary president and four honorary vice presidents were reelected. They are Chief Justice Taft, William G. McAdoo, Colin H. Livingstone and Daniel Carter Beard.

Dan Beard was reelected national Scout Commissioner and Schiff reelected International Commissioner. George D. Pratt was continued as treasurer.

Earthquake Risk Found A Nation-Wide Problem

First Meeting of Eastern Section of Seismological Society Gathers Data on Study of This Phenomenon.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Earthquakes are being pursued and studied more intensively now than at any time before in the history of the United States. This is evident from the data presented before the Eastern section of the Seismological Society of America, which held its first meeting here today. Heretofore interest in seismology has been largely centered on the Pacific Coast where relatively recent earthquakes have aroused scientific and public interest. The formation of an eastern section of the earthquake society is evidence of the growing appreciation that earthquake risk exists in all parts of the country, and is a nation-wide problem.

How seismological observatories record the tremors and thus learn what parts of the country have small, hardly noticeable earthquakes as well as great shocks bringing disaster was told in papers by Prof. Bailey Willis of Stanford University, Father James B. MacElwane of the Jesuit Seismological Association, Col. E. Lester Jones of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, and Ernest A. Hodgson of the Dominion Observatory, Ottawa, Canada. Announcement was made of a world-wide net of reporting stations, that through the co-operation of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, the Jesuit Seismological Association and Science Service makes possible the location of an earthquake almost before the shaking stops.

Earthquake Insurance.

How insurance companies are recognizing earthquake risk and placing the writing of earthquake insurance on a scientific basis was explained to the seismologists by Prof. Charles Brown of Brown University. Dr. Hollis Godfrey, president of the Engineer-Economics Foundation explained the public health aspect of the emergencies that may be created by a disastrous earthquake.

The Montana earthquake of last year, while causing little property damage and no loss of life, ranks as one of the major earthquakes of this country, J. T. Pardee has concluded after intensive study. He said that other portions of the same region were under stress and that conditions would sometime be ripe for another shock in that general locality.

The place in this country that has the least contrast in summer and winter temperature has been discovered by B. M. Varney of the United States Weather Bureau, and he reported it today to the Meteorological Society of America, meeting here. It is Point Reyes, Cal., just north of San Francisco, where the difference between the average monthly temperatures of the warmest and coldest month of the year is only seven degrees. The whole Pacific Coast from Santa Barbara, Cal., to the mouth of the Columbia River would be suited to those who hate to change the weight and warmth of their clothes for in this area the difference in temperature during the year is not more than 15 degrees. Pembina, N. D., near the Canadian border, is the plac eof greatest contrast, for there the monthly averages differ 70.6 degrees.

Forest Fire Weather.

The weather man can now tell the days when forest fires are likely. When the humidity of the air is low there is great fire risk and the United States Weather Bureau is planning to perfect its methods and service so that eventually radio warnings will be issued on such days. When the humidity is lower than 25 per cent extraordinary precautions should be taken. The worst fire season occurred in the spring just before the trees come out in leaf, but the autumn, after the leaves are shed, is a close second.

Ocean temperatures, particularly those of the gulf stream, were declared by Dr. Charles F. Brooks of Clark University to be one of the important factors in controlling seasonal weather conditions in Eastern United States. Investigations now in progress under his direction may give new and useful information for use in predictions.

TWO KILLED BY FILM BLAST

Boy, 14, and Sister, 3, Fatally Burned Showing Movie.

ORANGE, N. J., May 1.—Louis Lelong, 14 years old, and his sister, Mary, 3, of South Orange, died in Memorial Hospital tonight of burns suffered when a motion picture film exploded as it was being exhibited to a group of children by the boy.

The spectators dashed out of the basement when the film was shown and said nothing to the injured youngsters' parents about the accident. The injured children were not found until some time afterward.

ST. LOUIS-IN-COLOR CONTEST WINNERS

Three Take Prizes in Post-Dispatch Art Competition; 124 Canvases Entered.

Prize winners in the first annual St. Louis-in-Color competition of the Post-Dispatch were announced last night at a dinner of the Artists' Guild, at the guild house, Union boulevard and Enright avenue.

F. C. Carpenter was awarded first prize, $250, for his painting, "A Street Scene," O. E. Berninghaus, second prize, $150, for his "Forest Park," and Fred Conway, third prize, $100, for his "Westminster and Kingshighway."

The prize winners were selected from 124 canvases which have been on display at the guild for the past two weeks. The jury of awards consisted of Herman Wessel of Cincinnati, Clifton Wheeler of Indianapolis, John Patrick of Kansas City, and C. H. Dahlgreen of Oak Park. They viewed the paintings yesterday and were guests at a dinner, at which George S. Johns presided.

The paintings will remain on view at the guild through May.

The funerals for James J. Doherty, gangster and saloon man, and Thomas Duffy, saloonkeeper, killed with McSwiggin, were less ostentatious.

Al (Scarface) Caponi, reputed underworld ruler of Cicero, the adjoining West Side suburb in which the three men were slain, and Myles and "Klondike" O'Donnell, brothers, and reputed leaders of a faction disputing for the Capone control, are the outstanding names on the police list of those sought for the triple killing.

The O'Donnells were believed to have been with McSwiggin. Doherty and Duffy, and possibly to have been wounded.

Two Armed Men Rob Grocery.

Two armed men last night entered the grocery store of George Wellmuenster, 1700 College avenue, East St. Louis, taking from the cash register $137 in cash and $154 in checks, and from an employe $10 in cash. Customers in the store at the time were not molested. The men drove off in Wellmuenster's car, parked in front of the store, after taking the keys from the owner's pocket. Police recovered the machine 8 blocks away.

JUGO-SLAV TERMS ABOUT CLEAR U. S. WAR LOANS SLATE

Belgrade Negotiators Agree to Settle With Total of $95,177,150 Over a Period of 62 Years.

TREATY TO CONGRESS BEFORE IT ADJOURNS

More Than $200,000,000 of Debts Remain Unfunded, but There Isn't Much Hope of Getting It.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The United States Debt Funding Commission virtually cleaned up its work on the $10,000,000,000 World War loans with the conclusion today of negotiations ofr a settlement of Jugo-Slavia's debt of $51,000,000. Jugo-Slavia agreed to pay a total of $95,177,150, principal and interest, over a period of 62 years. Payments will be $200,000 annually for the first five years, increasing to $375,000 annually for the last 50 years. Interest charges for the first 12 years will be foregone, but thereafter the rate will increase to a maximum of 3 1-3 per cent.

The settlement was signed for Jugo-Slavia by Dr. George Diouritch.

The administration plans to have the settlement considered by Congress along with the recent French settlement, with a view to obtaining ratification at this session.

Only a little more than $200,000,000 of the total war debts remains unfunded. The American Commission, however, has little hope of concluding early agreements with Russia and several smaller nations which have not come to terms.

MOTHER AND SON SEPARATED 30 YEARS MAY BE REUNITED

St. Louis Woman Thinks Illinoisan Hunting Parents Was Boy She Put in Orphanage.

After 30 years of separation, it appeared yesterday that Alonzo Taylor of Bloomington, Ill., would be reunited with his family, who placed him in a St. Louis orphanage in 1896.

Taylor wrote of his search for his parents to Chief of Police Gerk. The story was published and Friday night Mrs. Sarah Taylor, 2709 Bacon street, who read it, appeared at police headquarters and said she was convinced Taylor was her son. She sent a telegram and a special delivery letter to him.

In his letter to Chief Gerk, Taylor told of a search extending over 15 years whereln his efforts had included an appeal to President Wilson. He said he had been taken from the orphanage by a family in Illinois a few months after he was left there, and had begun the search when he learned who his true parents were.

Mrs. Taylor's daughter, Mrs. Jane Dean, resides with her. A son, Thomas E. Taylor, lives at 2569 Warren street. The father died before Alonzo Taylor was placed in the orphanage.

U. S. Loans and Sum to Be Paid

WASHINGTON, May 1.

FOR the first time since the United States began sending billions of dollars across the Atlantic nine years ago, Treasury officials today were able to give a clear statement of what the Government may expect in the way of return from these loans during the next half century. Of the advanced $10,528,480,186, the Treasury now has promises that will bring in approximately $22,143,539,492 during the next 62 years. This amount is slightly more than the total national debt of the United States. The incomes this year from foreign debt settlements is reckoned at about $209,716,000.

FINDS NO CAUSE FOR CONCERN OVER CARNEGIE TECH CHARGES

Dr. Thomas S. Baker Reports on Testimony Given by Dr. Samuel Harden Church.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 1.—Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology, today declared there was no ground for concern over testimony given by Dr. Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, before the Senate Prohibition Committee, in which Church told of drinking among students.

"Dr. Church, as chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, is not in touch with the student body," said Dr. Baker, "and he has stated that his testimony should be regarded as a generalization which does not apply specifically to students at this institution."

Dr. Baker said he had made a thorough study of the situation before making a report to the committee of trustees. Carnegie Institute, of which Church is president, is the governing body for all Carnegie endowments.

BIOLOGISTS IN ILLINOIS HILLS

HARRISBURG, Ill., May 1.—One hundred scientists and biologists gathered here to attend the nineteenth annual meeting of the Illinois State Academy of Science, left Harrisburg this morning in automobiles to tour the Ozark mountains in Saline, Hardin and Pope counties. Part of the delegation also visited the world's largest fluorspar mines at Rosiclaire.

Suspended by a single silk fiber, a delicate compass needle in the physics laboratory at the University of Illinois gave some surprising results during the recent solar eclipse at Sumatra Charles T. Knipp of the university physics department told the scientists. The university was asked to test the variation of the declination of the compass during the solar eclipse of June 8, 1918, and Jan. 24, 1925, because it lay about midway between the two paths of totality. Observations showed quite conclusively, said Knipp, that the declination is affected by a solar eclipse, even at a distance from the path of totality. The university was about 400 miles from the path of the total eclipse in each instance.

Freight traffic interchanged through the St. Louis gateway for April shows an increase of 20,488 loaded cars, or 10 per cent more than the traffic record for the same month last year. The total was 219,246 cars, while in the same period last year there were but 198,758.

ITALIANS HOLD BOSTON MAN INCOMMUNICADO

Neither Family Nor Attorney Permitted to See John Adams Abbott.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

ROME, May 2.—Up to a late hour tonight John Adams Abbott, scion of a prominent Boston family who is in the Regina Coeli prison, charged with having beaten a Vatican guide and insulted Premier Mussolini, had been allowed to see neither his mother nor lawyer. He sent them no message today.

Abbott's lawyer holds out a hope of getting a permit to visit his client tomorrow, but he has no definite assurance that he will be able to do so.

The American Express Co., for whom Astrologo, the guide works, declares that he is a quiet man, that the evening after his fight with Abbott in the Vatican Gardens he proceeded to the young American's hotel to explain. Officials of the company do not say, however, why he took two friends armed with canes with him.

Conflicting Stories.

According to Astrologo, Abbott attacked him and his companions without warning, but the hotel staff tell a different story. Employes there declare that Astrologo had been seen to enter and would have been turned away had not Abbott insisted on seeing him.

Astrologo insists that he visited the hotel because, as he was with other Americans when the incident occurred in the gardens, he feared the American Express Co. would dismiss him. He argues that a row with an American was the last thing in the world he desired. He said:

"As it is, my job is practically gone because I cannot take tourists around with a broken jaw, and all the publicity this case is getting will effectually prevent other Americans from wanting me anymore.

Says He Wanted to Explain.

"I simply went to the hotel to explain, but had not even time to open my mouth when I was attacked and so heavily beaten that I was stunned for several minutes."

Abbott's mother and sister spent a restless day vainly waiting for a permit to visit him. They conferred with the lawyer several times and had a last interview with him in the evening, urging him to find some means of obtaining permission to enter the prison.

Miss Abbott declared tonight: "It appears to be the law of this country that a prisoner is isolated until everything connected with the case is examined by a special magistrate, so we just have to stand for it."

PIKE COUNTY ABOLISHES TOLL GATES AFTER 71 YEARS

Tax to Supply the $17,000 a Year Revenue Derived From 15 of Them.

LOUISIANA, Mo., May 1.—Pike County has abolished its toll gates, which have been in existence since 1855. The County Court at Bowling Green voted to do away with this obsolete, if picturesque, method of raising road funds. The 15 toll gates of the county collected about $17,000 a year in revenue.

To take the place of the toll gate levies the County Court plans to enact a special road tax assessment of from 7 to 10 cents on the $100 of valuation. Since the development of through state motor roads tourists have protested against being forced to stop to pay toll.

DENY RUSSIAN TREATY BREAKS LEAGUE RULE

Germans Say Objection to Pact by French Is Based on Misunderstanding.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 1.—German Foreign Office legal experts deny that a basis exists for the French contention that article 3 of the recently negotiated Russo-German treaty is incompatible with article 16 of the League of Nations covenant.

"The contention rests on a misunderstanding," a prominent member of the legal department said. "Article 3 obligates the contracting parties not to participate in an economic and financial boycott against the other only in two categories of cases: While both signatories are at peace, and when, despite peaceful behavior, one signatory is attacked by a third party. Should, however, one signatory be guilty of an aggressive undertaking against a third Power, the other signatory is not obliged to observe neutrality.

"This eventually alone bears on article 16 of the covenant, for League action against a State, according to that article, always depends upon that State committing a breach of the peace.

"In such event, Germany, by the terms of the treaty, has a free hand, in fact, notes appended specifically emphasize that Germany as a member of the League of Nations must in such cases loyally fulfill the obligations arising under article 16."

SCHOOL WINNERS INCLUDE ST. LOUIS, WEBSTER GROVES

Columbia High First for Second Consecutive Year in Interscholastic Meet.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 1.—Students of Columbia High School won the curricular division contests of the Twenty-third Annual Missouri Interscholastic meet for the second consecutive year today with a total of 76½ points. Webster Groves won second place with 38; McBride High School, St. Louis, third with 26 and Jefferson City fourth, with 24.

One-year scholarships in the University of Missouri were won by W. L. Anderson, Wentworth Military Academy, Lexington, in chemistry; Elizabeth Eyler, Columbia, in fourth year English; Marvin T. Law Jr., Columbia, in American history; Margaret Vollet, Rosati-Kain High, St. Louis, in fourth-year Latin; Laura Hensley, Montgomery City, in advanced algebra, and Kirby F. Thornton, Webster Groves, in physics.

Among the schools winning trophy cups in individual subjects were: Jefferson City, English; Northeast High, Kansas City, French; Central, St. Joseph, German; and Jefferson City, stenographic and clerical.

In the district typewriting championship contests, Festus High School won the novice elimination and Maryville the amateur elimination. Winifred Weatherman, Robidoux Poly, St. Joseph, won the contest for third typists.

MEETING OF WELFARE LEAGUE

Crime and Delinquency Will Be Discussed Tomorrow.

Present social conditions, particularly crime and delinquency, will be discussed at a public meeting of the Missouri Welfare League at 8:10 p. m. tomorrow in the lecture room of the Second Baptist Church.

Speakers will be Prosecuting Attorney William F. Bloebaum of St. Charles County; Charles E. Miner, executive secretary of the Missouri Association for Social Hygiene; Dr. William Nelson, director of the St. Louis Child Guidance Clinic and Miss Eloise Hafford, superintendent of the Epworth School for Girls.

YOUTH STABBED IN ROW DIES

Richard Berger, 18 years old, of 1466 Shawmut place, who was stabbed Thursday night in a row at Eighteenth and Wash street, died at City Hospital early today. At the time of the stabbing Berger's companions, three youths, who live in his neighborhood, declared the quarrel started when two other boys taunted them with being Jews.

Orville Beasley, 16, of 1123 North Eighteenth street, who admitted the stabbing but said it was accidental, declared the fight began when Berger and his companions started a quarrel with Dudley Lumpkin, 17, of 1021 North Eighteenth street, a friend of Beasley.

the council with all further negotiations in their behalf and stating that they were ready at any moment to enter into a discussion with the government. The Premier immediatey invited representatives to meet him, and George Hicks, Ben Tillett and A. Pugh then went into conference with the ministers.

A great crowd of people waited outside in Downing street and not for years had such activity been seen there on Saturday night. It is unofficially asserted that the delegates intimated to the Government that if a resumption of the negotiations were in immediate prospect, even when the general strike was due to begin, tomorrow at midnight, the threat would not be carried out. Their contention was that owing to the lateness of the mine owners' offer conveyed to them late Friday evening, there was no time left for real negotiations.

This offer was for a reduced wage on the basis of the settlement in 1921, namely, a 20 per cent increase over the standard of wages prevailing in 1914. This was conditional on an eight-hour day instead of a seven-hour day. The miners absolutely refused to accept these terms.

Laborites Call Meeting.

A special meeting of the full Labor party has been summoned for tomorrow in the House of Commons to discuss how best to support the miners in their struggle.

Although there is a prospect of a renewal of the negotiations, the trades union congress has made all possible preparations to carry out a general strike. What support the continental workers would give to such a strike is not known in detail, but the international body has voted its general support.

The strike in no way affects Ireland, either north or south.

Under the provisions of the emergency act, the Board of Trade has issued detailed instructions on methods of conserving fuel. These instructions ration the domestic consumption of coal to one hundredweight weekly for households, reduce consumption by the industries and business house to 50 per cent of normal, prohibit lights for display or advertisement and urge all possible economy in gas and electricity. Consumers must register with local authorities, as they did during the war.

The general council of the Trades Union Congress has issued a detailed memorandum regarding the trades and unions that have been called on to cease work Tuesday. It is understood that the safety men in all the coal mines throughout the country will be allowed to continue work in order to prevent damage to the mines.

The industries affected in the general strike order include: transport, railways, sea, docks, harbors, roads and railway repair shops; unions connected with maintenance of air transport and the printing trade, including the press; productive industries in iron, steel, heavy chemicals and building trades, except those on hospital work; electricity and gas, including power lines.

The council has recommended that there be no interference in the sanitary services, health, food and hospital supplies.

With no transport, most of the country, including London, bids fair to walk from tomorrow midnight. Food prices already have risen.

The strike will cost the country millions of pounds daily, and undoubtedly will cause great suffering. The American tourist trade, which is just starting with a rush, will probably be killed, officials say.

The Government has been preparing for the possibility of a future emergency and has perfected elaborate arrangements to meet the public needs for food and other necessities.

More than 200,000 private and commercial vehicles, with their drivers, are ready for distribution services. Many of them were called today to the places assigned to them.

The authorities are credited with having confidence that even if there is a general strike, their measures are sufficient to insure that the public shall not suffer from lack of food or other immediate requirements.

The Government's subsidy to enable the mine owners to pay the scale of wages which terminated at midnight resulted in an expenditure of £20,000,000 (about $97,000,000). The last national coal strike in Great Britain in 1921 cost the nation nearly £250,000,000 in direct and indirect losses. The miners refused in their negotiations with the mine owners to consent to any reduction in their pay, and the owners were as adamant in decining to continue the wages paid under the subsidy.

1000 Carpenters Go on Strike in Vancouver, B. C.

By the Associated Press.

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 1.—Carrying out their demands for a five-day week, 1000 union carpenters failed to report for work here today. Bricklayers and tilesetters also quit. All large contracts were reported tied up. Union officers say the men will return to work Monday, despite word from the employing contractors that the men who do not pledge themselves to work a 44-hour week, instead of 48, will be locked out.

BREUER NOMINATED FOR U. S. ATTORNEY

Senate Likely to Confirm Him as Curry's Successor—New Post for Phillips.

Confirmation by the Senate of the appointment of Louis H. Breuer as United States District Attorney here is expected to take place this week. Breuer's appointment was sent to the Senate yesterday by President Coolidge.

Breuer succeeds Allen Curry, resigned, and he leaves the office of Federal prohibition administrator for the St. Louis district, which embraces Missouri, Kansas and Southern Illinois. He has been in the prohibition office less than a year. It is expected in Washington and here that Alroy S. Phillips, now counsel to the prohibition administrator, will be promoted to the vacant office of administrator.

Senator Williams said to the Post-Dispatch correspondent in Washington yesterday that he had recommended Phillips to Gen. Andrews, assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement, for appointment as administrator.

The Senator said he understood that Senator Curtis of Kansas, majority floor leader, would support a candidate for the appointment if Curtis wished to name a candidate, he would have a prior claim. Williams having named Curry previously. Curtis was willing at one time to back George H. Wark, but Wark refused the office because Gen. Andrews would not establish the district headquarters in Kansas City.

Although the prohibition regulations are supposed to be free of political, Gen. Andrews usually appoints the candidate agreed upon by the Republican Senators from the district concerned.

Breuer was at his office in the Title Guaranty Building when news of his appointment as district Attorney came. He issued a brief statement in which he said that, if confirmed, it would be his purpose "to aid in enforcement of the law in accordance with the spirit and intent thereof, and to the duties of the office."

He said he had not considered the matter of appointing assistants.

Breuer, whose home is in St. Louis, was counsel for the State Public Service Commission before he was appointed to the prohibition post. Phillips is a former State Senator and was an active supporter of workmen's compensation legislation.

MAYOR TO FIGHT TO CONTROL CITY MACHINE OF G. O. P.

Decides Offensive in Primary of Aug. 3 Is Most Effective Means of Combatting the Recall.

CLARENCE T. CASE FOR CHAIRMANSHIP

His Former Law Partner Will Be Candidate in 38th Ward—Origin of Statement Praising Miller.

Mayor Miller has decided to take the offensive in a fight for control of the Republican City Committee in the primary of Aug. 3, as the most effective means of combatting the recall movement.

Recall headquarters announced yesterday that 48,827 signatures had been obtained to recall petitions, this being four-fifths of the minimum requirement of 60,456. The latter number would suffice to bring about a recall election, if all were genuine signatures of registered voters, and if the distribution by wards were such as to conform with the charter.

Clarence T. Case, recently the Mayor's law partner, is his present selection for the city committee chairmanship. Case lives in the Twenty-eighth Ward, and he would have to win a seat as committeeman from that ward before he could seek the chairmanship.

The Mayor's Ticket.

Men whom the Mayor is considering as his standard bearers in various wards, in his effort to capture committee control, are:

Third Ward, Theodore Umbright, Deputy City Marshal.

Fifth, William Batavia, Deputy Constable.

Sixth, Ernest Patillo, Negro.

Eighth, Louis Becker, incumbent.

Ninth, Richard Smart, incumbent.

Eleventh, Fred W. Pape, incumbent.

Twelfth, Joseph Metzler.

Twenty-third, John E. Johnson.

Twenty-sixth, D. A. Gillespie, incumbent.

Twenty-seventh, Henry W. Dawson.

Twenty-eighth, Clarence T. Case.

Wards in which the Mayor intends to have candidates other than the incumbents are the First, Second, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first, Twenty-fourth and probably the Twenty-fifth. In the Fourth there will be no fight, and nothing has been decided as to the Seventh or the Tenth. The Mayor said he knew of no fight in the Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth and Nineteenth Wards, which are controlled by Frank Slater, Edward E. Butler and Nat Goldstein.

Says Nobody Is Neutral.

In telling a Post-Dispatch reporter of his plans for a fight at the primary, the Mayor said:

"Nobody is going to be neutral in this recall affair. When a fellow says he is neutral, I am going to put him down in the book. He's for it.

"When it was proposed to recall Mayor Kiel, he was very much opposed to the recall. Now he says he's neutral. Chairman Becker of the committee and Senator Williams say they have no interest in the recall. I guess they're neutral, too. I am going to see that that there is no such a thing as a neutral."

Case is the Mayor's second choice for city chairman, his first purpose having been to back William R. Gilbert, also of the Twenty-eighth Ward. Gilbert and the Mayor are not now so close as they were formerly.

Says Mayor Compelled Printing of Statement Praising Him.

In a statement yesterday, John J. Heil, chairman of the Miller Recall Committee, declared that Nathan Wolff, publisher of the program for a boxing meet of the Coliseum Athletic Association, at the Coliseum, April 22, was forced to publish a statement lauding Mayor Miller's support of sports.

The program carried this statement: "The Coliseum Athletic Association has endeavored during the past year to give the people of this city clean and entertaining boxing exhibitions. We are proud of the record we have made and wish it to be known by all lovers of the manly art of self-defense that these exhibitions could not have been held in the City of St. Louis if it had not been for the support and assistance of Mayor Victor J. Miller, who is a devotee of clean sports of all sorts."

Explanation by Brod.

Director Brod told the Post-Dispatch yesterday that someone in the Mayor's office—he believed it was the Mayor's secretary—had prepared the statement, which the Mayor asked him to have published. Accompanied by his subordiate, John Hoffman, chief building inspector, and by Alderman Kralemann, chairman of the City Boxing Commission, the director related, he went to see Eugene Straus, matchmaker of the Coliseum Club, at the National Gymnasium.

Straus said he would be glad to have the statement published, the director went on, and sent for Wolff, who declared it was too late, and there would be an extra cost to have it printed. Director Brod said he would be glad to pay that expense, but quoted Straus as replying that Straus had an advertisement to be published, too, and said there was time for both things. It was the director's recollection that Straus said there would be no fight if the statement was not published for the Mayor. Director Brod denied threatening to stop the fight.

AUTOS CLASSED AS DEADLY WEAPONS IN NEW RULING

Warrants Sworn for Two East St. Louis Motorists, Who Hit Pedestrians, Charge Assault.

Two East St. Louis motorists, who injured pedestrians in recent auto accidents, are charged with assault with a deadly weapon in warrants issued Friday. A recent ruling of the Illinois Appellate Court held that a deadly weapon charge is justified if the driver is so reckless as to display a disregard for the safety of pedestrians.

One warrant is against Robert P. Neel, 40 years old, of 3911 Monroe avenue, who is charged with striking a woman and a man while driving on the wrong side of a street while intoxicated. The other is against Edward Page, 20, of 607 Missouri avenue, who hit a man while being pursued by a motor cycle policeman.

CANDIDATES ARE NOMINATED FOR ELECTION OF CITY CLUB

John B. Denvir Jr. to Oppose George A. Hanke for Presidency.

Nominations for the annual election of officers of the City Club have been made by a committee, following refusal of the club members at a special meeting last Tuesday to amend the by-laws so as to continue the present administration in office for another year.

John B. Denvir Jr., an attorney, and George A. Hanke, president of Brown's Business College, are the nominees for the presidency. Others are: Vice president, Harland Bartholomew and George E. Chamberlin; secretary, Walston Chubb and L. C. Rose; treasurer, Frank R. Ellis and George P. Potee. Any 10 members may nominate additional candidates by petition up to May 8. The election will be May 18.

It is understood th present administration, headed by W. A. Sommers, was not desirous of running again.

$7500 VERDICT FOR INJURIES

Woman Bus Passenger Gets Judgment Against Auto Driver.

Mrs. Elizabeth Korengold of Minneapolis, Minn., yesterday obtained a jury verdict of $7500 in Circuit Judge Rosskopf's court against Louis A. Zerman, 7349 Myrtle avenue. She was injured in a collision between a motor bus in which she was riding and an automobile driven by Zerman.

Radio Bill Being Redrafted.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Senator Dill (Dem.) of Washington, is recasting his radio control bill, which would provide an independent regulatory commission for the industry, to prohibit the utterance of obscenity or slander through broadcasting stations and to clarify certain provisions. The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee has approved the measure, despite opposition of Prsident Coolidge to any more independent commissions.

PAINTERS PLAN FIGHT TO FINISH IN NEW STRIKE

Vote to Walk Out Tomorrow After Employers Reject Demand for Wage of $11 a Day.

"Fight it out to the finish" was the order passed down yesterday by both employer and employe, when for the second time in two years union painters and paperhangers voted to strike for an increased wage.

The strike, effective tomorrow, was decided upon almost unanimously by more than 2000 of the 2900 members of the union, at a mass meeting at Unity Hall, Grand and Page boulevards.

The union wants a 60-cent increase, from $10.40 to $11, for an eight-hour day. It rejected a compromise offer of an increase of 20 cents a day, made by the Master Builders' Association.

Original demands of the painters carried a suggestion for a five-day week, but this was waived and the strike involves only the question of wages.

Upon being notified of the strike vote, Leo O'Connell, chairman of the Conference Committee of the Master Painters' Association, announced the employers were ready to carry out their contracts "as best they could," and would withdraw the 2½-cent hourly increase offered unless it was accepted within the next week.

"We will begin plans for carrying on our work Monday," O'Connell said. "Many of us believe the old scale of $10.40 a day is too high, but the offer of 20 cents more a day was made in an effort to avoid a strike. The union's rejection of that leaves us no alternative but to carry on our business with other workmen until the union men become more reasonable."

Says Men Will Stay Out.

Union leaders, following the mass meeting, characterized the 2½-cent hourly increase offered as "penny ante stuff," and declared their men would stay out until they got $11 a day. "Our men turned down the bosses' offer with a recommendation that the rejection be final," said Paul Smith, secretary of the Painters' District Council, under which the five painters' and paperhangers' local unions are organized. Smith expressed the belief that an increase of 5 cents an hour now and an additiona 2½ cents in September, as was proposed during compromise negotiations last week, would have been accepted.

Many of those who attended the meeting came in automobiles, more than 500 machines being parked in the vicinity of Unity Hall, which proved too small to acommodate the crowd. Several hundred men stood outside during the discussion and later were admitted to ballot after those inside voted and came outside.

Independent Bosses to Pay $11.

About half the membership of the Council is employed by contractors who are not members of the Master Painters' Association and the names of 125 of these independent concerns were filed at the meeting yesterday as agreeing to pay $11 a day. Painters employed by these concerns will return to work tomorrow under permits issued by their local unions.

TELLS HOW HE SHOT IT OUT WITH ROBBER

Marshal Artinger of Fairmount City Kills His Second Man in Holdup.

Marshal Charles Artinger of Fairmount City, who has four times "shot it out" with gunmen and twice killed his opponents, yesterday told the story of his most recent fight, which ocurred Friday night when he interrupted a holdup in the restaurant of Glen Bryan at 2766 Forty-fourth street.

"I was told someone was sticking up Bryan's place," said Artinger, from his cot in St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, where he is recovering from a flesh wound. "I tiptoed to the porch, swung open the door, jammed my revolver into the stickup man's back and told him to put up his hands.

"He swung and fired. We circled around each other, shooting. He finally fell. I had fired six shots and five of them had hit him. Another man, whom I had just searched outside the place, ran away during the fight."

The dead man was identified as Den Bueno, 24 years old, formerly a resident of Fairmount City. His companion, who had fled after being searched, was arrested later. He was Joe Sanchez. He said he and Bueno got drunk and that Bueno had decided to hold up the Bryan restaurant.

Artinger was wounded in 1919 in a fight with a self-styled "bad man" whom the Marshal wounded and arrested. In 1923 Artinger and a deputy killed two men in a fight, each acounting for one man. In his fourth fight there were no casualties.

CHILD HEALTH RALLY FRIDAY

A health rally will be held by the Child Conservation Conference at the South Side Community Center, Grand boulevard and Vista avenue, at 2 p. m. next Friday. The program follows:

Address by the president, Mrs. Norman Windsor; address by Dr. Harriet S. Cory on "The Mother and Social Hygiene Education;" address by Dr. Horton S. Veeder on "Some Phases of Mental Hygiene;" address by Dr. B. Wyllie op "How Mothers Can Help in the Child Health Program;" address by Rodowe Abeken on "Playtime for Children," and music and other entertainment by South Side children.

KILLED BY GAS WHILE IN BATH

Adolph C. Schmidt, 67 years old, a glass worker, died of gas poisoning yesterday as he sat in the bathtub in a rooming house, 2323A North Ninth street. He went to the bathroom at 5 o'clock and was dead when other roomers forced the door an hour later.

Apparently his death was accidental inasmuch as fumes were escaping from a faulty connection to a gas water heatre which was lighted.

CHARLES N. WHITEHEAD NEW PRESIDENT OF M-K-T ROAD

Charles N. Whitehead yesterday succeeded C. E. Schaff as president of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad.

Schaff, who has been directing head of the Katy lines since 1912, recently announced his intention to retire.

Whitehead has been executive vice president.

CHEMISTS DENOUNCE EXPERTS WHO SELL THEIR TESTIMONY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 1.—So-called expert witnesses, willing to testify in favor of any criminal with sufficient funds, were attacked today by the American Chemical Society. It called on reputable chemists all over the country to aid in keeping expert testimony from falling into disrepute.

The criticism was not confined to criminal cases. "Suits on contracts have brought to the witness stand experts in all sorts of engineering, building and trades," said a statement.

Youth's Body Found in River.

The body of A. Lohkamp, a workman for the Fruin-Colnon Construction Co., who fell into the Mississippi River near Cahokia on April 18 while she was at work, was found today by fishermen, five miles below Jefferson Barracks. Lohkamp lived at Zaimeyer, Ill.

FRANKLIN
New Prices On Series 11 Cars
SEDAN NOW $2790
F. O. B. SYRACUSE

This model sold a year ago for $3200. The new prices and improvements place it on the highest value level obtainable. The same is true throughout the entire Franklin line.

The Franklin is the fastest car over the road. Nothing can equal it in riding comfort, handling ease, dependability and economy.

Franklin sales in 1925 ran 42% ahead of 1924, and increased faster than those of either the fine car field or the industry as a whole. And 1926 sales are ahead of 1925. That is popularity.

The sales record is also recognition of the quality represented by the Series 11 Franklin, which becomes even more notable at today's prices.

Franklin prices include full equipment, even to spare tire, tube, cover and lock. Budget payments arranged, if desired.

317 Births, 260 Deaths in Week.

There were 317 births and 260 deaths reported in St. Louis last week. Sixty-five persons died of organic heart trouble, 30 cancer, 25 Bright's disease, 27 pneumonia, 10 tuberculosis and 10 diseases of the arteries. There were four suicides, one homicide and 10 accidental deaths.

OVERHEAD BRIDGE PLANNED

Structure Would Eliminate Crossing Where Seven Persons Died.

Fred W. Young, right of way representative of the Illinois division of highways, is in Edwardsville negotiating for five acres of ground necessary to the construction of an overhead bridge, where the St. Louis-Chicago trail crosses the Illinois Traction System at Center Grove, two miles south of Edwardsville. Seven lives have been lost in accidents at this grade crossing in the last three years.

If condemnation proceedings are not necessary in the acquisition of two acres from the John Tethering-ton heirs and three acres from John Schlemer, bids for the construction work will be asked within a few days. It is planned not only to carry the highway above the railroad, but to straighten the roadway at that place, eliminating two curves.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

INQUIRER. — The following is Senator George Vest's eulogy of the dog: "The best friend a man has in this world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter that he has reared with love may prove ungrateful. Those who are nearest and dearest to us, those whom we trust with our happiness and our good name, may become traitor to our faith. The money a man has he may lose. It flies away from him, perhaps when he needs it most. A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill-considered action. The people who are now ready to fall on their knees to do us honor when success is with us may be the first to throw the stone when failure settles its cloud upon our heads. The one absolutely unselfish friend a man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is his dog. Gentlemen of the jury, a man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and in sickness. He will sleep on the cold ground when the winter winds blow and the snow drives fiercely, if only he may be by his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer. He will lick the wounds and sores that come in encounters with the roughness of the world. He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When all other friends desert him, he remains. When riches take wings and reputation falls in pieces, he is as constant in his love as the sun in its journey through the heavens. If fortune drives the master forth an outcast in the world, friendless and hopeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying him to guard against danger, to fight against his enemies. And when the last scene of all comes, and death takes the master in its embrace and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by his grave-side will the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad but open in alert watchfulness, faithful and true even to death." The Senator's famous speech was before a Missouri jury when he prosecuted a man for wantonly shooting a pet dog belonging to a neighbor. The plaintiff sued for $200, but after hearing Senator Vest's tribute to a man's canine friend, the jury returned a verdict for $500.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

A WORKING MAN. — You will have to pay the rent for the notice period. If you do not pay it they can sue you and can garnish your wages.

D. I. M. S.—You cannot force them to give you the adoption papers but you can get a certified copy from the Clerk of the court which authorized the adoption.

POST-DISPATCH. —A divorce obtained in Mexico on 24 hours residence would probably not be recognized as legal by the courts of this country.

H. T. A.—The clerk will return the unused part of the deposit for costs, if any of it is unused. The amount varies in each case. In each case. It would be returned shortly after the costs have been taxed.

A SUBSCRIBER. — If he makes these accusations to anyone besides you, you can sue him for slander. If he merely makes them to you, and no one else hears them, you cannot sue him.

MRS. V.—They can take the ice box back if you do not pay the balance due. Ask them to give you a little more time for the balance.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

A. B. C.—Repeat your question, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

J. F. T. — Bleeding piles is a form of hemorrhoids. (2) The same causes which produced them in the first place might also produce them again. (3) Practically the only immediate relief is by an operation and the length of time to be laid up should not be more than four or five days or a week at the most.

L. S.—Among the first and most constantly present symptoms of gastric ulcer is indigestion in its different forms. Then pain, nausea, vomiting, loss of tenderness, nausea, vomiting. The two principal cause are feeble nutrition of the mucous lining of the stomach and excessive acidity of the gastric juice by which the mucous membrane is digested out. The duodenum is the upper part of the small intestine into which the stomach opens. It is sometimes called the diet and medication and when these fail an operation becomes necessary.

VERY ANXIOUS.—Syphilis can be cured, and generally is if properly treated. There would be no danger in the kissing if one had been cured. By cured meaning that no trace of the disease was any longer present, either in the system or blood. Blood tests should be made from time to time to determine whether or not the cure is really permanent. If by repeated tests which should be negative, over a certain period of time, there is no positive reaction it is fairly certain that the disease is entirely eliminated and that a permanent cure has been effected, in which event marriage might be entered into with safety.

FIRST RISE IN LOANS SINCE FALL STARTED

Discount Cut Speeds Flow of Funds Into Interior — News of French Debt Settlement Developments Taken Calmly.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"Most of the recent news has been constructive in character but the arrival of May this year is marked not so much by the new light we are given on the future trend in stocks as by the revised opinions people are beginning to adopt on business conditions. As far as the stock market goes, about all that can be said is that the period of drastic liquidation appears to have ended in one of fair confidence in values. Precisely a month has passed since the last session of violent selling and the minor declines and rallies of April have revealed a degree of stabilization to the market that had not been seen since early in the year. In that connection let it be noted that the week of April 21 brought the first upturn in loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by member banks in New York since the week ended Feb. 17. From the peak on Jan. 6 to April 14 the Federal Reserve compilations had shown a contraction in such loans of $690,000,000, a total that in a very rough way reflected the continued liquidation of stocks. For several weeks the tide of liquidation has been losing its momentum and during the week last recorded loans actually rose $18,000,000.

Future Still Unfolded.

"Not enough of the year has passed for the authorities to have reached an agreement on how 1926 will compare with 1925, but not so much emphasis now is laid on comparisons of that sort as formerly. More and more people are coming to the view that failure to exceed peak records of an abnormal year is not a reason for discouragement. So long as business is profitable and the demand for goods active, they are beginning to reckon, trade may rest on a perfectly sound basis even if it is not on the gain. It so happens that 1926 to date has brought many new achievements that had not been anticipated and a recession from these peaks later in the year would be regarded as natural but in their present mood the authorities will be slow to cry wolf again unless better evidence of depression appears than a break in the stock market. As we enter the fifth month of the year we find the optimists somewhat less optimistic over the distant future than they were at the time they made their yearly forecasts, and the pessimists less pessimistic. It is difficult nowadays to find any responsible authority that will predict a pronounced upturn in the prosperity curve or any that anticipates bad times, but on every hand may be heard expressions that reflect the expectation of continued good business generally.

Money to Interior.

"As may have been anticipated, the reduction in the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank at New York last week was effective in forcing money into the interior rather promptly. Discount holdings of the New York institution rose $79,000,000 this week as against a decline of $127,000,000 in the week before but for a picture of the movement better figures than these are available. Total bills and securities in which are included the discount holdings increased substantially more at New York this week than for the system as a whole; the gain at the New York bank was nearly $73,000,000 and that for the entire system $33,000,000. While the reduction of the rate to a 3½ per cent level accelerated the movement of funds to the interior a flow of funds in that direction would have been natural at this period as money is drawn off to meet the month-end requirements. Perhaps the most interesting feature of the period is that the appearance of fresh ease in money has not brought with it another wave of speculation in stocks. An increasing volume of funds is going into the bond market here, despite the enormously heavy offerings of April, the demand still exceeds the supply.

Debt Agreement Taken Calmly.

"In the financial district the announcement of an agreement on the terms of the French debt settlement did not bring any very lively discussions of the terms or any special response in the securities markets except increased activity in the French bonds. Even the franc sold around its record low for all time after the announcement and at the best level yesterday was not far above that quotation. What the tentative agreement did not bring was an interest in loan that, it is expected, will be offered on this market by the Republic of France when and if present terms are acceptable by the French legislative body. Delays in the adoption of some plan of settlement has checked the flow of foreign offerings to this center and bankers are wondering whether an agreement soon might not open the way for an increased activity in foreign financing. Various views are held on that matter but the majority of institutions would welcome an opportunity to sell more issues of high-grade originating overseas.

Quiet Market Saturday.

"Stock prices fluctuated within comparatively narrow limits in dull trading on the stock market today and, although several individual issues were subjected to professional pressure with consequent declines, the general list held fairly steady. Some unsettlement was caused by the calling of a general strike in England with prospects of increased industrial unrest, and sterling developed weakness, but the remainder of the exchanges were steady in quiet trading. Indications of a return of lower money rates were reflected in increased activity in bond market, where rail issues were in good demand at higher levels. Government securities ruled firm and some of the industrials moved forward.

Steady Tone Maintained.

"Although scattered points of weakness were uncovered in quiet dealings and some of the recently active favorites eased off slightly, a general undertone of firmness prevailed in most parts of the list and leading industrials radiated selling pressure. Pressure was exerted against some issues, however, such as American Woolen, Gimbel Bro. and others which had scored advances during the week. American Agricultural Chemical preferred was depressed to a new low level for the year. Part of the selling was attributed to renewed liquidation, although speculators for the decline were active in some stocks.

Easier Money Expected.

"With month-end settlements out of the way, a return of more favorable credit conditions is generally expected. Investment rail stocks were well supported, although activity was curtailed in this department.

Sterling Declines Here.

"Weakness of sterling featured the local foreign exchange market, offerings increasing in response to calling of a general strike in England. Rates here dropped below the $4.86 level. The remainder of the list was quiet and fluctuations were narrow. French and Belgian rates were fairly steady.

Clearing House Statement.

"Prospects of easier money next week were held out in the weekly statement of the Clearing House Banks, showing an excess in reserve of $28,061,650 as a result of an increase in the surplus of $35,594,500. Loans, discounts, etc., increased $152,823,000. The stiffening of money rates toward the end of the week as a result of calling of loans by banks is expected to disappear with the completion of month-end settlements.

TRADE MAINLY IN TRACTION STOCK ON LOCAL MARKET

United Railways Preferred Closes Week at 71¼—General Market Shows Mixed Price Changes for the Period.

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, May 1.—There was an increase in volume of business on the local market the past week but it represented mostly activity in the preferred shares of the United Railways Company. Pretty well up to half of the total sales for the week consisted of trades in the traction issue. The latter showed a better tone late in the week closing at 7¾ after selling at 5⅜. Both the stock and the certificate of deposit closed on the same basis.

Application was made to list 245,745 shares of no par common stock of the St. Louis Public Service Company. After reorganization the local traction lines will be known by the above name. Trading is expected to begin next week in subscription receipts, 36 per cent paid in.

More stocks lost ground as a result of the week's activities than gained, though about as many were unchanged as were lower. Three of the shoe shares were lower at the end of the week. Consolidated Lead was down while Waltke and Wagner Electric gained in the week's trade. There was a fair turnover in Ely Walker stock between 29 and 31, the closing being at 29½ or unchanged for the period.

Dry Goods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Cotton goods showed little change today at the opening of the month. Curtailment of 25 per cent of production has started in Southern mills for the next 60 to 90 days. Wash goods and silks continued quiet. The raw silk market in Yokohama was reported as excited, but unchanged here. Burlaps were slightly easier on reports of lower prices at Calcutta where strikes and other troubles have ceased to interfere with trading. Some of the New Jersey mills were offering five-ounce worsted dress fabrics for fall, the lightest cloths ever made for the purpose and designed to meet the competition of silk materials.

FURTHER ADVANCE IN FRENCH BONDS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Bond trading marked time today without losing any of the vitality which has characterized the market for the past fortnight. Dealings were in reduced volume but sufficient buying orders were marshalled in a few instances to lift prices to the highest levels of the week.

Although the first feeling of enthusiasm over the French debt settlement was tempered by criticism of the terms abroad, French bonds resumed their upward movement today. The Government's obligations held close to their recent peak prices, with a large turnover in the 7 per cent issues. United Kingdom 5½s, however, were depressed by the threat of a general strike in Great Britain.

Most of the domestic corporation issues moved within a narrow trading area, although selective buying accounted for several brisk rallies. Baltimore & Ohio 4s were strong among the strongest of the high-grade rails, while the demand for semispeculative liens embraced Ann Arbor 4s, Chicago & Alton 3s, Ulster & Delaware 4s, and Western Maryland 4s. Cuba Railroad jumped almost 4 points to a new high record above 86. Despite the heavy volume of public utility offerings placed on the market this week, the demand for these issues was unabated. Brooklyn Edison 5s, Detroit Edison 5s and the local traction lien worked moderately higher.

Small bond offerings scheduled for next week include $6,000,000 Utica Gas and Electric Co. 30-year 5s at par, $3,351,000 State of Georgia Railroad 4½ per cent rental certificates, and $325,000 Hamburg-American Line 6½ per cent equipment bonds.

FINANCIAL SITUATION AS VIEWED IN LONDON

Special Wireless to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, May 1.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in review today says:

"The outlook here depends entirely on developments in the coal situation. These are difficult to discern.

"The recent period of uncertainty has occasioned a healthy check on capital creations and consequently the investor's power of absorption has been increased and the remainder of the £3,000,000 potash loan was eagerly absorbed this week.

"London bankers discredit the story which was circulated here by a New York newspaper stating that world bankers are drafting a scheme to pay off the war debt between nations by Germany selling to investors dollar bonds secured by her industries and railroads.

"The story was probably based on past and impending further talks between international bankers and financiers concerning European problems, while it is believed Germany is desirous of obtaining further credits in America based on certain railroads.

"The plan outlined in the story is impracticable and clever, but is hopelessly premature unless American investors are indeed ready to rise to the occasion magnificently.

"It is still believed that a desire for economical operations was largely responsible for the White Star Line deal, although cost of Atlantic shipping is largely governed by the demands of wealthy Americans for luxury."

Weekly Metal Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The character of buying in the steel market during the past week was again largely for immediate or nearby delivery, but the volume showed no material falling off from the recent rate. Production appeared to be gradually decreasing to conform with the current demand, though still in excess of new business. Aside from sheet, prices were steady, but confidence prevailed that declines would be limited among buyers.

Pig iron was quiet, with sales confined to small lots, and prices were barely steady.

Business in copper has been light, both at home and abroad. Home consumption is believed to be proceeding at a satisfactory rate, but with production heavy, the market is supposed to hinge on the demand abroad, and domestic buyers are evidently disposed to operate cautiously in the absence of export interest. During the past week foreign markets have naturally reflected the British labor situation, which seemed to offset the favorable sentimental effect of the French debt settlement, and while some of the producing interests have been holding steadily for 14 cents, sales have been reported at 13⅞ for electrolytic delivered at Connecticut Valley points.

Tin has eased somewhat, despite good buying of June, July and August by consumers, owing to the decline in London. Large American deliveries were offset by the increase in shipments from Cuina. Prompt straits still command a big premium over futures, owing to scarcity on the spot.

Lead was less active, the heaviness abroad and possibility of importation of Mexican ore serving to defer purchases in anticipation of lower prices.

Zinc was lower, reflecting the decline abroad and the continued slow domestic demand.

Antimony was weak, under increased offerings of both spot and future arrivals.

GASTON FAILS AND TIGERS OVERWHELM BROWNS, 11-2

Pompey, Under Whip in Stretch, Wins First Start of the Season

DERBY "HOPE" GIVEN SCARE BY NAVIGATOR

Winner, After Losing Lead at Head of Stretch, Gamely Comes on at the Finish.

By G. F. T. Ryall,
Of the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Pompey, winner of Futurity last year and favorite for the Kentucky Derby, came back to the races at Jamaica this afternoon and ran the way a Derby favorite should in winning the Wood Stakes for 3-year-olds at one mile and 70 yards.

After making the pace for seven furlongs the Green Tree stable's Navigator passed him, rounding the stretch turn, and it looked at the head of the stretch as though another Derby hope had gone glimmering; but Pompey came on under the whip in the last furlong to win, going away by a length and a half. Navigator was four lengths in front of Espino at the end. Black Maria was fourth, a length behind. The time for the distance was 1:42.

Seven of the leading candidates for the Preakness and Derby faced the starter, and when the barrier went up Breuning sent Pompey right to the front, with Navigator and Black Maria in close pursuit. Espino was bothered at the break when Blondin, breaking badly interfered with him.

Navigator Hangs On

Breuning kept hustling Pompey all the way to the six furlong pole, but was not able to draw away from Navigator. Meanwhile Espino had moved up fast on the outside and, rounding the turn out of the back stretch, it looked as though he would go to the front.

Navigator was the one to do that, however, while Espino tired. Blondin, of course, played no part in the running, but Nichavo, the Rancocas stable's entry, ran far below expectations.

Pompey and Black Maria were an almost prohibitive favorite at 2 to 7, most of the betting being for Nichavo and Espino a place.

The race was a fast one run as the fractional times show: the quarter in :23 4-5, the half in :48 2-5, six furlongs in 1:12 3-5, the mile in 1:38 and the mile and a sixteenth in 1:42.

Pompey, which headed the list of winning horses last year with $121,630 to his credit, added $8700 to this by winning the Wood Stakes.

BRAVES SCORE THREE IN NINTH TO BEAT THE GIANTS, 5 TO 4

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The breaking-up tactics of the New York Giants-Indiana Flooring Co. picked eleven proved too great a handicap for the Hakoah Jewish team this afternoon at the Polo Grounds, where the visitors were blanked by 3 goals to 0.

An enormous crowd of nearly 40,000 persons attended the contest. This is about twice as great as viewed the previous Hakoah game at the same field. The largest attendance at any soccer game in this country prior to the visit of the Hakoah team was about 16,000 persons, attracted to the national cup final.

During the early part of the first half the Hakoah kickers amazed the locals with their precision in passing the ball; but after 12 minutes, Brown of the U. S. team headed the first goal beyond reach of Fabian.

This setback temporarily demoralized the effectiveness of the Hakoah combination, but they soon settled down and had the combined team on the defense.

At the outset of the second period the Jewish team threatened the local goal, but finished poorly by shooting high or wide. Thirty-two minutes after resuming, Carlson netted a long drive and Dugan contributed another goal three minutes later.

The line-up:

Hakoah (0).		Indiana Giants (3)
Fabian	Goal	Geudert
Gold	R. F. B.	Ferguson
Wagner	L. F. B.	Moorehouse

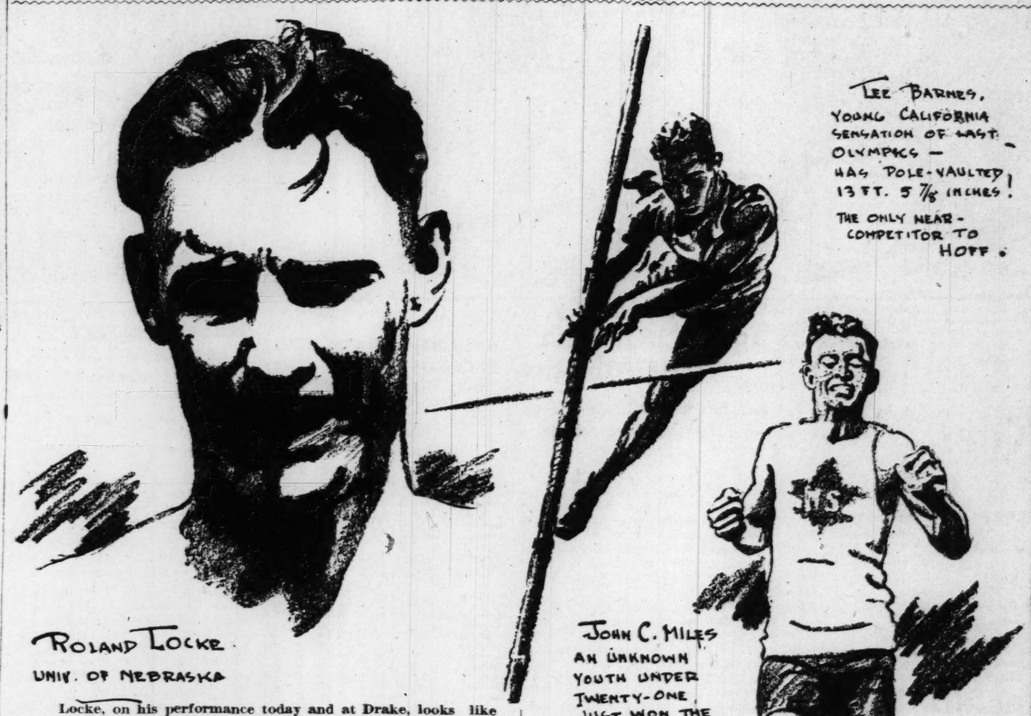
FLASHING INTO FAME! —Drawn by Burris Jenkins, Jr.



Locke, on his performance today and at Drake, looks like the greatest sprinter of all time. Yesterday he broke the world's 220 mark and tied the 100-yard record. At Drake he broke the world's 100-yard dash record.

Locke Breaks World's 220-Yard Record, Equals 100-Yard Mark And Wins 3 Firsts in One Meet Nebraska Sprinter, in Dual Games With Tigers, Runs a Furlong in 20½ Seconds and the Century in 9 3-5—Had Favoring Wind With Him.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 1.—A world's record in the 220-yard dash, a tie for the world's record in the 100-yard dash and first in the 220-yard hurdles. These were the achievements of Roland Locke, Nebraska comet in the dual meet between the University of Missouri and the University of Nebraska which the latter won 74⅓ to 56⅔ here today.

Running without apparent effort, the Nebraska comet flashed down the path in 20.5 seconds, leading Smith of Missouri by about 10 yards at the finish. The present world record for the 220-yard sprint is held by Charles Paddock at 20.8 seconds.

Henry F. Schulte, University of Nebraska, track coach, declared following a conference with A. A. U. officials and timers, who recorded Locke's performance, that the mark would be submitted for recognition. Locke's 9.6 seconds performance in the 100-yard dash today will probably not be submitted as he was aided by a brisk breeze. In the 220-yard event, however, officials who were posted along the track, declared there was a lull in the wind at the time of the race and that Locke was unaided by it. All five official A. A. U. timers clocked the Cornhusker in record-breaking time.

Today's performance was the first time Locke had ever bettered the 220 mark. He was clocked in 20.8 at the Missouri Valley meet last spring under doubtful conditions. The 220-yard lane at the Nebraska stadium is run on a half curve.

Locke has previously been timed in 9.6 seconds on three occasions. His mark of 9.6 at the Kansas relays this spring was under ideal conditions.

At the Drake relays recently he stepped the century in 9.5 seconds but under doubtful conditions.

Nebraska made a clean sweep of first places in the individual track events, Missouri winning only the mile relay.

Missouri had the better of the argument in the field events, Doss Richerson and Kenneth Lancaster each scoring a pair of first places.

The Nebraska distance men furnished the turning point of the meet, the Cornhuskers sweeping the field in the two-mile and conceding Missouri a lone point in the mile run.

Wyatt Surprises Crowd.

Perly Wyatt, of Nebraska surprised the spectators by beating Grantello, Valley indoor champion, in the quarter mile. Wyatt and Grantello battled all the way around the circuit, the Nebraska boy having the better finish.

In the half mile, the runners were well bunched with Ross and Roberts of Nebraska sprinting on the back stretch to pass Perdew of

HOFF FAILS IN ATTEMPT TO BREAK RECORD

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 1.—Charles Hoff of Norway failed in an attempt to break his world's record for the pole vault at the University of Washington relays here today. His best effort was 13 feet 8 inches, or 1 13-16 inches short of his outdoor world mark.

The bar was set at 14 feet but Hoff was unable to clear it in three attempts.

INDIANA TRACK TEAM DEFEATS CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., May 1.—Indiana swamped Chicago, 77 1-3 to 57 2-3, in a Western Conference track meet here today. Indiana was first in every track event and three field events.

Burg, Chicago, was individual scorer, with firsts in the high jump and pole vault and third in the broad jump. Bensel, Indiana, took both the high and low hurdles, while Pepper, Indiana, easily won the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

PESEK AND STECHER MAY GRAPPLE AT QUAKER CITY FAIR

THE possibility of a return match between Joe Stecher and John Pesek for the world's wrestling championship looms large today. The Stecher brothers, Joe and Anton, were in conference yesterday afternoon with Aurelio Fabiana, Philadelphia promoter, who wants Joe to meet the Tiger in an outdoor show at the Quaker City during the sesqui-centennial celebration.

Pesek departed Friday night for his home in Ravenna, Neb., without commenting on the possibility of a return bout.

VANCE ALLOWS ONLY 7 HITS, BUT PHILLIES BEAT DODGERS, 4—2

BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 1.—The Brooklyn winning streak was broken today as the Phillies took the last game of the series, 4 to 2. Dazzy Vance pitched for the Robins and though he yielded only seven hits, two were home runs; one by Leach, coming in the sixth with two on the bases. Williams hit for the circuit in the eighth.

The Robins retain first place as the Giants also lost.

Records Tumble As Hartz Takes 300-Mile Race

Crowd of 80,000 Sees Speedway Auto Contest—Accidents Disqualify Several.

By the Associated Press.

SPEEDWAY, N. J., May 1.—Six world's speed records were shattered today when Harry Hartz, 30-year-old Californian, swept to victory in the 300-mile international race that opened the new track of the Atlantic City Motor Speedway Association.

Flashing around the big mile and a half pine oval at a dizzy clip without making a single stop, Hartz triumphed in a sensational struggle in which his two foremost rivals, Peter De Paolo, American speedway champion, and Bob McDonogh, another Californian, finished second and third. A crowd of close to 80,000 spectators saw the picturesque speed chase in which only six of the 16 starters finished the full course.

Hartz not only clipped nearly five minutes from the world's 300-mile record, set last Feb. 22, at Miami, Fla., by De Paolo, but carried off $12,000, the winner's share of the $30,000 in prize money distributed to the contestants.

Hartz' time for the 300 miles was 2 hours, 14 minutes, 14.18 seconds, as compared with De Paolo's mark of 2:19:12.95. His average speed was 134.1 miles an hour, as compared with De Paolo's 129:295.

Five Other Marks Shattered.

Although officials tonight had not computed the exact times, it was announced that five other world's marks also had been smashed. Three of these were credited to McDonogh at distances of 75, 200 and 250 miles, another to Hartz at 100 miles, the only other stage of the race at which he was leading until just before the finish, and a fifth to Earl De-

HOLLOWAY HOLDS SISLER'S BATTERS ALL THE WAY; LOCALS' DEFENSE CRACKS

Fans Howl as Team Submits to Defeat Without Showing Fight—Schang and Durst Alone Exhibit Fight—Cobb Retires After Collision at Plate.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Those once proud and dangerous Brownies performed like castoffs from a municipal league yesterday afternoon and the Detroit Tigers scored a lop sided victory, 11 to 2, in the so-called third game of the series.

The Browns will conclude their stand at home this afternoon and it is well. The wolves have begun to howl. The team is broken. It needs a change. Perhaps a change of players. That being unlikely, perhaps a hange of scenery will do it some good.

Milton Gaston, counted on as the ace of the Brownie pitching staff, started on the mound for Sisler and for five innings he pitched on even terms with Kenneth Holloway, right-hander of Ty Cobb's staff. But in the sixth Gaston lost his control. He was touched for a single and then filled the bases. And then, with the bases packed, with two down and the score tied at 1-1, Tavener hit to right.

Bennett ordinarily would bring down such a drive without great difficuty, but the strain was too great. Bennett had been riding the bench until a few days ago and in his eagerness he misjudged that drive. He started in and when he realized his mistake, it was too late. The drive sailed over the head and crashed against the right field pavolion wall and bounced away for a double, clearing the bases, sending three runs over the plate and turning a perfectly good ball game into a route, a farce.

Jonnard Jolted, Bolen Belted.

Jonnard relieved Gaston after that inning and was pounded for four hits and three runs. Bolen followed Jonnard on the hill and was plastered for five hits and four runs in one inning.

If plastering were easy always, as it was in this ball game, the wielder of whatever the plasterer plasters with would never ask for a boost in his stipend.

Holes in the Defense.

With the Tigers in the lead and with loud, raucous hoots and jeers pouring from the stands, the Browns cracked. Their defense went to pieces. Outfielders let ground balls skip between their legs. Pitcher Bolen made two wild pitches. Five errors were charged to the Browns, and to the 8200 cash customers it must have seemed that Sisler's men were making 25 misplays.

Ten Tiger runs chased across the plate in the last four innings and the box score shows that Cobb's men hit safely 14 times.

It was the worst exhibition the Browns have given during their most unfortunate stand at home. They took the field as if it were a matter of unpleasant duty. They took blow after blow, impotently, hopelessly.

Out of the afternoon of lifeless and mediocre preformance, the work of Wallie Schang and Cedric Durst shone brilliantly. Durst, a recruit, scored on of the Browns runs, racing from first to the plate on a single to center which Cobb fumbled momentarily.

Schang made three hits and caught a fine game. He tried to put into the Browns the fight and winning spirit of teams with which he had played in the past. But he could not do much. He played a great game, but he could not make the Browns great.

It must have been a heart-breaking afternoon for Sisler, Schang and for Owner Phil Ball, to see the St. Louis team play so miserably and to see many members of the team appear to care not much, no matter how great the disgrace.

More of the Same.

Wells Due to Pitch for Tigers

Schang's Work Stands Out in Defeat—Bennett Makes a Fine Throw—Bleacher Crowds Falling Off.

Wells, a southpaw, will pitch against the Browns this afternoon in the final of the Tigers' series here. Sisler at press time had not made up his list of throwers.

"While there's life there's hope," somebody yelled during the disaster of yesterday at Sportsman's Park, quickly following it with "But there's no life." Absolutely none.

Sisler and his men could not escape the first inning jinx. Neun, after having a call of two strikes and no balls, popped a double to left. It hit an inch inside the chalk line.

Bennett made a fine throw to nail Gehringer at third in the same frame. The Tiger tried to make the far corner on Cobb's single.

Even the sun seat patrons have cooled off in the face of the Browns' pitiful showing. The bleachers were not half filled.

Wieners are till pale, wan and cold at Sportsman's Park, but there were so many complaints that the concession man had to get a supply of baked ham sandwiches for the customers.

Schang certainly has made Sisler's judgment look good. The former Yankee has pepper, speed and has been socking the apple merrily. He is far from "through."

Durst and Schang hit sizzling singles with one down in the sec-

By Herman Wecke

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

CHICAGO, May 1.—The Cardinals wheeled into the eight inning of today's game with a two-run lead.

The Cubs put two runners on the bases and with two out. "Sparky" Adams was the batter. He hit a harmless little roller towards short. It looked like the third out. Tommy Thevenow fielded the ball cleanly. All he had to do was toss to Bottomley for the out. But Tommy hesitated and that moment of hesitation proved the difference between victory and defeat.

Adams beat Tommy's belated throw to first. That filled the bases and set the stage for a Cub rally. And rally it was. Before the Cardinals got the side out the locals had put over five runs and gone into a three-run lead. That mental error by the shortstop also proved the undoing of Flint Rhem, who prior to today was unbeaten.

The final score was 11 to 8. The Cardinals had lost their third straight and had dropped under the .500 mark for the first time this season.

Eleven Extra Base Blows.

It was a game of free slugging. There were 11 extra base hits and of this number five were home runs, three by the Cardinals and two for the Cubs. The pair for the Bruins were produced by Munson, who incidentally produced the smash off relief pitcher, Victor Keen that gave the victory to Chicago.

The Cardinals hit hard. They had 14 smashes. But now that the batters have started hitting the pitchers have stopped. Plenty of runs have been scored the last few days. But all it has resulted in is defeats.

The Cubs galloped into a lead in the very first inning. Adams opened with a single, but the next two went down. That brought up Mr. Hack Wilson, the man who broke up yesterday's game and who brought the ire of Hornsby on Pitcher Reinhart in the form of a $50 fine. Hack drew a pass. Howard Freigau, who at one time acted as bat boy for the Cardinals, came through with a single and Adams dented the rubber.

Hornsby's men went on a rampage in the second. Up to this round the left-handed Mr. Wilbur Cooper had pitched ten scoreless innings against the St. Louisans, with but five hits off him. Bottomley started the second with a low liner to left. Munson tried for a shoestring catch, and the ball rolled to the fence for four bases.

That was only a starter. Hafey and Bell singled and then Bob O'Farrell, who once drew money out of the Wrigley millions, poled one over the right-field wall for the second circuit drive of the frame, and that one-run deficit had been turned into a three-run lead.

Cooper Gets Cheap Hit.

The Cub hirelings came back with one. Gonzales singled with one out. Then Cooper smashed one at Hornsby. It looked like a double play, but Hornsby let that little pill roll unmolested into right field and Cooper had a cheap hit, and Gonzales was on third. The catcher tallied as Thevenow threw out Adams on a mean bounder through the pitcher's box.

Lester Bell joined the home-run circle in the fourth when he hoisted one into the unprotected seats in right field. Two more raps came in this frame, but no more runs.

Cooper's finish came in the fifth. He walked Blades and Mueller sacrificed. Hornsby followed with a double and Bottomley with a single and two more runs were over. The cash customers were yelling for Cooper's scalp. Joe McCarthy finally decided it was not the southpaw's day, but it had taken 11 hits and seven runs to convince him. So Bill Piercy, once in the American League, went in to stop the assault.

The Cubs got right back in the ball game in the fifth, scoring three runs. One out, Adams tripled, Heathcote doubled and Munson pounded out the fourth homer of the contest. Prior to this assault, Rhem had retired 10 successive batters.

With two out in the seventh, Munson walked. He advanced on a balk and got home when Wilson crashed a double to center. And that had cut down a five-run lead to a margin of only one tally. And it had all come about through solid clubbing of the horsehide.

Piercy helped the Cardinals to a run in the eighth. One out, he walked O'Farrell. Thevenow singled on the hit and run, sending the catcher to third. Then Piercy uncorked a wild pitch and O'Farrell scored. It was just as good that he did, as the next two batters proved easy outs.

The Terrible Eighth.

The Bruins went ahead in the eighth. Cooney and Shannon, up for Piercy, singled. Adams got an infield hit and Heathcote singled. That finished Rhem and Keen went in. Munscon greeted the former Bruin with his second home run of the game and the Cubs had five runs.

Bill Sherdel, left-hander and leading pitcher in the National League last season, is scheduled to face the Cubs in the final game of the series tomorrow. He will possibly draw Grover Cleveland Alexander, the old master, as his opponent. It will be the Cardinals' final road game, as they open a long stand at home with the Cincinnati Reds Monday.

Just what Heine Mueller was thinking about in the third is hard to explain. He was on first when Hornsby bunted safely down the third base line. The ball got through Freigau and rolled into the outfield. Third base was left uncovered. Coach Killefer waved Mueller on but Heine stuck on second. That hurt. Bottomley was forced to bunt. He forced Mueller. Had Mueller watched his guns, Hafey's liner, which was turned into a double play, would have been a safety with a drawn-in infield.

Two Cardinals, O'Farrell and Thevenow, tested Gonzales' arm in the fourth. But Mike's throw to Cooney was waiting for each baserunner. Showing that the Cuban is still a great thrower.

Cliff Heathcote, ex-Cardinal, took a base hit away from Blades with a shoestring catch of a low liner in the sixth.

Ralph Michaels, a utility infielder, has been released unconditionally to the Kansas City club of the American Association by the Cubs.

Loch Leven Trout.

THIS species commonly called "brown or German brown" trout, as stated before, will thrive in water of higher temperature than will the rainbow or either the Western or Eastrn brook trout, and should do well in our Missouri streams.

Some time ago we suggested that some effort be made to obtain either eggs or fry of this trout, but we find that the Game and Fish Department had already arranged for this experiment, and has since received a small quantity of eggs of the Loch Leven shipped from Montana through the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries.

These eggs will be handled carefully and every precaution will be taken to assure a good hatch, the young will be guarded carefully and fed in such a manner as to promote rapid growth.

Mr. Fred J. Fister, Chief of Hatcheries, is of the opinion that the "Loch Leven" will thrive as well if not better than the rainbow.

We wish to compliment and thank the officers of the Game and Fish Department for their untiring and able efforts in the matter of protection and propagation of game and fish, while, at the same time, trying to give the sportsmen a fair deal.

Catching Trout With Minnows.

THERE are a great many fishermen who will use nothing but a fly when fishing for trout.

For a man who is spending the season on or near a trout stream, when he may fish every day, it does very well for him to stick to the artificial fly, but the man who can only take a day or two at a time, and is only able to make two or three trips during the season, should not be condemned for using minnows or worms when he finds that the trout refuse to rise to any of his flies; for every fisherman likes to take home a mess of fish taken by himself on his own rod.

It seems to make very little difference to a trout whether the minnow is alive or dead, so it is to the advantage of the angler to place the minnow on the hook in such a manner that it cannot be pulled off very readily.

The majority of fishermen use a No. 6 Carlisle hook, tied with a single gut, as this pattern has a long shank which enables one to string on a minnow to better advantage than when a short-shanked hook is used.

When going trout fishing it is always advisable to have a cheap line in your kit to be used if you find yourself compelled to use a minnow, for you will not have to cast. Just keep out of sight and allow the minnow to float down into the pool which you think is harboring the big fellow.

As a rule when a trout takes a minnow he does not grab it with a rush as he is apt to do when striking a fly, but starts off slowly. It is best not to strike until you are reasonably sure he has hooked himself and starts UP STREAM.

Early in the morning and late in the evening seems to be the best time of day to catch big ones.

Trout will take a minnow, worm or helgrammite when he will touch a fly. Salmon eggs are also very attractive, but no real sportsman will think of using them.

Live Field Mouse for Bait.

The largest rainbow the writer has seen was taken by Dr. Jones, living in the San Luis Valley, Colo., from the Rio Grande River not far from Creede. This trout weighed a little over 15 pounds and was taken with a fly rod with a live field mouse for bait.

For months this big chap had defied all the efforts of dozens of fishermen, refusing all sorts of bait, both natural and artificial.

Dr. Jones was the most persistent and kept on trying after the others had given up and at last was rewarded, though it took a small boy to point out the way. The young son of a nearby ranchman happened to be on the river on the eventful day and told Dr. Jones that if he could get a live mouse over the hole he believed he could hook "old grandpa," as the boy styled this big trout.

To get the mouse down to the hole was a problem, for the water was fast and the mouse would drown before arriving at the right spot. Finally, Dr. Jones floated the mouse down on a small chip, which he jerked out from under just above the hole, he was lucky enough to hook "grandpa" at once and finally landed him.

That same season (1918) Dr. Jones landed another big one, which weighed 11 pounds and 5 ounces, the bait this time was a large grasshopper.

Crappie Are Biting at Lake Killarney.

Paul Koehler and Vincent Hellman spent three days at Lake Killarney, April 20 to 24, and captured 47 fine crappie. They were trolling, using live minnows for bait.

These 47 fish weighed 63 pounds so these men certainly had a nice string.

Todt's Home Run Beats Athletics

Red Sox Break Losing Streak by Defeating Philadelphia, 2 to 1.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—Phil Todt's sensational batting and Fred Wingfield's pitching proved too much for the Athletics today when the Red Sox took the final game in the series at Shibe Park, 2 to 1.

More than 25,000 fans saw the downfall of the Mackmen after they had won the first two games in the series. It marked the close of Boston's losing streak of five straight.

Todt personally decided the game when he hit a home run over the right field fence in the sixth inning. It was his third circuit blow of the season. Todt also had a double and two single, getting four of Boston's seven hits.

ond, but Gerber slapped into a double play.

McManus made his second error as third baseman in the first frame. Again it was a throw that pulled Sisler off the bag, on Gehringer's sacrifice bunt.

McManus had another chance in the third on Gehringer's grounder. He handled it cleanly and his throw was straight and true.

Gaston crashed a foul into the stand in the third and then, by way of breaking precedent, singled sharply to left. Bennett followed with an ace to right and Gaston, trying to make third, was out a country block on Heilmann's fine throw to Warner. It was the second successive inning in which successive singles went for naught.

Phil Ball will have to do something about the score board. When the customers in the bleachers are numerous, the spectators can't see the Cardinal score.

Bennett made a brilliant catch of Manush's foul in the fourth. His shoulder was against the concrete wall near the foul line.

Gaston's snap throw to Sisler had the great Ty Cobb off first in the fourth, but the throw was a bit high and before Sisler could sweep the ball down, Cobb had dived to safety. The stands cheered the effort, though it failed of its purpose.

Cobb, sliding home in the seventh, catapulted into the air and crashed against Schang. Schang met him with an elbow and Cobb, badly jarred, retired, sending Fothergill to center. It was a duel of wits and weapons and Schang won.

McManus singled in the sixth, went to third on Schang's third hit and scored when Tavener fumbled Gerber's grounder. Rice batted for Gaston, but failed, sending a dinky roller to Holloway.

Austin also got some credit. He waved Durst on from third with the run that tied the score.

Gaston's wildness was costly in the sixth. Gehringer opened with a single, Manush filed out and Cobb and Warner walked, filling the bases. Bennett badly misjudged Tavener's drive and it hit the wall for a double, clearing the sacks.

Heilmann fouled to Sisler with Cobb on first and Gehringer on third. Sisler threw to the plate to stop Gehringer and Cobb went to second. There was a suggestion that Heilmann be given a sacrifice fly, but it would have been incorrect, as Cobb advanced on the throw to the plate. With third unoccupied, he never would have considered the move.

Tavener is the size of a jockey, but he put the power of a heavyweight into that sixth inning drive to the wall.

The wolves were howling in the seventh as the Tigers scored two off Jonnard on two walks, two singles and a sacrifice.

As the game progressed the Browns played more and more like a tail-end Municipal League team, with many substitutes on duty.

ALL STARS TO PREPARE FOR HAKOAH TILT TODAY

Fifteen players, representing the St. Louis All-Stars, will see service at St. Louis University Field today when the local kickers engage the German Sports eleven, member of the Muny League, in a practice contest as a preparatory test for the international game with Hakoah, all-Jewish combination of Vienna, scheduled at St. Louis University Field May 15. The game today will start at 11 o'clock.

With all of the players ready for play, Manager Willie Foley hopes to get a real line on the players now listed as prospective starters. The local kickers have been practicing for the past two weeks and are in fine fettle. Another practice game will be booked either Saturday or Sunday of next week as a climaxing touch of preliminary work. The Hakoah team is due here May 11.

In the Realm Of Bird Dogs

Field Trials to Be Held by St. Louis Pointer and Setter Club in Fall.

By A. F. Hochwalt.

ALTHOUGH the season for spring puppy field trials has not yet closed, many of the handlers who will make the major fall circuit are already preparing to go into training.

Mack Pritchette, who was the leading winner with Derby dogs last season, is now in the Panhandle of Texas working out his prospects for next September. He has a good lot of puppies, it is reported, and he is hoping to bring out another Greymist, or Arkansas or White Cloth.

Mack Pritchette won the American Field Futurity two years in succession and the question is going the rounds, "Can he do it again this coming November?" Mack thinks he can; that is, if his prospects which now look like wonders, continue to show form.

The St. Louis Pointer and Setter Club, which was organized in the metropolis of the Show-Me State a few months ago, is creating a widespread attention among all field trials patrons. The club now has a membership of more than 300, mostly Missourians, but it is open to others also.

Trials Near St. Louis.

The club proposes to run fall trials somewhere in the vicinity of St. Louis in the fall, the opening date selected being Oct. 25. The club is an amateur organization, but it is going to put on a Derby and an all-age event that will be among the largest ever held in this country for amateur handlers, owners and their dogs.

One resolution adopted by the St. Louis Pointer and Setter Club that might well be looked into by other organizations is the movement to have all dogs owned by members of the organization tattooed with some kind of identification mark. In the event that the dog is lost or stolen it will, therefore, be an easy matter to recognize the animal, no matter where he may be. The clus has also ruled that dog thieves will be prosecuted through the organization, the funds for this purpose to be drawn from the treasury.

One thing most dog owners have to contend with in cities is the loss of their dogs. This ruling by the St. Louis fanciers is intended to offset the dog-stealing evil. Eventually clubs in other cities are sure to adopt it.

LOCKE BREAKS WORLD'S RECORD FOR 220

Missouri. Ross, who already had a mile under his belt, finished strong to win the eight-eighty, Roberts being an easy second. The time was 2:01.

Weir, Nebraska hurdler, ran through a clean flight of barriers to win the highs. He had a slight lead over Fergason and Potts, the Missouri entries.

Richerson's heave of 47 feet, 9 5-8 inches went as a new stadium record in the shot put.

Lancaster of Missouri surprised Nebraska fans by beating out Wirsig and Rhodes in the pole vault and taking the measure of Stephens in the broad jump.

The summary.

RECORDS FALL AS HARTZ WINS 300-MILE RACE

vore of Altoona, Pa., at 150 miles.

Minor mishaps blasted the chances of De Paolo, McDonogh and Devore, all three of whom held the lead at various times, and figured with Hartz as the outstanding contenders most of the way. Two tire blowouts robbed McDonogh of prospective victory, the first mishap coming after he had raced the field dizzy for the first 75 miles and the second at the 250-mile mark after McDonogh had picked up lost ground and jumped back into the lead.

At this juncture De Paolo swept to the front, closely followed by Hartz, who had stayed close to the champion from the start, neither being compelled to stop. With only five laps to go, however, De Paolo's motor went wrong for a lap. He got it back in running order without stopping, but while Hartz jumped into a which he maintained to the ish, crossing the line a full ahead of De Paolo.

Yankees Win 8th Straight by Beating Senators

Hoyt Pitches Well and New York Pounds Ruether—Score 4—1.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 1. — The Yankees cleaned up with the Senators today, carrying their winning run of games to eight straight, although outhit. The score was 4 to 1. They put on one of their famous rallies against Dutch Ruether in the first inning, scoring four runs on three hits, a pass and an error. A single by Meusel and a three-bagger by Dugan scored all the runs.

Flashy fielding behind Hoyt's steady pitching saved the day for the Yankees. Koenig and Lazzeri starred. Two double plays, one in the ninth which was followed by two hits, kept the Senators from the plate and a possible tie. The only run for Washington came on Ruether's single and S. Harris' three-bagger.

The largest crowd of the season, more than 40,000 saw the game.

Pirates Defeat Cincinnati, 3-2

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, May 1.—The winning streak of "Red" Lucas was ended today when the Pirates defeated the Reds, 3 to 2. Grantham's double in the seventh inning made the victory secure. He was sent in as pinch hitter for Morrison, drove Wright across with the winning run.

The Pirates fielded sensationally behind Morrison and Kremer. Stupid base running by the visitors spoiled an opportunity of tying the score in the eighth. Hargrave opened with a drive to deep center, but loafed and only got a single. Bohne ran for him. Lucas was robbed of a hit when Barnhardt backed against the score board for his terrific wallop. Bohne, who rounded second, missed the bag and was called out.

WHITE SOX HAMMER CLEVELAND PITCHERS, WIN IN NINTH, 9 TO 6

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, O., May 1. — The Chicago White Sox rallied in the ninth and with a four-run raid, defeated the Cleveland Indians, 9 to 6, and made it three straight over the Tribe. The Sox drove Shaute from the mound in the third inning and then made it too hot for Uhle in the ninth. Sherry Smith then went to the hill and was hammered hard.

The White Sox used a total of 18 players in winning the game, four of whom were pitchers. Faber was driven off the hill in the second, but Connally, Steengraf and Thomas held the Indians safe the rest of the way.

FIVE RECORDS SHATTERED AT COLUMBIA, MO.

Clayton Ties for Fifth Place and Principia Takes Fouth in Special Group, Central High, Kansas City, First.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 1.—Webster Groves took fourth place in Class A Division of the University of Missouri interscholastic here today, while Clayton tied for fifth. Principia was fourth in the special classification.

Central High School of Kansas City won the Class A Division with a total of 29¾ points. Westport of Kansas City was second with 23 3-4 points and Northeast, Kansas City third with 18.

Five State records were broken in Class A Division.

Kennett, with 22 points, won the Class B Division. Maysville finished second with 18 points and Louisiana, third, with 16½ points.

Boyd, Louisiana, broke the State record in the shot put when he hurled the iron ball 45 feet, 11½ inches. The old record was 45 feet, 4¾ inches.

Kemper Military Academy of Boonville easily won the special class meet for Military Academies and Junior colleges with a total of 47 points. Lexington won second place with 30 points and Junior College, Kansas City, finished third with 15½ points.

More than 250 contestants from schools in all sections of the State participated in the events.

New records established today in Class A division were:

120-yard high hurdles—Mac Wyland, Central, Kansas City, Time 15 seconds. Shot put—Haggard, Sweet Springs. Distance 48 feet, 11½ inches. Javelin—Van Winkle, Marshall. Distance 153 feet, 10 inches. 880-yard relay—Westport, Kansas City. Time 132 1-5. Discus—Haggard, Sweet Springs. Distance 120 feet, 7½ inches.

New records in Class B:

Shot put—Boyd, Louisiana. Distance 45 feet, 11½ inches.

New records in the Special Class: 120-yard high hurdles—George, Kemper. Time 16.1 seconds. High jump—Hancock, Kemper. Height 5 feet, 8 5-8 inches. Shot put—George, Kemper. Distance 46 feet, 2 inches. 880-yard relay—Kemper. Time, 1:31 4-5.

Four State records were tied. They were:

100-yard dash—Class A:—Willett, Westport; Class B:—Rice, Kennett; Special:—Lambert, Kemper. All ran the century race in 9 seconds flat. Schuette of Jackson, running in Class B, tied the state record in the 880-yard dash with 2:04.

Other teams which placed in the events today and their points were:

Class A:—Webster Groves 8¼; Moberly and Clayton tied with 6 4-4; Carrollton, Marshall and Nevada tied with 5 points each; Columbia 4; Fulton 3¾; Kirksville, Lexington, St. Joseph Central, Bellflower and Cabool tied with 3 each; Chillicothe, Macon and St. Charles tied with one each.

Class B:—Jackson 16; Ridgeway 14; Mt. Vernon 10; Rolla, Albany and St. Clair tied with 8 each; Warrensburg and California tied with 6 each; Mound City 3; Bellflower 2½; Pacific and Washington tied with 2 each; Craig, Brunswick, Monroe City and Farmers High School of Warrensburg tied with one each.

Mild weather and a fast field made conditions ideal for the meet, which was the largest and most exciting in the history of the State according to C. L. Brewer, director of Athletics at the University of Missouri. Although it was the twenty-third annual State tournament, the meet today was the first to be held under the newly organized Missouri State High School Athletic Association. The events were held under the auspices of the State Association and State University.

Steadman and Butch to Meet Wednesday Night

Youngster Is Conceded Good Chance to Win Local Ring Title.

A program of four professional bouts, calling for 32 rounds of action, has been arranged by matchmakers Cook and Britton of the Business Men's A. C., for a boxing show to be held Wednesday night at the First Regiment Armory. The card will feature featherweight and flyweight punchers in a pair of 10-round contests carded as a double windup.

George Butch will defend his claim to city championship honors against Paul Steadman in the featherweight headliner, while Mike Sansone, former Western A. A. U. titleholder, meets Don Carson of Indianapolis Ind., in the flyweight feature. Two 6-round preliim events round out the card.

The curtain raiser brings together Lou Terry, South Side kayo artist, and Buddy Schlereth, both recent graduates of the amateur ranks, in a featherweight match. Frank Krall, former Western A. A. U. lightweight champion, meets Billy Frehl in a welterweight event billed as the second prelim. Frehl a native St. Louisan, recently returned home after four years of service in the Navy. At the time he left the service he was one of the leading boxers of the Pacific fleet.

Steadman a Comer.

One of the most interesting bouts of the season is anticipated when Butch and Steadman swing into action as Butch is determined to retain the city championship laurels he has held for the past two years while Steadman, whose record for the last 10 months stamps him as a promising pugilistic candidate, will be in line for bouts of national importance if he wins.

The impressive showing made by Butch in his 12-round battle with Charley "Phil" Rosenberg, the bantamweight titleholder, at POMPEY, W. R. Coe's Sun Briar colt and representative of the East, again took the favorite's post in the future betting on the Kentucky Derby, as reflected in local turf exchanges yesterday.

Following the running of the Wood Stakes, in which Pompey showed gameness in coming from behind to win, his quotation fell to 3 to 1.

This left Bubbling Over, the Western hope, second choice at 4 to 1. These two had been on even terms for several days.

Pompey's mile in 1:38 and his 76 yards additional in 1:42, was considered an excellent indication of his fitness.

The Bradley Stable horses are all being heavily played on the theory that Bradley's performers are on the ground and in fine condition. Besides Bubbling Over, Bagenbaggage and Boot to Boot are considered as likely to represent the Idle Hour interests.

Youngstown, O., last Friday night, indicates the local ace is again in top shape after the lay-off he was compelled to take last month when an infection of the jaw compelled him to postpone the date on which he was originally slated to oppose Steadman.

Steadman's record for the past few months includes a popular verdict over Johnny "Peewee" Kaiser in an exhibition joust at the Racquet Club, and decisions over Ray Alfano at Benld, Ill., Nick Oliva at Peoria, Ill., and Jack Stacey at Jefferson City, Mo. In local bouts Steadman has outpointed Eddie Goldberg and has knocked out Tommy Noble, Joe Meek and Pete Pauley.

Mike Sansone will evidently face a tough and experienced opponent in his match with Carson, for the Indianapolis boxer's record includes 10-round bouts of the no-decision variety with such famed glove artists as Bushy Graham and Corporal Izzy Schwartz.

In his last start Sansone scored a kayo victory over Frankie Gallagher of New York, in a match at Benld, Ill. The local midget has chalked up point victories over Jimmy Russo, Chuck Geary and Essie Rey and lost on points to Lew Perfetti in 10-round bouts.

Sunday School Season Opened

Twenty-Eight Teams Engage in Opening Games in Parks.

Twenty-eight teams engaged in the opening day games of the Sunday School League baseball season in the public parks yesterday afternoon. Bethel Mission, the champion senior team of last season, showed evidence of real hitting in beating Shaw Avenue, 23 to 5.

In almost every game the winners ran up big scores. The outstanding individual performance of the day was turned in by Garshoffer, the Cote Brilliante pitcher who connected for four home runs. Two of his homers were hit with the bases loaded.

The score:

Central Wins And Now Leads With Roosevelt

Defeats Soldan, 13 to 12; Beaumont Is Easy Victor Over Cleveland, 11 to 6.

Central went into a tie with Roosevelt for the lead in the City High School League baseball race by defeating Soldan, 13 to 12, yesterday afternoon on the Cleveland High School field. In the second game of the afternoon doubleheader, "Lefty" Grant subdued the Cleveland nine, enabling Beaumont to win, 11 to 6.

Although bleachers were promised the fans for yesterday's game, there apparently had been no effort made to fulfill the obligation, for the fans as usual were lined up almost on the playing field. As has been the case in previous encounters, Marty Byrnes, the umpire, had to stop the games several times to shoo away spectators, who crowded too close to the foul lines.

Soldan out-hit Central 12 hits to 10, and had a greater number of total bases, 20 as compared with 12. Included among Soldan's 12 hits were a single, triple and home run by Koch.

Grant the Big Noise.

Of the second game there is nothing to relate, since Beaumont slammed offerings of the trio of Cleveland pitchers to all parts of the field. Added to that was the superb pitching of Capt. Grant, who let down only when his mates had a commanding lead.

Grant also destroyed a bit of Cleveland strategy in the second inning. It happening in this way: With two down and a Beaumont player on second base, Vogt walked Beasley to get at Grant. Grant hit the second ball pitched for a ringing triple down the third base line, thus causing the exodus of Vogt. Doyle, who relieved Vogt fared little better as did Hoehn, who later tried his hand at hurling.

COE WILL HAVE TWO STARTERS IN DERBY; DAY OF REST AT TRACK

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 1.—Kentucky Derby candidates here rested from their strenuous training today while horsemen went to Lexington to witness the Centennial Futurity, a new fixture commemorating the one-hundredth anniversary of horse racing in the Blue Grass State.

Of the Derby horses here, Smiling Gus and Bolton, "Boots" Durnell's pair, were the only ones to get a mile workout today. They went together, stepping the distance in 1:46 2-5, handily. Royal Omar breezed a half in :49 and Prince of Wales, E. B. McLean's Derby entry, in company with The Engineer, galloped three-quarters in 1:14 3-5.

W. R. Coe, owner of Pompey, informed the management at Churchill Downs that it is probable he will have an entry in the Derby in Pompey and Black Maria and that it is his present intention to start both the colt and the filly in the race May 15.

Bubbling Over and Bird Behave, two of E. R. Bradley's eight Derby nominees, were on the track at Lexington today, the former working a mile and an eighth in 1:54 2-5 and the latter breezing three-quarters in 1:17 3-5.

Steinway pulled up after a half-mile run in :50 3-5. Gaberdine went a mile handily in 1:41 and Alleghan required the same time for a mile breeze. Champ De Stars was given a driving three-quarter-mile blowout and clockers caught him in 1:12 2-5.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Just What Is Wrong?

ON the face of things one of the greatest struggles in the history of the world's oldest sport—wrestling—was held in this city last Thursday night. A world's champion and challenger struggled until 3:12 in the morning, five hours, and the bout ended in a sensational manner.

But—

The Associated Press, in its combined night and ensuing day dispatches, carried a total of 290 words about it!

Several Chicago and metropolitan papers confined their reports of the match to the A. P. estimate.

No requests were made of the service wires for any completer story.

This seems to mean that the country at large took no interest in the match as a championship or even as a wrestling CONTEST; and it implies that a serious distrust of the integrity of this game is widespread throughout the country.

More of the Same.

IN addition to this evidence of apathy we note that there were no ringside telegraph wires at the Coliseum nor did local or out-of-town papers requestt them.

There were practically no demands for special stories of the event from other cities. There were no requests for preliminary gossip stories about the training of the men or their condition; and there were no signed stories by the principals telling how they viewed in advance their prospective struggle for world's honors such as invariably are sought, in real title events, in other sports.

There was no flocking of out-of-town special trains to bring spectators here and there was none of the high-keyed conversation, backed up by hat-betting and petty speculation that invariably attend sporting events of national interest.

It is hard to avoid the conclusion from all this that in the minds of the public all is not well with this great sport.

THERE can be found wrestling authorities who believe the match held Thursday night was just an exhibition. There can be found others who attended it who praise it to the sies as one of the greatest contests of all time.

They offset each other and neither, therefore, has much weight. But the silent accusation of the men who judge news values means something. Almost unanimously throughout the n

GENERAL HALDEMAN WINS CENTENNIAL FUTURITY AT LEXINGTO

VICTOR CLOSE TO RECORD IN $11,411 STAKE

Kenton Stable's Good Two-Year-Old Outgames Accomplish in Drive and Wins Going Away.

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON RACE TRACK, May 1.—The first Centennial Futurity for 2-year-olds was run here today and Kenton Farm Stable's General Haldeman won by a length from Accomplish, with Thirteen Sixty two lengths behind. Torchilla pulled up and finished last.

Gen. Haldeman and Accomplish ran to the front and raced as a team to the last eighth, where Gen. Haldeman drew away under a hard drive.

The value to the winner was $11,411. The time for the 4½ furlongs was :53 4-5, only one-fifth second behind the track record.

General Haldeman paid $6, $4 and $3 on each $2 mutuel ticket to win, place and show. Accomplish paid $5 and $3.60 and Thirteen Sixty $2.80.

TRITON WINS FEATURE RACE AT PIMLICO, PAYS $46.90 FOR $2

By the Associated Press.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., May 1.—Mrs. Walter M. Jefford's Triton won the $5000 Pimlico Nursery, fifth and feature race of the opening spring meet here today. Red Rocket was second and Northland third. Time for the four and a half furlongs was :54 3-5.

The field was closely bunched entering the home stretch, where Triton and Red Rocket ran neck and neck. Triton winning by a nose.

Triton paid his backers $46.90 to win for $2 mutuel tickets.

Labrador, owned by Marshall Field, won the $5000 Green Spring Valley Steeplechase Stake, first race on the card. Barleycorn was second and Fleetwood third. Time for the two-mile course was 3:48 3-5. Labrador took the lead from the barrier and was never headed, winning by three lengths. Upsal fell.

Upsal	157	1	2	3ns	3ns	3ns	Fell		R. H. Crawford	2.10

Labrador outran his field from the start and Cheyne sent him into a commanding lead first turn of the field. He always held Barleycorn safe and stalled off couple of challenges from latter. Barleycorn could never get to the leader. Byers was busy on him most of the trip and made couple of unsuccessful attempts to go to the front. Upsal raced under restraint, until last turn of the field. He moved up on the outside with a rush when called on and looked to have the race at his mercy when he fell at the last fence. Was on almost even terms with winner when mishap occurred. Fleetwood went down behind at seventh fence.

Scratched—Dunks Green, Saint Patgerais.

SECOND RACE—$1500. The Interrogative, 2-year-old maidens, four furlongs. Start good; won easily, place driving; went to post at 3:05; off 3:09. Winner blk. or br. f. by Meridian-Dignity, trained by J. W. Healy. Owner J. A. Buchanan. Value to winners, $1000, $300, $200. Time, :23, 48 1-5.

*Field.

Highwayman trailed the pacemaker until straightened out in homestretch, where he moved up with a rush and easily disposed of opposition in the last furlong. Martingale broke fast and after assuming an easy lead in run to first turn was rated in front. He collapsed when Highwayman challenged. Lady Bountiful, in a jam soon after the break, worked her way around and was trailer rounding turn into stretch. She closed a big gap and finished fast. Clear view met with no mishaps. Mutuels paid: Highwayman, $30, $9.90, $5.40; Martingale, $4, $2.90; Lady Bountiful, $3.

FOURTH RACE—$1500, Ashburton Purse, 3-year-olds, six furlongs: Start good; won easily; place driving. Went to post, 4:11; off at 4:12. Winner bh. c. by Max Ward-Tracer, trained by H. Conway. Owner, Glen Riddle Farm. Value to winners, $1000, $300, $200. Time, :22 4-5, :46, 1:12 2-5.

TWO MORE DERBY HORSES, MANTONIAN AND ERIC, INJURED

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 1.—Injury, the grief maker for trainers, is taking its toll from among the Kentucky Derby nominees and only by one the eligibles are dropping from the list of possible starters on the $50,000 added race on May 15.

Another of Chicago's hopes, Mantonian, owned by H. Archibald Teller, has followed Chicago, F. W. Grabner's "runningest" horse into doubtful ground. Mantonian, who has been an "also ran" in a couple of races at Lexington, was finished upon after his last race and cut deeply in one of his hind legs. As a result, this son of the celebrated French sire, Maintenon, is not expected to be among the Derby starters.

Eric, owned by C. W. Whitehouse of Cincinnati, pulled up sore in his last workout at Lexington and, according to his trainer, Lou Johnson, will not start in the Derby.

While it is true trainers or owners may declare horses "out" at any time, turfmen pointed out today there was nothing official about it insofar as the Kentucky Jockey Club is concerned.

Louisville Derby Workouts.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 1.—The following Derby workouts were made here today:

Smiling Gus, mile, 1:46 2-5.

Bolton, mile, 1:46 3-5.

Royal Omar breezed a half, 1:49.

Prince of Wales, three-quarters, 1:14 3-5.

Jimmy Quinn, five-eighths, 1:40 2-5.

PROFIT ON BASKETBALL FOR FOURTH STRAIGHT SEASON AT KANSAS U.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAWRENCE, Kan., May 1.—For the fourth straight year basketball showed itself to be a paying sport at the University of Kansas, figures just announced for the 1926 season disclose.

A net profit of $4136.05 was made on the court game in the season just closed. It has been announced by the K. U. athletic office. This, however, is $1172.70 less than the net for basketball last year. However, the lessened profit does not mean a lessened interest and attendance at the game, for this year Kansas played 18 conference games and could not play the annual Kansas City Athletic Club of Hillyard games, which alone brought 14,000 attendance to swell the receipts in 1925.

The total attendance at the nine home games this year was 22,900, and the estimated attendance at the nine games away from home was 25,900, making a total attendance before which Kansas played in 1926 of 48,729. This attendance is also slightly below that of 1925, due to the absence of the big crowds at the club games in Kansas City and St. Joseph, which were minus on this season's schedule.

The total basketball receipts this year were $12,677.35, and the expenses, including share of visiting teams, $8136.05.

The greater attendance away from home than at home is due entirely to field houses at some of the other valley schools, while the capacity at games here is slightly less, than 3000.

EXINGTON MUNY PITCHER STARTS OFF SEASON WITH A ONE-HIT CONTEST

5 Jockeys Are Barred, 7 Other Put on Probation

Kentucky Racing Associati Follows Up Its Attack on "Jockeys' Ring."

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Ky., May 1. Five jockeys were refused licens two applications were tabled a seven other riders were grant probationary licenses by the Ke tucky Racing Commission, the r port of its license committe made public today, disclosed.

Three jockeys and four owne had been barred on March 20 a result of disclosure of an alle "jockey ring." Jockey D. Merg whose confessions resulted in th breaking up of the ring, was r instated today. He and Joe Mooney had been ruled off f fall.

The jockeys who were refus licenses were Danny Connel Willie Fronk, Walter Taylo Henry King and Walter Lilly The applications of H. Lunsfo and S. McGraw were tabled.

Mack Garner on Probation.

Probationary licenses w granted to Mack Garner, E. Pa E. Scoble, J. Kederis, J. H. Bur J. Heupel and N. Barrett. T stewards were directed to not the jockeys that any derelictio or misconduct, such as intoxic tion, negligence in reporting to engagements or absence from s saddle for an indefinite period result in their licenses being t minated.

The denial of licenses in m cases, it is believed, resulted fro an investigation conducted dur the past winter by a represent tive of the racing commission o an alleged "jockey ring" that, a cording to Mergler's confessi operated on Kentucky tracks l season. The others were refu licenses for various infractions the rules.

WAGNER STAR, LOSER, STRIKES OUT 12 MEN

11 Leagues Opened Yesterday, 16 More Will Get Into Action This Afternoon.

One of the newly admitted circuits the Wagner Electric League, opened in the best game in the Municipal Baseball Association opening yesterday. The majority of the others were featured by frequent bobbles, slugging sprees and general looseness of play.

Loser of the Motor team in the Wagner loop hurled a one-hit game against the Ignition squad, but lost over only two bases on balls and fanned 12 batters and won his game, 3 to 2. A two-run rally in the final frame won for him. Hill of the Ignitions likewise pitched stellar ball, allowing only five hits and striking out 15 batters.

16 Begin Today.

The two-day inaugural program which began yesterday with the opening of play in 11 leagues, will be capped off today with the initial games of 16 more circuits. The twenty-eighth league, the Polish Alliance, will start next Sunday.

More than 190 teams are engaged in play under the supervision of the Department of Recreation, as compared with 160 last year. Only 26 leagues were members ofthe Municipal Baseball Association last season, as opposed to 29 this year. The Independent League will come in for its share of interest in the Sunday leagues. Two new teams, the Morgans and the Glascos, have been added, the latter being last year's runners-up in the Empire League. The Glascos have added two strong hurlers, Roth and Crandall, to their pitching staff and are set for a good race. Roth formerly was with Moline (Ill.) and Crandall pitched for the Meletios last season. The Shells won the Independent pennant last year.

In the Empire League, the new Typo squad will be watched with interest. Pointing for the national Typo tourney, which will be held at Washington University next August, the printers have bolstered up their roster with the addition of a pair of pitchers. They are Judson Urie, who pitched the Chicago Typos to victory over the locals at Washington, D. C., last year, and F. Hines, a former Three-I League flinger.

HORNSBY'S ASSETS

Bases full and two outs in the ninth inning. Pitcher commits a balk and umpire orders batter to first, forcing in the winning run. Was the umpire right in this case? —J. J. B.

The umpire was wrong in sending the batter to first base, but the run counts, as all base runners are entitled to advance on a balk.

Two out and three on base. Catcher muffs the third strike. Is the batter out? Can the runner on third be forced out at home?—PITCHER.

The batter is not out unless touched with the ball or thrown out at first. The runner may be forced out at home.

Two men on base. Batter hits a triple but fails to touch second base and is retired by relaying the ball back to second. It was the third out. Do the runs count?—M. E.

If the men scored before the ball was relayed back to second, their runs count. Otherwise they do not.

PHIL KAPLAN AND ITALIAN JOE GANS ON STRAUS' 'GET-AWAY' CA

SCHEDULED TO MEET MAY 11 AT COLISEUM

Bout Will Be Last Indoor Show of Season; Promoter Plans Outdoor Attractions for Summer Period.

Matchmaker Gene Straus will close his indoor fistic ventures for the season with a 10-round middleweight bout between K. O. Phil Kaplan of New York, and Italian Joe Gans, Brooklyn fighter, as the main attraction at the New Coliseum, May 11, he announced yesterday.

Straus will not resume his indoor operations until next fall, but plans to stage several outdoor shows during the summer if a suitable arena can be found. He is dickering with a number of contenders in the fight world and will probably hold his first hot weather exhibition in the early part of July.

Kaplan a Clever Boxer.

The Kaplan-Gans affair promises to be an interesting event. Kaplan appeared here about two months ago against Babe McCorgary and handed his opponent a severe lacing for ten rounds, winning the decision. Kaplan exhibited a terrific left-hand punch which had his opponent's corpuscles trickling before the close of the second round and was master of ceremonies for the major part of the conflict.

The local boxing commission has inspected the signed contracts of the participants and put the official O. K. on them, instructing Straus to proceed with the event.

Italian Joe Gans got into print recently at Wilkesbarre (Pa.) when he punished Tiger Flowers so severely that Flowers' scheduled match with Harry Greb at Madison Square Garden had to be postponed. Gans injured the deacon in several places, a cut over the eye causing the most damage.

Gans Veteran of 200 Scraps.

Gans is a veteran of some 200 battles, having won decisions over his two namesakes, Allentown Joe Gans and Panama Joe Gans, in addition to a whole list of battlers, including Augie Ratner, Joe Egan, Henry Malcor, Butch O'Hagan, Mike O'Dowd and Ted Lewis of England. He has drawn with Ted Moore, Pete Latzo and Larry Estridge and only recently dropped a close decision to Jack Delaney.

Kaplan has not been active since his McCorgary bout here. In his only fight he polished off Sam McVey, Negro boxer of Hoboken. Both he and Gans will be in town five days ahead of the bout and will workout at the National A. C.

Thirty rounds of preliminaries will be added to the card.

"Tad" Dorgan's Story of Joe Grim, The Greatest Shock Absorber of All

"Iron Man" Was Knocked to Floor 18 Times in Six Rounds in Bout With Jack Johnson in 1905.

No. IV—Grim vs Jack Johnson

A memorable fight of 21 years ago was that between Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion of the world, and Joe Grim, the "iron man," of Philadelphia.

Johnson pummeled Grim for six rounds, knocking him down 18 times, but could not land the knockout wallop. In the last round Grim was down for the count of eight when the bell clanged ending the battle. The fight was held at the National A. C., Philadelphia, on July 24, 1905.

Grim, the sturdy Italian, had faced the greatest men in the world without being counted out. When he met Johnson it looked as if he had met his Waterloo. He was down for the tenth time in the sixth round and lay there writhing in pain, hundreds around the ring, hatless and coatless, yelling like mad, his seconds running around throwing water and begging him to get up. The referee counted eight just as the bell sounded and saved Grim from what looked to be certain defeat. He stayed the limit with the giant black man, but every speck of gameness was brought into play to land him on his feet.

It was a sight that one seldom sees and one that will linger long in the memory of those present. Grim had fought gamely for five rounds; he took terrific lefts on the body, nose and mouth without flinching, and went to his corner round after round looking more like a hamburger steak than a human being. He came up smiling for the sixth, and as he shook hands with his powerful opponent said: "Joe Grim is still here, and you can't put him out."

Nine Knockdowns in Round.

Big Johnson, looming up like a mountain of ebony, smiled, but back of the smile was a desire to get action out of the Italian wonder. As they squared off the big black giant rushed and drove a crushing right on Grim's jaw. Joe's head rolled back, he went down slowly and then rolled over on his back. The crowd howled and howled as Referee McGuigan counted, but Grim gamely arose, only to be crushed again. Nine different times he had gone to the floor in that round from the pile-driving smashes of the giant Negro, and as he rolled over from the last one every man in the house thought that his time had come. Grim had been beaten almost to a pulp in this round and as he stopped the last uppercut on his jaw and rolled over on his back without the slightest sign of life it did really look as if he was out for good.

He fell over on his back, his head almost out of the ring, and there he lay, the referee getting closer to the fatal ten and the excitement getting wilder and wilder just as the gong came to his rescue. Four seconds carried the disabled fighter to his corner, where he was worked on until he came to, and then he got up smiling, looked for Johnson and shook hands with him. Johnson's eyes were sticking out and he was as rattled as any man in the house, seeing how near he had come to putting the Iron Italian down for the limit.

Johnson's seconds were as happy as a bunch of minstrel men, and as they cut the gloves from their man's hands laughed and hollered across to Grim's seconds. Johnson was telling them that if the fight had been just a minute longer he would have had the Italian out for good. He caught him right with the last punch and Joe's eyes rolled, his legs lost their strength and he fell like a log in a pile of hot tar. If Joe Grim ever had a narrow escape before he surely had another this night.

Named Athletic Director.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., May 1.—Allan Dunaway of Conway, for the past two years assistant coach here, has been named to succeed Foy H. Hammons as director of athletics at Pine Bluff High School. Hammons resigned to accept a position as coach at Ouachita College at Arkadelphia. Dunaway came to Pine Bluff from Magnolia, where has was athletic coach at the high school.

2 Games to End Billiken Season

Series With Concordia Will Decide Local Collegiate Championship.

St. Louis University will close its baseball season with two games against Concordia Seminary this week at St. Louis U. field, on Tuesday and Friday. The series will decide the local collegiate championship, as Washington U. has no team this year.

Among those who will be playing their last games in Billiken uniforms will be Tom Stanton, veteran all-around athlete; Al Kapl, who has won letters in all sports and has been named to the Honor Society; Paul Levis, football and baseball star; Rippstein, varsity halfback and outfielder, and Henry Hurd, three-sport man.

The season will be Coach Dan Savage's valedictory. Last year his ball team was undefeated and this year he beat Wisconsin, St. Viator, McKendree and De Paul and dropped games to St. Viator and Iowa.

Bike Riders In Six-Hour Endurance Test

15 Teams Entered in Boys' Week Event Over Park Course.

Fifteen two-men teams of bicycle riders, in celebration of Boy's Week, were scheduled to start their six-hour endurance race over a course in Forest Park at 6 o'clock this morning under Guaranty Cycling Club auspices. The event will end at noon.

Intervals are planned for 9 and 11 o'clock during which the racers will compete for sprint prizes in the form of gold watches and loving cups. The course is the same as was used last year in the National Championship races. It is just southeast of Jefferson Memorial near Deer Lake.

The team of Richard Suever, local junior champ, and Charley Mack, who qualified in the Olympic trials in 1924, is the favorite but will have to go hard to beat such combinations as that of Ed Duley and Olin Bechtel and the team of James McElroy and Everett Gordon.

The teams:

1. Wm. Sexton—Don. Rehm, Pierce team
2. Charley Mack—R. Suever, St. Louis team.
3. Jas. McElroy—E. Gordon, Sheik team.
4. P. Boyle—Tom Neal, Jennings team.
5. Joe Winston—E. Lubler, Western Union team.
6. O. Bechtel—Ed Duley, Show Me team.
7. Cherokeian—R. Wilson, Armenian-American team
8. H.Ross—J. Cody, Western team.
9. O. Leidrich—M. Wilhelm, Southside team.
10. C. Hill—E. Willman, Sparkplug team.
11. J. Dellahunt—W. Harrison, Century team.
12. Paul Tyner—Jerry Paterson, Andy Gump team.
13. J. Vickers—C. Pelham, Irish team.
14. Hy. Beelmann—John Wolf, Belleville team.
15. Elmer Miller—H. Kraft, All-American team.

CANADIAN SOCCER TEAMS TO OPPOSE U. S. CLUBS IN SERIES

TORONTO, Ontario, May 1.—The Dominion of Canada Football Association has sanctioned an international cup series between four clubs of the American Soccer League and Carsteel and Scottish of Montreal and Ulster United and Toronto City of Toronto.

This competition will take the place of the proposed international soccer league, which was opposed by American League clubs. The United States clubs believed that the International League schedule would decrease attendance at their regular games and a cup series was considered the best way out of the difficulty.

SOLDAN JUNIORS ARE TRACK MEET VICTORS

The junior track team of Soldan High School easily defeated the Principia Academy juniors, 75 to 8, in a dual meet at Taylor Field yesterday morning. Coach Plag's athletes captured first place in each of the 10 events on the program.

Campbell of Soldan scored 10 points for the winners. He won the 880-yard run and the shot put events. Weil scored 4 points, Niehaus 3, and Burbach 1 for the total of 8 counted by the Principia juniors.

Putting the Brakes on Federal Trade Commission After It Had Started to Make Big Business Behave

Those Who Admit Violation of Antitrust Laws Protected From Prosecution and Firms Guilty of Dishonest or Unfair Practices Shielded From Publicity Since Three Members of Original Board Retired and Their Places Taken by Men Not in Sympathy With Rules of Predecessors—Things Accomplished in the Past and Cases Covered Up by New Regime.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 1.

*"The Federal Trade Commission, if not deliberately packed by Calvin Coolidge, has certainly been reconstructed by him in a manner to insure protection for the trusts and corporations which are crushing legitimate competition in this country. * * * It would be better to have no Federal Trade Commission than to have one controlled by the very forces which it was created to regulate. Unless its present personnel is changed I am in favor of wiping it out of existence."*

—Senator William H. King, of Utah.

THIS sensational accusation, recently made on the floor of the Senate by a Democrat, was promptly reiterated by a Republican, Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska. It came immediately after similar charges had been made against the President in the Senate in connection with appointments to the United States Tariff Commission. Those charges are now being investigated by a special committee.

Both, in fact, are items in the general and sweeping accusation which Western Senators of both parties have repeatedly aimed at the President; namely, that he has packed the great Federal regulatory bodies with men who are either friendly to, or controlled by, the interests they are supposed to curb and regulate.

The importance of getting at the truth or falsity of the charges is tremendous. Perhaps the public generally does not comprehend their gravity. It can be appreciated instantly, however, by merely reflecting that the cost of every loaf of bread, every stick of furniture, every day's rent, every stitch of clothing and every mile of transportation is to a considerable extent fixed by the actions of the great Federal boards and commissions.

In the last few years their activity and importance have increased enormously. Some of them have thousands of employes. It is doubtful, for example, if a single department in the Cabinet exercises as much influence upon the daily lives and purses of citizens as does the Interstate Commerce Commission. The freight rates fixed by that body, the opinions on the tariff held by the Tariff Commission, and the measures taken by the Federal Trade Commission to curb unfair trade practices, largely determine the cost of the necessaries of life in this republic.

What the Commission Means to Consumers.

The members of all these commissions are appointed by the President. It is a tremendous power. It is one of the powers which make the President of the United States the most powerful ruler in the world today.

The Federal Trade Commission was created by act of Congress in 1914. It supplanted the Bureau of Corporations which President Roosevelt had established during his "trust-busting" campaign, to collect and publish facts showing the growth of trusts and monopolies. But the commission was given far greater powers and more numerous duties than were possessed by the old bureau.

Its function, in the language of the act, was "to restrain unfair methods of competition in commerce." The Sherman Act had outlawed such methods as resulted in combinations in restraint of trade. Certain unfair methods had been defined by the Clayton Act. The Federal Trade Commission Act prohibited all unfair methods, leaving it to the commission to determine what methods were unfair, subject always to review by the courts.

Hence it will be seen that the commission had jurisdiction to deal with the practices covered by the Sherman and Clayton Acts as well as with all others which it might consider unfair. Congress' object was not merely to protect little men from the big fellows who were ready to gobble them, it purported also to protect the public from fraud and misrepresentation and to protect honest business from underhanded competition. In a word, to purge business of shady methods.

Spread of Evils In Business World.

Aside from the overshadowing menace of trust formation and monopoly control, there were many lesser, but not less poisonous evils, often leading up to monopoly, which the commission was authorized to investigate and prevent. Among these were the misbranding of goods, false and misleading advertising, short weight, theft of trade secrets and customers' names, bribery of competitors' employes, boycotting, systematic slandering of competitors and their products, substitution of fakes for genuine articles, and many other mean and vicious practices.

The commission was invested with authority to investigate complaints and expose unfair practices. It was empowered to issue orders to "cease and desist." It was given no power to punish, save through publicity and exposure. But it was instructed, when it came into possession of evidence showing "unlawful" (as distinguished from "unfair") practices, to transmit that evidence to the prosecuting arm of the Government—the Department of Justice.

Only business men, and those who have investigated business, realize to what extent commerce has been poisoned in recent years by unfair practices. A few business crooks with aggressiveness and force in a few years can pollute an entire industry unless drastic measures are taken against them. Some business men who have always dealt fairly with each other and with the public find themselves compelled to adopt questionable practices or be forced out by the competition.

The following seems almost incredible, yet it is a matter of record: Certain large industries, disgusted with the evil practices into which they had fallen, actually have called upon the commission, through accredited representatives, to rescue them from their own rottenness. The majority of those in the industries wanted to go straight, but none was willing to trust all the others. So they all joined in asking the commission to take a statement from them condemning the practices which had been in vogue, and promising to refrain from them in future, with the agreement that if they backslid the commission could use the statement against them. It was more than shocking; it was pathetic.

Commission Starts Off With Excellent Record.

During the early years of its existence, and, indeed, until little more than a year ago, the commission was energetic and active. Its searching investigation of the packing industry resulted in the act divorcing packing houses and stockyards. It caused the dissolution of the milk bottle trust. It ended "Pittsburg plus," that arbitrary device through which Western industry had been plundered of millions. It stopped the misbranding of cloth fabrics. It prevented a great merger of steel companies.

In addition to these activities on its own account, it conducted a number of important investigations in response to resolutions by the two Houses of Congress. The latter was significant. As the effectiveness of the commission developed, Congress showed an increasing disposition to delegate to this well-equipped, scientific, fact-finding organization, the duty of making investigations which had formerly been undertaken by congressional committees—which, however able they might be, had no such machinery at their disposal as was possessed by the commission.

It was recognized in 1921 that the appointment of Harry Daugherty as Attorney-General of the United States meant the end of serious efforts to enforce the Sherman act. Daugherty himself as much as said so. He was sympathetic to big business and made no pretense to conceal it. Under him antitrust prosecutions either disappeared or became comatose. He was busy obtaining injunctions against labor unions.

Enter the First of The Conservatives.

But there was a curious fact: Notwithstanding the country had become suddenly conservative and had elected the most reactionary administration since Taft's; despite this administration's avowed intention to "leave business alone," business was not let alone. The reason was that the Harding administration had inherited a Federal Trade Commission whose five members were appointees of President Wilson, and some of whose terms had several years to run. It was the same commission which had investigated the packers, the steel trust, the milk bottle trust, the hosiery companies and the mail order houses, and it kept right on investigating.

The commission consists of five members, each appointed for a term of seven years, at a salary of $10,000 a year. The creating act provides that not more than three members can belong to the same political party. In short, it provides for a bipartisan personnel, with majority and minority representation. Naturally, under Wilson the commission had consisted of three Democrats and two Republicans.

Dominates Trade Commission

WILLIAM E. HUMPHREY.

A vacancy existed in June, 1922, due to the retirement of Commissioner Pollard. The remaining members were Victor Murdock and Nelson B. Gaskill, Republicans, and Huston Thompson and John F. Nugent, Democrats. Nominally, this was an even division, and the appointment of a Republican would give that party a majority. Actually, the division did not follow the party line.

Thompson was a Denver lawyer, who had played end for Princeton in 1895. By birth and training he was an aristocrat, but by inclination he was a liberal, and a regular fighting wildcat of a liberal, at that. Of precisely the same character was Nugent, a former Senator from Idaho, and full of Western progressivism. Murdock was the well-known Roosevelt Republican from Kansas, who left the party at the time of the Bull Moose revolt. Gaskill was a conservative Republican.

To the vacancy President Harding appointed Vernon Van Fleet, a lawyer of South Bend, Ind. To describe him it is only necessary to say that he had been the original "Harding-for-President man" in Indiana, that he was a member of the Daugherty organization which accomplished the nomination of Harding at Chicago, and that he was rewarded by being made an Assistant Attorney General under Daugherty in the Department of Justice, from which post he was elevated to the commission.

Nominally, as stated, the commission now had a Republican majority of three. Actually, it had a Progressive majority of three, consisting of Murdock, Thompson and Nugent, which was in favor of an aggressive antitrust policy and vigorously bent upon continuing the campaign to expose unfair trade practices and to block impending combinations and mergers that menaced competition.

It was in 1922, in obedience to a Senate resolution, that the commission began a comprehensive investigation of the cost of household furnishings and domestic appliances, which was later to involve, in a spectacular way, the Aluminum Co. of America, that vast monopoly controlled by Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, and his family. It was also about that time that it began an investigation of the cost of livestock feed, which was to involve Charles Beecher Warren, later nominated by President Coolidge for Attorney-General of the United States. In brief, the commission was still going strong.

Another New Member; Liberals Are Blocked.

Needless to say, the Daugherty, Falls, Smoots and other leaders of the administration whose slogan was to "let business alone," were perfectly furious that the otherwise placid landscape should be agitated by the vigorous burrowing and hearty war-whoops of this incorrigible body, but they could do nothing about it until a vacancy occurred.

That welcome day arrived in January, 1924, when Murdock announced that he intended to resign. The writer happens to know of the consternation the announcement caused in the Progressive camp in Washington. He knows of some of the desperate pleas which were addressed to Murdock to change his decision. Reaction was in full control of the Government. The Fordney-McCumber tarrif bill had been passed. Doheny and Sinclair had got Elk Hills and Teapot Dome. Daugherty had smashed the shopmen's strike. On this bleak and dreary scene the Progressives of both parties, the defenders of Little Business against Big Business, had been able to find but one bright spot—the liberal majority on the Federal Trade Commission.

Murdock was adamant. Himself a business man and wealthy, he declared that he was thoroughly disgusted with the ways into which business had fallen, and that he was heartily sick of the abuse which the commission had endured because of its efforts to correct them. He told the pleaders that life simply wasn't worth living in such a job, and he wouldn't hold it any longer.

He quit, and President Coolidge appointed in his place Charles W. Hunt of Iowa. Hunt had been a Farm Bureau official, and some liberalism might reasonably have been expected of him, but those responsible for the appointment undoubtedly knew their man. He proved to be a "regular" in every sense. Van Fleet became the dominating personality of the commission. Hunt immediately showed a disposition to go along with Van Fleet. Thompson and Nugent at last found themselves in the minority.

Policy of Hiding Evidence Begins.

Results were forthcoming. The activity of the commission diminished sharply. In January, 1925, for the first time in its history, the commission, by a vote of three to two, refused to grant to the Attorney-General access to evidence in possession of the commission which had been voluntarily delivered to it by the party under investigation unless the investigated party gave its express consent. It was declared that such evidence should be held confidential. And this, regardless of the fact that the evidence had not been obtained under any pledge of secrecy or confidence. In other words, if the commission received voluntary evidence from a corporation, and the Attorney-General wanted to examine that evidence to see whether a law had been violated, he would not be allowed to see it except with the consent of the corporation suspected of the violation.

The dissenting opinion delivered by Nugent and Thompson fairly bristled. They declared the ruling was "clearly in contravention of the law, which intends that the commission shall render the Attorney-General all possible aid in enforcing the antitrust acts," and that "it makes it impossible for the commission to perform what is its plain duty." Indeed, they said the ruling "places the commission in a position somewhat similar to that of an accessory after the fact in felony cases, when, having in its possession evidence of the offender's guilt, it denies the Attorney-General access to it, thereby in fact aiding the criminal to evade trial and escape punishment."

"It makes the commission a place of sanctuary and a haven of refuge for every corporation, association and company which violates the Sherman Act, and when investigated by the commission, delivers to it the incriminating evidence in its files," they said.

They raged in vain, and the worst shock was yet to come.

Gaskill's term had expired in September, 1924, and in March, 1925, President Coolidge appointed to succeed him former Congressman William E. Humphrey of Seattle. Even the callous city of Washington gasped.

In the House of Representatives Humphrey had distinguished himself by a hatred of all forms of Government regulation and by a

GERMAN-RUSSIAN TREATY A DISQUIETING DOCUMENT, DECLARES LLOYD-GEORGE

Peace Permeates It, But That Is Why Most of Europe Is Filled With Distrust, Former Premier Points Out—Too Many Reservations to League Pact Already Exist.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE
Former Premier of England.

LONDON, May 1.
(By Cable.)

THE Russo-Germanic treaty is causing much fluster and not a little alarm amongst the Locarnist nations. There is no use disguising the fact that it is a formidable document. Its actual phrasing is more ominous than the various disarming communiques, issued from Berlin before its publication, would have led us to expect.

For instance, there is a sentence at the beginning which dominates the agreement and indicates its spirit. It is the preamble which declares that the parties are inspired "by the conviction that the interest of the German people and of the people of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics demands that the co-operation between them shall be continuous and mutually trusting."

David Lloyd George

This is repeated and emphasized in Article 1 by the agreement to "remain in friendly touch with one another in order to promote an understanding, etc." The words are startling in their significance. No wonder that eyebrows are lifted pretty high and that shoulders are being jerked up violently.

The foolish maneuvers which brought the League of Nations into such contempt at the last meeting of the Assembly are directly responsible for the conclusion of this momentous treaty.

The negotiations had been dawling along in leisurely fashion for many months between Moscow and Berlin. But the more eager the former were for the arrangement, the more apathetic and indifferent became the latter. Locarno turned the face of Germany toward the West. Geneva swung it around sharply to the East.

Russian Leader Sees His Opportunity.

Chicherin is an able diplomat of the old school. What his views may be on economic questions I cannot tell. He never discussed them. Presumably he is a revolutionary. But on foreign affairs he is a product of the old Czarist regime. He has not only the training, the skill and the subtety of the old Russian diplomacy, but he has also its traditions. He was not the man to miss the opportunity opened by the follies of Geneva to inflict a diplomatic defeat on the enemies of the Soviet Government in Central and Western Europe.

When Germany was naturally sore with the insulting treatment accorded to her by the allied powers, Mr. Chicherin revived the languishing treaty negotiations and he has scored a great triumph at a time when both Russia and Germany stood sadly in need of it—Russia for economic and Germany for diplomatic reasons.

The official attitude of the great Powers towards this new pact is one of studied unconcern. It is true that "bustling little M. Benes of Czechoslovakia," as "The New Statesman" happily calls him, fussed around as usual—this time with an elaborate questionnaire which Germany rightly treated as an impertinence. But the Foreign Ministers of Britain, France and Italy have not, in public, so far displayed any undue excitement over this treaty. There were private explanations given by and perhaps asked of German Ambassadors. But they were couched in the tone of the friendly enquirer rather than in that of the anxious party whose interests were deeply affected. All the same, the European press reveals a deep sense of anxiety, mounting up to alarm as you reach the countries bordering on Russia.

Seems Harmless, but Precedents Are Ominous.

What accounts for the electric wave of apprehension that passed over Europe when it became known that Russia and Germany were negotiating a fresh treaty? What would be less harmful—nay, what could be more beneficent than this agreement? It is concluded between two Powers who were drawn into a terrible war that lasted for years by a quarrel between two other Powers in the merits of which they were not directly concerned. These two Powers have now entered into an agreement that henceforth they will preserve complete neutrality if one of them is unfortunately drawn into conflict with a third power.

On the face of it, the agreement is a fresh guarantee of peace. That is the very reason why Europe distrusts it. All these pacts which have, in the past, provoked war, ostentatiously proclaimed that their main purpose was to ensure peace amongst the nations. The Belgian treaty and the Franco-Russian alliance, the Triple alliance between Germany, Austria and Italy and the Anglo-French entente were all declared, at the time, to be so many devices to ensure the permanence and security of European peace. Assurances to that effect were always given to the other nations but, nevertheless, between them they landed the world in the bloodiest war that ever stained its surface. Hence the disquiet shown throughout Europe over this apparently innocuous transaction concluded at Berlin last Sunday.

The French view is given by M. Gauvain, the well-informed foreign writer of the Journal des Debats:

"The Soviets are striving to ensure the neutrality, if not the effective support of Germany in the event of war with one of their neighbors. Moreover, they are working to draw the Baltic states out of the sphere of the League of Nations and to absorb them into a vast Russo-Germanic group. Such a group would be incompatible with the Locarno pact. The Soviet is playing its game but it is for the states menaced by them to guard themselves against their machinations.

Points Out Conflict With League Doctrine.

"As to Germany, she cannot at the same time enter the League of Nations and the Locarno system and contract with Russia undertakings contrary to the covenant and to the arbitration treaties signed in London on Dec. 1, 1925. She is authorized to promise Moscow her neutrality in case of the aggression of a third party against Russia; she would exclude herself from the League of Nations and the Locarno system by reserving for herself judgment as to who would be the aggressor and in trying to depart from the application of the fixed rules of the pact."

Then follow some cryptic sentences threatening to "bring into vigor" a counter alliance against the Russo-German entente.

All this kind of comment has an entertaining side to a cynical observer who is not worried about the consequences to the next generation. France has laboriously organized a group of mutual defense against Germany and Russia. She has advanced huge sums of money to equip the armies of this alliance. She has quite recently entered into a treaty of neutrality with Turkey just after that provocative power had defied the League of Nations.

Poland and Rumania have signed a treaty of mutual defense against Russia, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Jugoslavia and Rumania have an entente for mutual assistance against Russia and Germany. Czechoslovakia has even reinsured by entering into a pact of neutrality with Russia. The Polish-Rumanian treaty is stated publicly by its authors to have been concluded in order to provide against the contingency "of the League of Nations not doing its duty."

Too Many Reservations to League Principles.

But when Russia and Germany presume to follow the example of these devotees of the League they are admonished for their transgression against the covenant. Already there are as many qualifications, reservations and loopholes in and about the sacred Clauses 16 and 18 of the covenant as there are around Articles 6 and 8 of the Ten Commandments. This is no reflection on the draughtsmanship of President Wilson. Moses was no more successful. The barbed wire of rules and precepts has never permanently kept the erring human cattle from wandering into forbidden ground. But the rovers ought to deal charitably with those who are tempted by their impunity to follow their example.

The real official view of the British Foreign Office is given by a well-informed diplomatic correspondent who is constantly in touch with that office: "That however legitimate the text of the agreement, it may lead to severe trouble and perils at a later date." This is sound enough, but British diplomacy ought to have thought of that before it committed itself to the Franco-Polish intrigue against Germany before and at the Geneva assembly.

Our Bankruptcy Laws.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NOW that the impeachment of Judge English is assured, the public eye might with advantage be turned on the bankruptcy laws. If our civil and criminal procedure is faulty and archaic, what can be said of the law relating to bankrupts, or at all events, the administration of it? One fact stands out prominently—everybody is protected except the sole person entitled to that protection, viz: the creditor. The bankrupt's assets are eaten up by outrageous receiver fees and excessive and cumbersome costs.

The referee or receiver has little real power and his examination amounts to next to nothing. From the press reports, concealment of assets is a common thing; the most astounding statements are made to receivers; debtors are unable to recollect what they did with substantial sums of thousands of dollars. Motor cars and diamonds disappear in a manner sufficient to make the magician, Thurston, blush. The debtor's wife suddenly assumes a controlling interest in the business or his father-in-law has a convenient number of notes. There are cases in which good will or trade secrets are turned over to a new company, whereupon the old company gets rid of its load of debt through the court and a new start is made. The bankrupt, after being relieved of his incubus and receiving his discharge, is now ready for business at the old stand. His motor car or diamonds, as the case may be, reappear as if by magic and all is well.

The British bankruptcy law with its system of salaried receivers (like Judges) is admirable. I believe that under it all transfers of property without adequate consideration are void if made within two years of filing a petition; also that bankrupts suspected of fraud are denied a discharge for certain periods of time. I do not, of course, suggest there can be any collusion or lack of duty on the part of the courts. Merely that the law is so lax and inadequate that fraudulent debtors almost always escape—although when the deal is manifestly too raw, sometimes one does go to jail. More and more the bankruptcy law is being used as a last resort in reorganization schemes in which the creditor is the inevitable loser.

Modern Conditions Create New Laws.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT is true, as you said, Senator Beveridge, in pointing out that we in the United States have many more laws than existed in the realms of the Czar and the Sultan in the eighteenth century.

It is also true that in the eighteenth century people nowhere had such things as railroads, street cars, telegraph and telephone, labor unions, public schools, banks, surety companies, insurance, express companies, oil pipe lines, corporations, drainage and levee districts, elections, public libraries, copyright and trade marks, trusts, receiverships, steamships, or elected public officials.

Chemists had not yet shown how foods could be adulterated, hence no food laws, no drug acts; no workman's compensation, no regulation of hours of work or working conditions; no bucket shops or building laws; no health regulation; no supervision of mines or mining; no road improvements, no big public land reservations, back there in the glorious eighteenth century.

These things, together with statutes governing elections and the powers of public officials, down to the village constable, compose the bulk of our laws. How many of them do you wish to wipe out?

CURIOUS.

The Taxing Power.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN A letter in today's Post-Dispatch, one who flatters himself by calling himself a property owner is alarmed at the upward trend of taxation and says "something should be done and done soon if St. Louis wants to remain a city of homes."

Just what, for instance, can be done?

Absolutely nothing while stupid humanity tolerates a vicious State socialism which vests all property in the State.

Did you ever consider the grounds for taxation?

Ownership and ownership alone is the only justification for taxation and so long as we permit State ownership of all wealth we will have to meet the State's terms or die. Abolish all taxation and automatically destroy State socialism. What! you say we are not the victims of State socialism? All right, Mr. Small Property Owner, please tell us what difference it makes to you or the State whether the State actually declares ownership and charges you rent to live in your (?) home or let's you believe that you own your home and proceeds to tax you to poverty? If you do not get the point by reading this read "Progress and Poverty," by Henry George.

A TORY CREED.

The Federal Trade Commission, through one of its members, William E. Humphrey, has served notice it is not going to act as a "smelling committee" or "detective agency" for any other department of Government. Following that preamble Mr. Humphrey proceeded to intone the commission's 100-per-cent safe and sane creed. For example:

We do not believe success is a crime.

We do not believe failure is a virtue.

We do not believe wealth is presumptively wrong.

We do not believe poverty is presumptively right.

We do not believe industry, economy, honesty and brains should be penalized.

We do not believe incompetence, extravagance, idleness and inefficiency should be glorified.

There is a lot more of the Humphrey rodomontade, but the sample, we are sure, will suffice. What inspired the outburst? The dissatisfaction of certain Senators with the Department of Justice's lethargy in the prosecution of the Aluminum Company of America and the disclosure that the Federal Trade Commission had refused to turn over to the Department of Justice information it had gotten from the aluminum company.

Mr. Humphrey told his audience—the Economic Club of New York—that this information was given to the commission in confidence and declared that confidence would not be betrayed. He went on to assure business that the Federal Trade Commission is trustworthy and any secret imparted to it would be kept inviolate.

And that is all right and very beautiful. Morally, it has the same schoolgirl complexion as the banalities of the creed. Such a policy, however, if adhered to with the bourbon rigidity implied in the Humphrey announcement, has mischievous possibilities. It might make the Federal Trade Commission the refuge of any law-breaking monopoly singled out for investigation. If a trust operating in restraint of trade could bury all incriminating evidence in the vestal vaults of the Federal Trade Commission, what better "fence" could guilt contrive?

It may, and will, be questioned, we imagine, whether the act creating it vested in this commission the power to accept such information as confidential and to withhold it from the Department of Justice during the preparation or pendency of a suit. In any event, the circumstances in the aluminum case urged the heartiest co-operation on the part of the commission in the effort to convict or acquit the suspected company. Here was an enterprise in which the Secretary of the Treasury and his family held a dominant interest. The company's enormous profits were a matter of record. Bitter complaints had been made by reputable business houses of the company's tyrannical practices. The question has been heatedly discussed on the floor of the Senate, where grave charges had been made against the attitude of the Department of Justice in the premises, and those charges were morally sustained by the Attorney-General's confused acknowledgment of his ignorance of the case. There was also the testimony of the commission's chief statistician that the information in the commission's possession showed that the Aluminum Company of America was guilty of unfair methods.

As a matter of fact, newspaper readers know whom Mr. Humphrey was reprimanding in his preamble and in his creed. Under the vague expression, "department of Government," he was pointing his tory finger at such Senators as Norris of Nebraska, Walsh and Wheeler of Montana, Borah of Idaho, Howell of Nebraska, and a few others who do not subscribe to the doctrine that a hundred million dollars can do no wrong. And if Mr. Humphrey's fellow commissioners concur in his judgment, the question of abolishing the Federal Trade Commission seems to be in order.

The difference between a wow and a flop: April as the poets paint her and April as she was.

FROM MILDEW TO HUMANITY.

Be humble, O Man! Science, which has said that you descended from a tree dweller, who developed from an ameba, now, through the mouth of Prof. J. Tissot of the Paris Natural History Museum, tells you that you are the product of a mildew—just a lump of mold that has evolved and evolved and evolved.

Mildew, Dr. Tissot asserts, is the original cell from which all life on earth developed, and all apimal and vegetable organisms are nothing but highly developed organized mildew. He has made experiments that seem to prove his theory, and he hopes that he may be able to combat many diseases, including cancer, by following up the subject. He finds a similarity, or affinity, between diseases that attack human beings and the various mildews and blights that injure and destroy vegetation, which might be expected if we, with the rest of animal life, are but high forms of mildew.

The view of a multitude of human beings from a high mountain or airship thousands of feet up reduces them to what looks like a patch of mildew, which is strictly in accord with Dr. Tissot's theory. Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?

ALAS! POOR MARYLAND.

We are astonished and saddened to learn that the whipping post has been revived in Maryland, and that the swish of cat-o'-nine-tails on human flesh may be heard within a stone's throw of Henry Mencken's lair. We are accustomed to the legal atrocities of Massachusetts and Georgia, but the Maryland Free State has held a special place in our hearts as one of the last outposts of civilization.

There Mencken spawns the seeds of liberty and brandishes his meat-ax at American barbarism. Thence the handsome and gallant Ritchie broadcasts the gospels of Jefferson. It was in Maryland that John Philip Hill conducted his one-man fight for the home-brewer, and for the protection of man's castle against the spies and snoopers of Volsteadiana. And there float the proud banners of the Sunpapers proclaiming to the world that Maryand is freedom's nourishing teat.

We make no attempt to explain this melancholy degradation of the Free State. We do not even charge that Maryland has been sold to Delaware, the State of Dupont, which has also re-established the whipping-post. We only hint that perhaps, like the course of empire, westward the course of liberty takes its way, and that Maryland must soon look for comfort to Missouri, the State of rills and stills—and James A. Reed.

UTOPIA.

Henry Ford is striking no new keynote in advocating the sustaining of general prosperity on its upward curve through a five-day work week so as to give the worker more time to spend his money, as the purchaser of the products of his own hands, or the products of others, engaged in daily toil.

What good is a Ford car if the laborer has not time to ride in it?

Seriously, however, Mr. Ford is restating an old principle—surrounded by all the attractive lights of modern progress—which has been voiced in various degrees of elaboration by Utopia makers for generations in their desire to relieve the woes of a sweating and submerged humanity.

Possibly we are today within constructive thinking distance, if not within immediate material realization, of a practical scheme for the creation of an Utopian world. Ford should lead the way.

The essential factors needed to erect this glamorous edifice might read like this:

First, new inventions and mechanical means for constantly increasing production per unit of man power. This permits of lowered costs, lessening hours of labor and increased wages, without jeopardizing fair profits to industrial ownership.

Second, wage increases as cost of production goes down.

Third, organized labor with a keen sense of the need of a full measure of effort during the hours of labor.

Fourth, captains of industry who have Ford's vision that continued prosperity rests on the fully used purchasing power of the masses.

Fifth, a realization that leisure does not mean idleness, or license, but activities in other directions conducive to greater intelligence and the general well-being of the race.

Mr. Ford is certainly one of the industrial leaders in the country today. As an immense employer of labor, with the most modern of labor-saving plants, he possesses all the machinery, human and mechanical, with which to try out his publicly expressed opinions.

If he earnestly believes in what he says, how can he well restrain himself from putting his five-day plan—we hope with six days' pay—into operation?

DEEDS OF DERRING-DO.

The derring-doer is one who performs deeds of daring and adventure, and there have been so many of them lately that these words, which have a poetic sound, should be kept from becoming obsolete.

The Arctic flying explorers, for example, in plane or dirigible, are pitting their lives against greater odds than did the old-time sailing men, with completely outfitted ships capable of spending a winter in the ice. The flying men have no snug cabins, crews of hardy sailors and tons of provisions on starting out. They have wonderful machines, and can make great speed, but their risks are tremendous.

And in the flying game we have such men as Sergt. Art Smertz, who is reported to have dropped 1000 feet from a speeding airplane, from an altitude of 4000 feet, before opening his parachute, one that he and a brother officer had invented. He is said to have expressed disappointment that he had failed to set a world's record drop of 2000 feet. What must be the sensation of a human being doing such a deed? It was thought at one time that dropping from any great height caused death by the swiftness of descent.

It appears that there are innumerable heroes. And heroism is needed in this age of peril on every hand.

THE RIOTOUS RODEO.

When Oklahoma celebrated the thirty-seventh anniversary of the "run," which opened a large section of the State to settlement on April 22, 1889, a rodeo was a feature of the gala day. There is nothing so unusual in that, for Oklahoma was a "cow country" not so long ago, and still has its ranches of large proportions, and the four-gallon hat is not yet a novelty in the sartorial scenery. The unusual feature was that this frontier performance met the opposition of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and of the Ministerial Alliance of Oklahoma City.

Now the rodeo, as most of the world knows, runs largely to rough riding, roping and other arts of the cattle trails and open ranges of other years. It is the one place, outside the cinema studios and dude ranches, where one may count on seeing the cow hands in gala garb. Although women are among the participants, it hardly rates as an effeminate pastime, and there are hazards comparable to football, even for men who have made the broncho and the lariat their life work. The mean disposition is no pose with the outlaw horses which star on such occasions, and the wild steers have something more than stage eagerness to go away from the madding crowd.

Yet we doubt if the good men and women who would squelch such vigorous amusement are rendering notable service either to man or beast. This is a diversion distinctly American; an art, almost, that keeps alive the traditions of other days, and perpetuates the prowess that helped in winning a wilderness. That horses, riders and rangey longhorns are sometimes damaged may be unfortunate, but there are spills on racetracks and bean balls on the diamond. We cannot wholly eliminate danger from our sports, and the rodeo isn't intentionally cruel or deadly. However, when objections are raised in one of our newest states, we might as well realize that the old West, the wild West, is tamed.

BALLADE OF DEAD LADIES.

The face that launched a thousand ships
Is one with Nineveh and Tyre.
And drifting dust are Helen's lips
That fanned the flames of man's desire;
I will admit that love is fond,
If I for Helen's lips should strive,
But wherefore, friend, should I despond?
The one I love is much alive.

And where is Flora, Francis asks.
He knows full well she is not here.
On some far shore fair Flora basks,
Along with snows of yesteryear.
Though Flora's dead as last year's snow,
And last year's snow will ne'er revive,
I see no cause for any woe—
The one I love is much alive.

And Heloise is also dead,
The loving wife of Abelard;
Gay Omar's rose, that blew so red,
Has drained the cup of her fond bard;
Too soon they sate the hungry clay,
Too soon some loving heart they rive,
But I insist on being gay—
The one I love is much alive.

L'Envoi.

Sweet Prince, 'tis true that ladies die;
I would such lovely things could thrive,
But that's not cause for me to cry—
The one I love is much alive.

Sir: So, Mrs. Malcolm Robb contends that Hell is still doing business at the old stand? Over its entrance sulphuric flames still flash the words, "Welcome Sinner"? The great escape its high temperature, though agnostics and atheists they be; but the garden variety of irreligious yet bake forever in its molten pits? Thus, Heaven also casts out the poor and lowly. Well, a collision of ideas in the minds of Christians is of no concern, to themselves.

However, when a Christian crosses the borders of agnosticism to honor the greatest thing in life, service to mankind, let us hope that sanity will soon permit us to toast the good act with a lawful glass of wine. Wine it should be, for wine is even praised by the Bible. Mrs. Robb has sung the departed Luther Burbank into Heaven; and so be it:

Let Christianity return to paganism "is pilfered Heaven and Hell, and Mrs. Robb can sing with Khayyam:

"The revelations of devout and learn'd
Who rose before us, and as prophets burn'd,
Are all but stories, which, awoke from sleep,
They told their comrades, and to sleep return'd."

POPULAR SONG REVIEW.

By C. F. H.

Just as the Association for Criminal Justice appeared to be having some success, and people were beginning to realize that a criminal ought to be punished now and then, along comes the "Prisoner's Song" and gets everybody back on the side of crime.

As we have known all the time, the important thing for the Criminal Justice people to do was not so much to persuade the Judges, who know well enough what conditions are, but to set the people, including the jurors in future criminal cases, to thinking what will happen if crime is not checked more thoroughly.

And now, before the thinking process has had time to soak in, the people are dosed with "Prisoner's Song" soothing syrup, from every phonograph and radio receiving set, and the thought is fostered that persons charged with crime are a much abused lot.

This prisoner, of course, was innocent. He doesn't say so, but how could anyone who is so solicitous about his "poor darling's" welfare be guilty of crime? He starts with a bid for sympathy. "Oh, I wish I had someone to love me, someone to call me their (sic) own; oh, I wish I had someone to live with, 'cause I'm tired of living alone."

The latter wish appears superfluous, for he goes on to announce that he is to be "carried to the new jail tomorrow." There, it would seem, he should have plenty of company. It is not stated whether, at the time the song is rendered, he is in an old jail or is at liberty on bond; but the latter is indicated by the singer's invitation to "Please meet me tonight by the moonlight, meet me tonight all alone, for I have a sad story to tell you, a story that's never been told." (Here the question arises whether the charge against the prisoner was the crime of rhyming "alone" and "told," a combination which is enough to drive most readers shrieking to free verse.)

Another extraneous and puzzling element is introduced, when the prisoner announces that "I have a grand ship on the ocean, all mounted with silver and gold. And," he adds, "before my poor darling should suffer, that ship would be anchored and sold."

This changes the situation materially. It must be a serious accusation, indeed, which would keep a wealthy ship owner in jail, a place where most persons stay because they have no "silver and gold." The penitentiary is a different matter, and rich men have been sent there, but this prisoner says "the new jail" is to be his place of incarceration.

Instead of going on to explain matters a bit, the prisoner tells what he would do if he had "wings like an an-jill." For practical purposes, a set of saws or skeleton keys would appear to be more desirable. But this prisoner is convinced that, with the aforementioned wings, "Over these prison walls I would fly; I'd fly to the arms of my poor darling, and there I'd be willing to die."

By this time, the hearer is ready to sign a petition to demolish the new jail, fire the jailer and abolish the courts. One feels that the prisoner and his unidentified "poor darling" must be reunited at all costs. Also he is ready to turn over the record and see if there can be anything worse on the other side.

The MIRROR PUBLIC OPINIO

I have sufficient faith in God and in United States to believe that neither be seriously injured by free thought free expression. There is no reason why strongest religious and political convictions should not be accompanied by clear-sighted tolerance. Tolerance is the mark of truly civilized and cultivated, mature minds. Those who are habitually intolerant never learn, never develop; but a hospitable mind is ever growing. I am opposed to the suppression of free speech, and for good reasons. It is unchristian and inexpedient. Suppression by force, whether it takes the form of deportation, imprisonment, or direct mob action, is unchristian. But it is also inexpedient. If history proved anything, it has proved that every attempt to suppress free speech and free writing has strengthened the victims and has increased the number of their adherents. The behavior of many American organizations and at times of our own governmental officials has been boyish. Intolerance is the mark of a childish mind; when one has become a man one should put away childish things. It is not accidental that England is more tolerant than America, and that the American city is more tolerant than the village. LEAGUE ECONOMISTS TO STUDY WORLD TRADE

Opposition by Japan Prevents Survey of Immigration Problems.

GENEVA, May 1.—Winding up their work last night, with the expectation of formal closing today, 30 economists, including Gilbert, Young and Houston of the United States, outlined a most ambitious program for investigation and study along economic, industrial, financial and trade lines for the coming summer. After this work has been completed the conference's deductions and a tentative agenda for a future international economic conference will be presented to the Council and Assembly of the League of Nations.

With the exception of immigration, upon which the subcommittee on populations could not agree, the conference has scoured the field of the world's ills in seeking the causes of economic disorders, past, present and potential.

Raw Material Monopolies.

Japan's diplomatic opposition despite the moral arguments of Italy, squelched all attempts to raise the immigration and emigration problems. The consensus was that it was impossible to include them in even the preliminary agenda, although President Belloni of Italy was empowered to carry on his studies with the assistance of the League of Nations Labor Office's staff and the International Agricultural Institute of Rome.

On the other hand, the question of monopolies and world corners on raw materials, such as the British monopoly on rubber, the American on jute and flax from the Philippines, or on grain, sugar, tea, coffee, silks, cattle and their products, such as milk, hides, dairying, etc., will be studied during the summer by subcommittees.

To Study World Markets.

Agricultural investigations will be carried on regarding credits and finance, transport, prices, distribution and consumption. New York, London, Kobe, Melbourne, Cape Town, Hamburg, Marseilles and Buenos Aires will be the principal markets studied as regards prices, etc.

The countries to be subjected to an agricultural investigation will be divided into the following groups: North and South America, Europe, Russia, Asia, Africa and Oceania.

International debts will be studied among groupings according to financial problems. Other subdivisions are made according to public finances, monetary credits and balances of payments.

WANTS TO KNOW LOCATION OF ALL SOLDIERS' GRAVES

American Legion Will Complete Proper Marking of Them This Year, If Possible.

The American Legion of St. Louis again requests that the information about the location of graves of soldiers killed in action, or who have since died, be sent at once to Sylvester L. Fisher, 417 Merchants' Exchange building, so that proper markings can be made.

A great many relatives of former soldiers already have responded to the request, and announcement is made by the Legion that it would like to complete the proper markings of all graves this year.

A shaft erected in Memorial Park Cemetery to the memory of former soldiers will be dedicated in a public ceremony, May 23.

BAR ASSOCIATION ELECTION

Meeting to Be eld Tomorrow Night at Buckingham Hotel.

The annual election of officers of the St. Louis Bar Association will be held tomorrow night at the Buckingham Hotel. Ernest A. Green and William F. Fahey are being supported by their friends for the presidency, which is now held by George C. Willson.

It has been the custom in the Bar Association to alternate the office of president between a Republican and a Democrat, the president serving one year. The office is now held by a Republican and it is a Democrat's turn next. Green, who is a former Circuit Judge, and Fahey, who is a member of the Election Board, are both Democrats.

Omaha Dry Agent Transferred.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Transfer of Andrew McCampbell, prohibition administrator at Omaha, to the post of prohibition director at Albany, N. Y., and the appointment of Glen A. Brunson, Iowa State Director, as his successor, was announced today.

McCampbell's administration has been under attack by Senator Howell (Rep.) of Nebraska, and some other political leaders. The Omaha administrator has charge of Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota. Brunson was ordered today to come to Washington for conferences prior to a new prohibition campaign in the area.

DANVILLE, Ill., May 1.—"Uncle Joe" Cannon will be 90 years old May 7. He will observe the day with a family dinner at which only immediate relatives will be present. "Uncle Joe" is enjoying his usual good health and makes a trip downtown to his bank each day. He spends much of his time preparing a story of his life and expects to have it ready for publication within a year.

Putting the Brakes on the Federal Trade Commission

passionate and bitter antagonism to progressivism which went far beyond the ordinary conservatism of such men as Aldrich, Cannon and Longworth. His belief that the Government should "let business alone" amounted almost to an obsession. Harsh, rugged and full of fighting courage, he was known for his eagerness to go out of his way to attack all things that savored even mildly of Government regulation or control.

Defeated for the Senate, he had settled down in Washington, like so many "lame ducks," to "practice law." Actually he was commonly and almost universally regarded here as a lobbyist for the lumber interests. That is the way "lame ducks" usually "practice law," in the capital. Daugherty took him into the Department of Justice, but he was reported to have had a dispute with a superior over the settlement of certain cases, and left there. It was after this that Coolidge appointed him to the Federal Trade Commission.

Staunch friends of the President were fearful that for once he had counted too heavily on public apathy, and had overplayed his hand.

"I served 10 years with him in the House, and if he ever made a speech that wasn't in defense of Big Business' right to do whatever it pleased, I can't recall it," one Senator observed. "You might as well deputize one of the Katzenjammer Kids to keep the other one out of the jam."

There was a long fight over Humphrey's confirmation in the Senate, but it finally went through—in executive session. If the fight had been entirely in the open, the result might have been different.

Before proceeding to the details of how Humphrey lived up to his advance notices, it will be necessary to describe something of the commission's procedure, because it was in changing this procedure that he got in his most effective work.

Complaints generally came to the commission by letter, usually from an injured competitor. They went to the chief examiner, who made a preliminary inquiry to determine whether there was warrant for entertaining them. If he decided a complaint had some merit, he took the matter up by correspondence with the party complained against, and if possible, adjusted it. If unable to adjust it, he docketed it as an "application for complaint," and assigned it to an examiner for thorough investigation.

The examiner, upon concluding his work, made a report to his chief, with recommendations. If the chief examiner concurred in the recommendations, he transmitted the evidence and the recommendations to the Board of Review, a subordinate body consisting of three members. This board reviewed the evidence and the findings, and transmitted them to the commission, which, in turn, assigned it to one of its own members for a final scrutiny.

Upon receipt of his conclusions the commission voted on the issuance of a complaint, a majority being required.

It is important to note that up to this stage none of the proceedings had been made public. Persons and corporations were thus protected from unfavorable publicity which might have resulted from mere malicious complaints. If, however, this cautious and extended examination and scrutiny resulted in the issuance of a complaint, the commission made the fact public, and made public at the same time a statement setting forth the nature of the unfair practice which was alleged. Under the law, the respondent had 30 days in which to file an answer.

If, in the final event, the commission voted not to issue a complaint, no publicity ever ensued; the public never knew that an investigation had been made. This, also, was for the protection of innocent parties.

It was the rule that a complaint, once issued, could not be dismissed merely upon the respondent's showing that it had discontinued the unfair practice complained of. If the respondent held out until after the complaint had been issued, it could only obtain its dismissal by signing a stipulation or by standing trial.

Putting the Lid on Tighter Than Ever.

Let Senator King tell the story:

"On March 11, 1925, precisely one week after Humphrey became a member of the commission, a majority, consisting of himself, Van Fleet and Hunt, voted to make drastic changes in the rules. The changes provided that the Board of Review, before passing upon a case, should give the respondent three weeks' notice, at the end of which time the respondent would be given a secret hearing. The respondent could, appear with his agents, his attorneys and his witnesses to show why a complaint should not be issued. The complaining witness and the public would be excluded. In case the Board of Review decided in favor of the respondent, neither the public nor the complainant would ever discover what facts had been disclosed, nor what disposition had been made of the case.

"The changes provided, furthermore, that even after complaints had been voted, cases should be settled by stipulation, without trial, 'except when the public interest demands otherwise.'

"A few days later, by the same majority, the commission adopted another change in the rule, this time providing that when a complaint was voted no publicity should be issued by the commission until after the respondent had filed an answer, and that when a settlement was made by stipulation there should be no publicity at all."

At about the same time Humphrey made a speech before the United States Chamber of Commerce, in Washington, and before the National Association of Manufacturers, at St. Louis, in which he announced:

"Although it is but a short time since I became a member of the commission, many changes have been made in its purpose and methods. I believe these changes are right and in the public interest. The majority (of the commission) believe that business is honest. We believe there should be a reasonable showing before branding as crooks those accused of breaking the anti-trust laws. . . . If the respondent agrees by stipulation to quit the practices complained of, we believe that protects the public interest. . . . When the Supreme Court can divide on the question, how can a business man be expected to know when he is breaking the anti-trust laws . . . We do not propose to let the commission be used for the circulation of socialistic and bolshevist propaganda."

Sthong Protests Made Against New Rules.

At the time of the adoption of the new secrecy rule, Commissioner Thompson said:

"I protest against the enactment of this rule. If it had been in vogue at the time 2500 steel fabricators applied for a complaint against the United States Steel Corporation to determine the so-called Pittsburg plus—method of pricing steel, the application could have been dismissed without any statement, and the public would not have been informed.

"It is contrary to the letter and spirit of the Federal Trade Commission Act and the Constitution of the United States. It will permit star chamber proceedings to be carried on, and the applicant will be ignorant of what is taking place. It will deprive the minority of the right to express its views publicly, and hence it is wholly dangerous and perversive of the public welfare."

Senator Kink, in his address to the Senate, said:

"These new rules had just one purpose, and that was to protect the corporations who had violated the laws at the expense of the public and the injury of their competitors.

"Suppose I am the president of a corporation which had been guilty of violating the law, and a complaint is lodged. I slip in through the back door of the commission, with my lawyers and witnesses, and appear before the Board of Review. None of us is sworn. We say what we please. There is no shorthand record. The complainant is not present. There is nobody to cross-examine us. On the showing that we make the Board of Review votes against the complainant, and passes its recommendation up to the commission. The commission has no record of the testimony on which the recommendation is based. It must vote in the dark.

"The reactionary majority of the commission has actually construed the law to hold that the minority members cannot publish their dissenting opinions. They wanted to padlock the mouths of Commissioners Nugent and Thompson to prevent the public from learning why these cases are being dismissed. It is infamous.

"No wonder the trusts are happy over the change in the Federal Trade Commission. No wonder we hear of all these great mergers and combinations to throttle competition. The last obstacle has been removed."

Humphrey Is Proud Of Changes Made.

Another of the changes made by the new majority was to expand the Board of Review from three members to five. King charged that this move was to enable Humphrey to control it.

The writer called on Humphrey to obtain his reply to these accusations. He found a blunt, bulky, brisk and bearded man, who spoke with a candor that was almost breath-taking. Humphrey's resemblances to former Premier Poincare of France is remarkable. He is like him physically, mentally and politically. He is harsh, rasping and pugnacious. There is no doubting his courage. He is a hard man.

"I certainly did make a revolutionary change in the methods and policies of the commission," he snapped. "If it was going east before, it is going west now. I'd be ashamed to look a decent man in the face and admit that I didn't change the procedure.

"Sure, I am opposed to publicity in these cases. The old rule, by which the commission issued a public statement when it issued a complaint, was tantamount to a Judge declaring, at the time a man was arraigned, that he believed him guilty. I believe in giving men a trial before pronouncing a verdict."

He was asked if the old practice had not rather been analagous to making public an indictment, as is always done in criminal cases.

"I don't think so," he snapped. "These are not criminal proceedings. We have no power to punish. We are here to stop unfair practices. If we succeed in doing that in a helpful way, without publicity, what else is necessary to protect the public interest?"

His attention was called to the rulings by which the majority of the commission had refused to transmit to the Attorney-General evidence voluntarily delivered by parties under investigation.

"It's only decency," he said, "if they are good enough to give us their confidential papers and files we don't intend to use those papers and files as evidence against them. The Department of Justice has its own agencies for collecting evidence. The commission isn't going to be a detective for other departments of the Government if I can help it."

Wants to Know What "He's There For."

He was asked if that was not exactly what the Federal Trade Commission act intended—that the commission should collect information for Congress and for the Department of Justice.

"I don't think so," was the terse answer.

He was reminded that Senator King had charged him with "packing" the Board of Review in order to control its decisions.

"What of it?" he shot back. "Do you think I'd have a body of men working here under me that didn't share my ideas about these matters? Not on your life. I wouldn't hesitate a minute to cut their heads off if they disagreed with me. What in hell do you think I'm here for?"

Obviously, nobody could charge the burly Commissioner with evasion or lack of frankness.

"Listen!" he barked. "This is nothing but politics! King and Norris and those fellows are simply hitting at Coolidge through me. They don't like me because they think I helped make Coolidge President."

"Did you?"

"I hope so. I tried hard enough," he answered grimly. "I like to believe I had something to do with it."

"Have you intimated, in your speeches, that Commissioners Thompson and Nugent were using the commission to spread Bolshevist propaganda?"

"I don't deny it," he affirmed. "I am willing to stand by what I have said."

Since Humphrey became a member of the commission it has dismissed 84 complaints on stipulations, in which the respondent confessed the commission of frauds, and promised to discontinue the practice, or affirmed that it had been discontinued.

"Do you believe," Humphrey was asked, "that a corporation which has violated the law should be permitted to escape on a promise not to do it again? Would you apply such a rule in highway robbery cases?"

"No comparison," he jerked out. "We are supposed to stop unfair practices, and we are doing it in a sensible way. Remember, we have no power to punish."

"Except by publicity—and you have voluntarily abandoned that," the interviewer suggested.

"There will be publicity enough when it becomes necessary—not before. We don't intend to pronounce a man guilty without the evidence," was the rejoinder.

It might have been suggested that evidence must be abundant when a respondent is willing to come in and make a sworn statement admitting its offenses.

Called Thorough Job Of Scuttling of the Ship.

Senator La Follette, commenting a few days ago on Humphrey's appointment and the consequences, sarcastically inquired: "What more could anybody want? He was sent in to sink the ship. He has opened all the sea cocks and dynamited the keel, and about all that shows above the surface now is a few bubbles. It seems to me that he has made a very thorough job of it."

In compliance with a resolution introduced by the late Senator La Follette, the Commission made an investigation of the breadstuff industry in 1925. In April, 1925, a complaint was issued against the Continental Baking Corporation. Under the new rules there could be no publicity until the corporation filed its answer, for which the law allowed 30 days. But the majority granted various delays, until five months had passed without any answer or any publicity. IN THAT PERIOD THE CORPORATION HAD ACQUIRED NINE ADDITIONAL CORPORATIONS AND 15 PLANTS.

Thompson and Nugent decided to risk the lightning. Defying the majority rule, they gave out a public statement containing the facts which indicated an attempt to establish a food monopoly. This was the same "Bread Trust" of which the public recently learned. A furore ensued. Resolutions were introduced in Congress and were followed a few weeks ago by an order from the Department of Justice dissolving the merger.

Because of their action Thompson and Nugent were threatened, indirectly, with criminal prosecution under that clause of the law which prohibits employes of the Commission from making facts public without the Commission's permission. Obviously, they are not "employes," and when they stood pat nothing came of it.

By the same majority vote, the commission in April, 1925, dismissed an application for complaint against the H. R. Mallinson Silk Co., on the ground that the practices complained of had been discontinued.

Keeping the Public Out in the Dark.

In a dissenting opinion which they made public, Thompson and Nugent disclosed that the company was accused of misbranding its products, and had admitted it. The practice consisted in advertising as pure silk fabrics which were not pure silk. They pointed out that in 1918 the commission had pronounced a verdict of guilty upon a wool manufacturing concern, on precisely the same ground, and that the Supreme Court had upheld a "cease and desist" order.

Commenting upon the dismissal of the application, upon the signing of a stipulation that the practice had been discontinued, Nugent and Thompson said:

"The public, should it read the order of dismissal, will naturally ask itself what were the practices complained of, and will be in the dark. The only way it can be informed is by publicity showing just what had been done by the respondent, and what it agrees to cease doing. In this way public sentiment can be built up which will put business on notice, and protect the public from misrepresentation, and at the same time help honest manufacturers."

In consequence of a long investigation of the beet pulp industry, the commission in January, 1925, issued a complaint against the Michigan Beet Sugar Co. and 18 other concerns. Two days later Charles Beecher Warren, author of the Coolidge platform at Cleveland and former Ambassador to Mexico, resigned from the presidency of that company.

Until then none of the Commissioners had been aware that Warren was an official of the company.

As developed later, President Coolidge at that time had Warren in mind for the position of Attorney-General of the United States. In fact, he sent his nomination to the Senate a few weeks later. Principally because of his connection with the company, the Senate refused to confirm Warren's nomination. This was the famous occasion when Vice President Dawes failed to awaken from his nap in time to cast the vote that would have confirmed Warren.

Whether the disclosure that the President's intimate friend was involved influenced the majority of the Commission, is a question on which readers may form their own conclusions. The fact is that the complaint was afterward dismissed under circumstances which Nugent and Thompson, in their minority opinion, described as follows:

Minority Members Vigorously Dissent.

"Instead of trying the case and taking testimony, the attorney for the commission has entered into a stipulation in which some facts are admitted and others are denied. But the stipulation fails to cover many vitally important matters which are in the record. The dismissal leaves competitors just where they stood before they filed the complaint. . . . The respondent's control 75 per cent of the pulp sold in this country. . . . Although the dismissal is based upon the unsworn, self-serving declarations of the respondents, the effect of the stipulation is to pronounce them innocent. There was enough evidence in the record to prove the allegations in the complaints."

One rather amusing feature of this case was that Van Fleet was the Commissioner who recommended the issuance of the complaint. He later voted with Humphrey and Hunt to dismiss it, after it became known that Warren was involved.

The details of the Aluminum Co. case are too fresh in the public mind, from recent Senate debates, to need rehearsing here. The old commission, in the course of investigating the cost of manufacturing household goods, had got into the aluminum industry. In 1924 a report was made to Congress. Attorney-General Stone applied to the commission for the facts in its possession, and the commission, including Van Fleet and Hunt, voted unanimously to transmit them. Stone declared the evidence showed a plain case of violation of the Sherman act.

Later he called upon the commission for additional evidence. It had about 5000 letters and documents not in the previous report. Meantime Humphrey came on the commission. Secretary Mellon had issued a public statement declaring the Aluminum Co. was not a monopoly. It was then that the new commission, by a majority vote, refused the Attorney-General access to the evidence which had been voluntarily delivered to it by the company, although it was not even contended that the delivery was attended by any pledge of secrecy or confidence.

Soon afterward Attorney-General Stone was unexpectedly elevated by President Coolidge to the Supreme Court, John G. Sargent was appointed to succeed him, and there has never been any prosecution of Secretary Mellon's Aluminum Co.

Record Shows Increase In Cases Dismissed.

When all is said and done, however, we will discover the extent and character of the transformation which has come over the commission, not by studying individual cases, but by observing the total results. During more than half of the fiscal year of 1924 the old commission, in which Murdock, Nugent and Thompson formed the majority, was in existence. During the fiscal year, 1925, the new commission, controlled by the Coolidge appointee, was in existence.

The following table tells its own story:

	1924.	1925.
Complaints docketed	154	132
Complaints dismised	36	103
Orders to cease and desist	92	73

Thompson's term expires in September. Nugent's expires next year. Neither expects to be reappointed. Nor, in view of the character of the latest appointments, does anyone expect President Coolidge to appoint men holding their views toward business, although, under the law, they must be succeeded by men with Democratic party labels. Even should 1928 bring the election of a President committed to vigorous enforcement of the anti-trust laws, the Coolidge appointees would continue in control of the commission until 1932, because of their seven-year terms.

"I have offered," Senator King said to the Senate, "a bill to abolish the Federal Trade Commission. True, we need a commission now more than ever before, but with such men as Humphrey, Van Fleet and Hunt in control—apparently placed there to protect the interests and prevent a fair interpretation of the law—there is no hope that the law will be enforced.

"What about the public that has been robbed? Forget it. What of innocent competitors who have been destroyed? Forget them. Only remember to be tender to those who have robbed the public and destroyed competition. That is the policy today.

"The President has pronounced his benediction upon business as it exists. So they merge and consolidate, forming greater and still greater combinations in restraint of trade, until in a few years there will be no independent producers left in the United States."

STUDENT CRITICISES DRY LAW

Says Youths at Lafayette College Spend $50,000 Yearly for Liquor.

By the Associated Press.

EASTON, Pa., May 1.—Adrian G. Ford of Warren, O., member of this year's graduating class and football star at Lafayette College, in an essay submitted in a contest for a $100 prize, awarded annually, declares that the students at the college spend $50,000 a year for liquor.

The essay, published in "The Lafayette," a college weekly, criticises the Volstead law and the social life and winter sports at the college, and declares that the "students are a prey for bootleggers and pawns for the faculty and trustees."

WOMAN IN STATE SENATE RACE

Mrs. Mamye Housley, Republican, Files in Farris' District.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 1.—Mrs. Mamye Housley of St. James today filed her declaration of candidacy for the Republican nomination for the State Senate from the Twenty-fourth Senatorial District. She is the first woman candidate for the State Senate to file thus far this year. Two women sought nominations for the State Senate in the 1924 primary campaign.

Mrs. Housley formerly was Mayor of St. James, and was the first woman elected Mayor of a Missouri town. State Senator Frank H. Farris, Democratic leader, who now represents the Twenty-fourth District, has filed for re-election.

Socialists Hold Convention.

PITTSBURG, May 1.—Delegates of the Socialist Party of America are in Pittsburg today for the opening of the party's national convention. Sessions will continue daily until Tuesday, with a mass meeting Sunday afternoon to be addressed by Eugene V. Debs as one of the features. Other Socialists who will speak during the convention include Morris Hillquit, New York; Representative Victor L. Berger, Wisconsin; John W. Slayton, Socialist candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania, and Dr. Marc Slonim, Russian scientist and lecturer. Several delegations planned May day celebrations tonight.

pean statesmanship to feel comfortable about the incident. France had been beaten to the ground by German armies and she was at the mercy of the ruthless legions of the victor. Any disposition on her part to assert her national independence brought upon her, for over 20 years, the threat of renewed invasion.

Then came the alliance with Russia and the whole situation changed. Russia was in need of cash. France stood in need of a powerful friend. Russia was an autocracy, based on the divine right of an Emperor. France was a Republic, based on universal suffrage. It was an incongruous partnership, but it was nevertheless real and effective. French Republicans cheered frantically in the streets of Paris the despot who shot Russian Republicans down in the streets of St. Petersburg. National security was more precious than liberty. Twenty years later, Russian imperialists and French Republicans marched together as comrades into the great war. The French Premier who negotiated the treaty was also in office during the war which resulted from his diplomatic triumph in 1894.

The treaty with communist Russia is hailed with joy by both the party of the old German aristocracy and the communist party. On the other hand, it is distrusted by the German Socialists. The Conservatives and the communists alike are in agreement. The former see in it the opportunity for national revenge; the latter see in it the prospect of future trouble, but the Socialists see in it a fresh danger to human peace.

How incalculable and confused are the forces that move nations to their destiny! The situation can be retrieved at Geneva next September if the Locarnist Powers realize the dangers and have the courage to repair their mistakes at the March Assembly. Will they do so? M. Briand has vision and courage. But will he be there? His successor would not have the same personal interest in saving Locarno.

HALLIDAY CAN'T BE TAKEN TO PRISON

Supreme Court Finds He Must Remain in Sanitarium Under Commitment for Paresis.

George V. Halliday, bankrupt broker, whose convictions for embezzlement and forgery, and prison sentences of three and five years, were affirmed by the Missouri Supreme Court Dec. 22, is still a patient at the City Sanitarium, with no immediate prospect of his removal to the State penitentiary.

When Marshal Schult of the Supreme Court tried to arrest Halliday recently he was shown a certificate that Halliday had been committed to the sanitarium April 18, 1924, by the St. Louis County Court as a sufferer from paresis. The application for his commitment had been made by relatives.

The Supreme Court, informed by Marshal Schult of the circumstances, agreed that Halliday was legally committed and under the circumstances could not be taken to prison unless his condition improved and he was discharged. It is understood the sentences against him will remain in force throughout his life, and if ever discharged from the sanitarium, he may be imprisoned for the full time of his sentences.

CUSTOMER ROBS SHOE STORE

Fitted With Size 10 Tans, He Also Takes $75 in Holdup.

Police are searching for a holdup man who was wearing, when last seen, a brand-new pair of tan oxfords, size 10.

At noon yesterday this man stepped into the Nathan Gladstone shoe store at 1218 Biddle street and asked David Bluestein, manager, to fit him with a pair of shoes. The tan oxfords were put on and then the "customer" drew a revolver. He backed Bluestein to the cash register, extracted $75 therefrom and ran out the door.

DIRECTORS OF FAILED BANK WILL BE SUED

Action Ordered at Gallatin (Mo.) by Finance Commissioner for Perhaps $250,000

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 1.—Suit will be begun against directors of the defunct Farmers' Exchange Bank of Gallatin, Mo., to recover some of the losses suffered by depositors in the failure of the million dollar institution last March 4, under instructions issued by State Finance Commissioner French to attorneys representing the special deputy commissioner in charge of liquidation of the bank.

It is understood the suit will be based on a section of the banking laws prescribing the liability of directors for losses sustained through negligence by the directors in supervising the management of a bank.

The amount for which the directors will be sued has not been determined definitely, but is estimated at $250,000 or more.

Estimates of the recovery by depositors in the liquidation of the bank are as low as 10 per cent. The deposits were about $625,000 when the bank closed, and total resources were placed at approximately $1,000,000. Investigation of these assets has disclosed that many of them are of little value, it was said. Many of the securities believed to be good paper were found to be second mortgages on real estate that had depreciated in value, it is said.

Finance Department officials decline to disclose what they have learned, but it is understood that some information has been turned over to Louis B. Gillihan, who is Prosecuting Attorney of Daviess County and also one of the four attorneys for the liquidation officer. The others are former Gov. A. M. Hyde of Trenton, Joshua Alexander and Boyd Dudley of Gallatin. Hyde's appointment as one of the special attorneys came after the restoration of amicable relations between the Hyde and Baker factions of the Republican party. Hyde in recent years has not been active in the practice of law, but has been engaged in the automobile business.

FLORIDA BANS OHIO PRODUCTS

Unofficial Boycott Declared, Says Former Gov. Cox.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., May 1.—James M. Cox, Democratic candidate for President in 1920, and former Governor of Ohio, today said a boycott has been effected by Florida interests against Ohio industries as a reprisal for Ohio's official attitude against Florida real estate. Cox said that while a Tampa, Fla., trade body recently voted down a resolution calling for reprisals against products from the Buckeye State, "a boycot can be effected without official sanction, and it is effective now." Two Dayton plants, the former Governor declared, recently suffered severely from the "psychological" boycott.

Cox's statement was made in reply to Gov. Vic Donahey, Democrat, and tSate Director of Commerce Cyrus W. Locher, in which they outlined reasons for not permitting the sale of Florida land in Ohio. Locher is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator.

$300,000 DAMAGE IN OIL FIRE

Flames at Storage Farm Near Bakersfield, Cal., Under Control.

By the Associated Press.

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., May 1.—The reservoir fire at the Standard Oil Co. of California storage farm near here today is under control. The flames consumed approximately 400,000 barrels of refinery residue oil valued at $300,000.

Only a few of the 1000 fire fighters hastily mobilized yesterday when lightning ignited the oil today remained at the scene. There were but few indications of a "boil over" Friday. At one time a small quantity of oil was thrown from the reservoir, but it did not menace other large underground tanks containing millions of barrels of crude oil. Kern County fire and flood losses in the last 24 hours are estimated at $1,000,000. The Southern Pacific main line track between Bakersfield and Famosa was washed out in several places. Pose Creek flood waters last night covered a section of the roadbed.

HITS SOCIAL LIFE OF AGE

Resolution of Association Calls It 'Steeped in Sensuality."

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Ont., May 1.—A resolution carried by the convention of the World's Christian Fundamentals' Association declared that the "social life of the age is clad in the purple of lasciviousness, steeped in sensuality and stamped all over with the mark of the beast."

The resolution, read by Gerald D. Winrod of Kansas, called on the churches to "come out from among the ungodly and break with all unholy alliances which rob the church of her power and soul-saving efficiency."

Fireman Killed in Collision.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 1.—Frank Boston, 22 years old, a fireman, was fatally injured today when two fire trucks from the same station, going to a fire by different routes, collided at a stret intersection. Boston died at a hospital without regaining consciousness.

70 STRIKERS AT SEMINARY TO RESUME WORK TOMORROW

Walked Out a Week Ago in Protest Against Non-Union Concrete Contract.

Seventy workmen, members of seven building trades unions, who went on strike a wek ago at the new Concordia Seminary, San Bonita and DeM un avenues, Richmond Heights, following a dispute over the letting of a contract for a concrete roadway to a non-union concern, will return to work tomorrow.

The termination of the strike, which threatened to delay the dedication of the seminary, scheduled for June 1, resulted from an agreement by the Building Committee to give all additional concrete work to firms employing union labor, and to the fact that the disputed road, approximately 4000 feet, is nearly completed.

The strike of the six crafts was a sympathetic movement in behalf of the Cement Finishers' Union, members of which had protested against the building of the roadway by non-union workmen.

Kansas City Labor Crafts May Strike.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, May 1.—Threats of a strike in the building trades here did not materialize today and it was said another week probably would elapse without action. Statements from officers of the Building Trades Council were that wage increases were to be sought in behalf of eight or nine crafts. At the Builders' Association headquarters, it was said the builders were ready to negotiate a contract covering working conditions, but that the building situation here would not allow any further advance in costs.

Remarried Year After Divorce.

One year after they had been divorced, B. P. McNeal, 61 years old, of 2100 North Broadway, and Mrs. Millie V. McNeal, 52, were remarried yesterday in Clayton. They had been married four years when Mrs. McNeal obtained a divorce.

$97,000 FOR POLICE RELIEF FROM CIRCUS

Total Receipts Were $139,639.27; May Be Last of Annual Shows.

The Police Relief Association, which pays sickness and death benefits to policemen and families of policemen, will receive about $97,000 from the proceeds of the annual Police Circus at the Coliseum April 5-18.

Total receipts were $139,639.27 and total disbursements were $44,964.99, the net proceeds being $94,674.28, which will be increased to $97,024.28 if outstanding advertising accounts are collected.

Ticket sales by policemen on the streets and from house to house totaled $67,906, the Traffic Division being first with $15,000, Central District second with $6993 and Carr Street District third with $5372. Box office sales grossed $22,079.25; program advertising, $32,051.02; donations, $15,113, and concession privileges, $2500.

Disbursements included $22,969.66 for the circus itself; $6088.94 for program and ticket printing; $5000 for rental of the Coliseum; $3528 for musicians; $1363 for advertising, and smaller sums for various things.

This year's net receipts were much less than the record-breaking figure for 1925, $136,403.50. The loss was due largely to the Police Board's order that tickets and advertising must not be sold to, and donations accepted from, professional bondsmen, liquor traffickers and others who might expect favors in return. The effect of the order kept police from approaching last year's record for ticket sales, $88,927; program advertising, $42,921, and donations, $28,873. The losses suffered from those sources were made up to some extent by an increase in box office sales, which last year totaled $15,341.50.

This may be the last police circus. The Police Board has taken cognizance of criticism from some quarters, aroused principally by the door-to-door ticket sales by uniformed policemen. The police circus is one of the principal sources of revenue for the Police Relief Association, and is considered vital by the association under present circumstances. The board has suggested, however, that expenditures of the association might be reduced if members subscribed to blanket insurance.

OPEN VERDICT RETURNED IN GLENDON SIMMONDS CASE

Jury Merely Decides That He Met His Death in "An Unexplained Manner."

A Coroner's verdict was returned at East St. Louis Friday in the case of Glendon F. Simmonds, 25 years old, of 3917 North Ninth street, St. Louis, whose body was found beside the Illinois approach of the municipal bridge Monday morning, holding he died from fractures of the skull and neck suffered in an unexplained manner.

Police, leaning to a theory that he had jumped or fallen from the bridge, also speculated as to the possibility of murder or robbery followed by murder, due to circumstances which have been explained. A Negro laborer testified about finding the body. Mrs. Lawrence Sanders related that Simmonds, his friend, Austell Moore, who resides in a flat above his home, and a man called Crawford visited her home Sunday afternoon. When Simmonds left about 6 p. m. she thought he was intoxicated, she said over the objection of Mrs. Simmond's attorney.

J. R. Westbrook of Dupo, Ill., corroborated her testimony. William Watson, an East St. Louis saloonkeeper, and Earl M. Klaus, a switchman, said Simmonds tried to sell Watson an insurance policy at his place about 7:30 p. m. Sunday.

Mrs. Simmonds testified she knew no reason why her husband should have wanted to kill himself. They had enjoyed themselves at a show Saturday night, she said.

Commodore Garage Not in Mix-Up

The account of the three-way mix-up of Hudson automobiles, printed in Friday's Post-Dispatch as having occurred Wednesday at the Commodore Garage, 730 North Seventh street, was in error in that the happening took place at the parking lot on North Seventh street, between Morgan and Franklin avenues. Both garage and lot are used by a department store for customers, but they have no connection with one another, being under separate management.

BUDDIES FALL OUT AND GO TO COURT

But the Jury Says There Was Nothing to Fall Out About and It's a Mistrial.

Dr. J. Carney Hardman told a jury in Justice of the Peace Clark's Court yesterday that while he had slight regard for Earl Walters, Walters had no end of admiration for him, even to the extent of working for him free of charge.

Walters said the doctor was mistaken—he really thought very little of him, but the latter liked him so well he had always given him medical treatment gratis.

After they both testified they once were "pals and buddies" the jury decided it couldn't desecrate what had been such a charming friendship, refusing to return a verdict in either of the two suits—involving issues from bills to wages—that the former friends had brought against each other.

Dr. Hardman testified that Walters owed him $200 for professional services. Walters said the Doctor wouldn't ask money for treating him. Had the Doctor forgotten, he asked, that he said he wanted no fee, but was treating him because "he loved him like a brother" and because he needed "the practice?" Anyway the medical bill was unimportant, Walters said, because Dr. Hardman owed him $452 in salary. The Doctor said there must be some mistake because Walters worked for him simply because he liked him so well. There had never been any mention of anything like salary, he said.

And as long as they were going so thoroughly into things, Dr. Hardman declared, Walters should pay him the $358 he borrowed when they were associated in the automobile business at 2717 South Jefferson avenue. Walters said he couldn't understand the Doctor any more, because the Doctor knew that the $358 was a part of his salary and not a loan at all. If it came to paying back money, he said, Dr. Hardman should pay back the sum he loaned him to help in his education.

"These men were pals—buddies," pleaded Walter's lawyer at the conclusion of the testimony. "Walters went into the auto business simply because he wanted to help the Ooctor. The Doctor was to pay him a salary and now he refuses. All the money that the Doctor owes Walters is a result of Walters' love for him."

Justice Clark designated it a technical mistrial after complimenting the jury on its finding, and expressed the hope that Walters and Dr. Hardman would soon be again "pals and buddies."

BARE KNEES AND SHOULDERS UNDER BAN AT VALLEY PARK

Ordinance Requires Persons on Streets of Resort to Be Fully Dressed.

Valley Park, a favorite center for Meramec River swimmers and canoeists, is preparing to enforce strictly for the third year its ordinance requiring persons using its streets to be properly dressed, with their legs and shoulders covered.

This ordinance was adopted after it had become the custom for many young men and women to go back and forth in the town clad only in bathing suits or perhaps with bathrobes somewhat concealing their bareness.

"Why," said City Attorney Glenn Jones yesterday, "the flappers used to sit on soap boxes in front of the grocery stores wearing only tight swimming suits and smoking cigarettes. We concluded that had to stop."

The town does not attempt to censor the kind of swimming togs that shall be worn in the river, which is its boundary on one side. The ordinance is interpreted to cover appearance of persons either walking or riding in automobiles. Last year City Marshal James O'Brien arrested only three persons for violation of the ordinance. Fines under it may run up to $25, but the practice is to make them about $1.

FASTER SUBURBAN STREET CAR SERVICE IS PLANNED

Limited Cars Proposed for Rush Hours on Kirkwood-Ferguson Line.

A plan for faster street car service between Kirkwood, Webster Groves and St. Louis will be discussed at a joint meeting Thursday of the Kirkwood Business Men's Association and a committee of three Aldermen appointed by Mayor Jacobsmeyer of Kirkwood.

The present transportation need of suburban residents who work downtown is not more street cars at the rush hours but speedier cars, according to C. W. Wheeler, chairman of the Aldermanic Committee. The plan brought forward to supply this need is to substitute limited service on the Kirkwood-Ferguson line for the present 10-minute service at rush hours. A special car would leave Kirkwood in the morning just ahead of the regular 20-minute car and, by making stops only at important intersections, would reach the city limits just behind the regular car, thus saving 15 to 20 minutes for commuters.

It is planned to request the support of Webster Groves business men and authorities in presenting the plan to the United Railways.

The Growth of St. Louis

SECTION OF THE NEW MEMORIAL PLAZA, SHOWING THE NEW COURT HOUSE AND THE BELL TELEPHONE BUILDING IN THE BACKGROUND.

REAL ESTATE WEEK

The building records of 1925 show an increase for Greater St. Louis of 70% over the previous year---a greater increase than any other major city in America. More than half of this building program is now under construction.

No power on earth can stop St. Louis' steadily increasing growth with the present billion dollar construction program going forward.

This building program alone is sufficient to assure an unusual business activity and increased population growth.

But there are other equally important developments, such as the increased inflow of industries to St. Louis and the expansion and development of its manufacturing.

Aside from being one of the first cities of the United States in diversified industries its adjacent agricultural resources are highly developed. Thus you have the perfect background for a growing city—an ideal metropolis in which to invest and live.

St. Louis' population must increase. Increased population invariably increases real estate values.

As a means of being the largest measure of service in emphasizing the advantages of home ownership and land investment, the Post-Dispatch has inaugurated its third annual

REAL ESTATE WEEK—MAY 2 to 9

This is YOUR opportunity to buy. St. Louis' foremost Real Estate dealers and owners are co-operating by listing their most attractive offerings. Read them today. See for yourself. The selection is one of pleasing variety.

Whether it is home or investment property in which you are most interested, now is the time to make a wise decision. Land will constantly increase in value. Insure your future comfort and capital by investing now!

HELD FOR SENDING MORPHINE TO PRISON

Former Convict at Lincoln, Neb., Captured by Federal Agents Here.

One of the early members of the Egan gang, in the days when it infested the downtown section, who was arrested in Pine Lawn yesterday, concealed 240 grains of morphine inside the stuffing of a high-backed easy chair which he had shipped to a convict in the State penitentiary at Lincoln, Neb., Federal narcotic agents allege.

He is Albert Trudell, 38 years old, released from the prison at Lincoln April 6, after serving a 10-year term for a jewelry robbery. The next day, the agents say, Trudell bought the chair at a store in Omaha, Neb. After the habit-forming narcotic was hidden in it, it was consigned to a prisoner friend. However, prison authorities found the drug, placed in five finger stalls cut from gloves.

Fearing that Trudell might resist arrest, the agents, who had trailed Trudell to his mother's home at 4014 Beechwood avenue, Pine Lawn, obtained assistance of a Department of Justice agent, city detectives and county Deputy Sheriffs to seize him. To their surprise he submitted quietly.

He is held incommunicado for Federal authorities at Police Headquarters. His prison term at Lincoln was his fourth period as a convict.

TENNIS COURTS ARE OPENED IN SOME OF THE PARKS

Other Courast, Because of Recent Rains, Not to Be Ready for Use for a Week.

While tennis courts in Forest Park, at Jefferson Memorial and at Kingshighway and Clayton avenue, and in O'Fallon, Carondelet and St. Louis parks were opened for the season yesterday, those in Forest Park at Billon avenue and in Fairground and Sherman Jarks and Tandy Playgrounds will not be ready for use for about a week. Heavy rains recently made it impossible to complete preparation of the latter group now.

Playing time starts on the courts dail yat 6 a. m., and those equipped with lights will be ready for night play after June 1.

Tennis and golf permits for the public parks which were issued last summer will be good until July 1, when new permits must be obtained. Construction of a temporary dresing and check room building at the old Lindell Pavilion in Forest Park will start in a few days and shuld require about 10 days to finish. A new pavilion is to be built.

ESTRANGED WIFE ENDS LIFE

Sedalia (Mo.) Woman Had Sued for a Divorce Recently.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Mo., May 1.—Leaving a note requesting that no one be arrested in connection with her death, Mrs. Mary Durrill, estranged from her husband, Omer Durrill, fatally shot herself at her home today and died shortly before noon at the General Hospital.

Mrs. Durrill recently had begun divorce proceedings, following her husband's detention in an investigation of the death of George Bulyer, shot at the home of Bulyer's sister, Mrs. Eva Paul, a few weeks ago. Durrill was declared by Mrs. Paul to have been a close friend of hers. He was released after an inquest. rMs. Durrill is survived by two children.

Edgar Stewart Crushed Under Street Car in Detroit.

Mrs. Edgar Stewart of 2525 Salisbury street was notified by police yesterday of the accidental death of her husband in Detroit, where he was a street railway conductor.

Stewart, who was 35 years old, was knocked from his car by a post, thrown under the wheels, and crushed. Stewart went to Detroit two months ago. He had been a motorman here.

Hospital Executives' Conference.
By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Hospital executives of Iowa, Indiana and Wisconsin will attend the annual convention of the Hospital Association of Illinois here Friday and Saturday. A. M. Shelton, director of registration and education of Illinois, and Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, Health Commissioner of Chicago, will be among the speakers. George Hoff of Lake View Hospital, Danville, is president of the association. The executive committee of the National Children's Hospital Association will meet in connection with the convention.

Man, 65, Tries to Kill Himself.

John Dines, 65 years old, is in serious condition at City Hospital, after he attempted to commit suicide at his home, 1114 North Broadway, at noon yesterday. Police found him in the kitchen, his head in the gas oven and the jets turned on. Police said he had been despondent over the death of a friend three weeks ago.

BROOKHART OPENS CAMPAIGN, ATTACKS CUMMINS IN SPEECH

Appeals to Iowa Voters for Reinstatement to Senate Seat as Foe of Money Trust.

EMMETSBURG, Ia., May 1.—Smith W. Brookhart, recently unseated United States Senator, yesterday began his campaign for the seat of Senator A. B. Cummins, Republican, on the field of his Emmetsburg campaign speech of 1924, which marked his desertion of the Republican regulars.

Appealing for reinstatement to justify his stand on national issues, Col. Brookhart referred to his unseating as overriding the laws of Iowa, by the Senate, "under political pressure for political reasons" and criticised the position of Senator Cummins.

He characteriezd the issues in the coming primary as the most "momentous in the history of the State—on one side is a line of great combinations of capital, striving for excessive and extortionate profits, allied with great publicity, which they control.

"Against this combination," he added, "I desire to call the farmers, the laboring people, the workers, with hand and brain, together with the little business man and the banker who are being destroyed by this economic giant, to unite in the fight for the defense of their work, their homes and their families. The whole question of earnings of human labor with hand and brain, is an issue.

"Senator Cummins," he charged, "went to the Senate as a foe of the giant combination, but on the battle line he weakened and surrendered and is now its servant and accepted candidate."

An aged man died of heart disease shortly before the speaking program.

FINED FOR TAKING FEES FROM VETERANS

Columbia, Mo., Insurance Man Charged Illegal Rate for War Risk Claim Service.

W. G. Stevenson, an insurance man of Columbia, Mo., was fined $150 by Federal Judge Davis yesterday on a plea of guilty to having taken illegal fees from ex-service men for obtaining war risk insurance payments for them. He paid the fine.

The War Risk Insurance act makes it a felony for anyone to take a fee in excess of $10 for aiding an ex-soldier in obtaining war risk insurance payments. There were three counts against Stevenson and the fine was based on $50 each count.

Assistant District Attorney Stattler told the court that Stevenson made contracts with five ex-service men to aid them in consideration of 25 per cent of the money he obtained from them. In one case, Stattler said, Stevenson took $1380.

Stevenson, in a statement to the court, denied he took as much as 25 per cent, adding that the $1380 was 10 per cent of $13,800 he obtained for an ex-soldier. He pointed out the law was enacted March, 1924, and that he made the contracts with the men in May, 1925, not knowing of the law. When he heard of the law, in July, 1925, he said, he canceled the contracts and gave a note for $1380, which since has ben paid. He admitted taking a fee of $250 from another ex-soldier.

George H. Moore, former Collector of Internal Revenue, represented Stevenson, and presented a statement signed by many ex-service men showing Stevenson had aided them without cost, and another statement by a prominent Columbia resident stating that Stevenson was of good character. Attorney-General Gentry, a character witness for Stevenson, told the court Stevenson was an active church worker in Columbia, but was in debt.

The maximum penalty for violation of this statute is two years in prison and a fine of $500.

$250,000 TO BE SOUGHT FOR JEWISH ORPHANS' HOME

Nathan Frank Heads Building Fund Committee Which Will Make Campaign May 23-31.

Nathan Frank has been appointed chairman of the Building Fund Committee of the Jewish Orphans' Home in a campaign, May 23-31, for $250,000 to be used in the erection of administration offices and two large cottages on its property on Oakland avenue, east of Skinker road.

All Jewish organizations in the city will participate and the campaign has the sanction of the Jewish Federation of St. Louis through which all Jewish charities are coordinated.

The needs of the institution will be explained, and team workers recruited at a meeting to be held Wednesday night at B'Nai Amoona auditorium, Vernon and Academy avenues. Lazar W. Grossman, superintendent of the home, will direct the campaign, and will be assisted by Ferdinand S. Bach, executive director of the Jewish Federation.

The home, organized in 1[illegible], has outgrown the residence at 3117 Lafayette avenue, and some time ago three acres of land were purchased near the southwest corner of Forest Park. Playgrounds, hospital and isolation facilities, which at present are said to be inadequate, will be included in the home's plans.

OLD INDIAN TEMPLE MOUND FOUND IN LOUISIANA MARSH

Human Bones There Believed by Expert to Be Between 500 and 1000 Years Old.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, May 1.—Henry B. Collins Jr., a representative of the Smithsonian Institute, who returned here yesterday from Plaque Mines Parish, about 40 miles below New Orleans, reported the discovery of the largest known temple mound of the Chitemacha Indians. A Federal appropriation to finance further excavation of historic mounds will be requested soon, he said.

Collins attached special importance to the find because bones he discovered were in almost perfect condition, which is unusual in the South. He left here to make a survey of a marsh section of Western Louisiana, where the Chitemachas and the cannibalistic Atapaka Indians lived before the arrival of "pale face" pioneers.

Collins said that virtually nothing is known of the Chitemacha and Atakapa civilizations. The bones found are believed by Collins to be between 500 and 1000 years old, antedating the discovery of America by Columbus. The temple mound of the village he visited rises about 50 feet above the muddy flats of the marshes. It is surrounded by a number of smaller mounds.

Fined $50 for Disturbance.

Lawrence R. Smith, 4343 Laclede avenue, was fined $50 and costs by Police Judge Rosecan yesterday on two charges of disturbing the peace. His arrest resulted from a telephone conversation with his former wife, Miss Amy Key of 4347 Laclede avenue, during which, Miss Key testified, he used profanity. Smith said he had called to request his wife to discontinue using his name. Miss Key obtained a divorce last January and Smith since has married again. He appealed the fine.

The Broad-way to Success

FOR nearly three-quarters of a century the broadening march of an army numbering now more than 100,000 customers has described so wide a path to the doors of "Commerce," that the block on Broadway from Olive to Pine is truly the "Broad-way to Success."

Rendering the sort of service which enables its customers to grow, "Commerce," itself, grows larger every year. Extensive rearrangements and enlargements are now under way. This will give increased facility to those whose use of the "Broad-way to Success" has made such substantial evidence of growth possible and necessary.

The Federal Commerce Trust Company—investment organization of the bank—moved to the second floor at Broadway and Pine, in the space formerly occupied by the Federal Reserve Bank.

The quarters thus vacated on the ground floor at Broadway and Pine have been remodeled into a light and spacious banking room to more adequately house the Savings, Trust and Foreign Departments. The section formerly occupied by these departments in the central building will shortly be combined with the Commercial and Checking Departments, giving this institution a more complete banking home in which to serve its patrons.

"Commerce" is truly an institution devoted to growth—your success and growth first—and its own as a natural result. If you are not growing with "Commerce," think it over.

THE NEW HOME of 53,000 St. Louis savers, combines beauty and practicability in one great purpose, that of serving you more quickly and efficiently.

- It provides the privacy required when conferring upon matters of estate in the largest and oldest Trust Department among national banks.
- It affords greater facilities to the patrons of our Foreign Department.
- It is, in all respects, so much an achievement and so mutual in its interests, that we have designated a day on which you may leisurely make your investigations.

MONDAY, MAY 3, is a day to meet old friends and make new ones ' ' and to all we extend a sincere welcome.

Annual Amateur Flower Show to Open on May 22

Display to Be at Shaw's Garden Under the Auspices of the Garden Club of St. Louis

FASHIONABLE women who have beautiful country gardens are dividing their time these pleasant spring days between their gardens and plans for the seventh annual amateur flower show, which will be held at Shaw's Garden, May 22 and 23, under the auspices of the Garden Club of St. Louis.

The show is one of the few given in the United States to promote greater interest in gardening on a small scale, and to show the possibilities of backyard plants, familiar flowers and flowering shrubs. There are prizes for adults and children, and city-wide cooperation is urged for the show. Miniature gardens, which may be made on trays of artificial materials, also are a feature of the show.

Members of the club do not compete for the many handsome and valuable prizes with the general public, but with one another in special displays.

Mrs. O. K. Bovard is general chairman of the Flower Show Committees, which include Mrs. W. N. Matthews, Mrs. A. E. Brooker, Mrs. Edward J. Walsh, Mrs. Charles M. Rice, Mrs. Robert J. Terry, Mrs. W. J. Polk, Mrs. Edward H. Simmons, Mrs. Clinton L. Whittemore, Mrs. A. Shapleigh Boyd, Mrs. Herman Schrenk, Mrs. Royall H. Switzler, Mrs. J. Sonberger Davis, Mrs. George T. Moore, Mrs. Joseph W. Former Red Cross Workers to Be at Annual Luncheon

Speaker Will Tell of Disaster Relief Work and Others Will Discuss Leadership.

THE annual luncheon of the St. Louis Chapter, American Red Cross, will be held Thursday, May 13, in Parlor A, Statler Hotel. The event always aroused the interest of prominent men and women who have served with the Red Cross on both war and peace programs and a number of table parties are being arranged."

There will be two addresses, one by Casper S. Yost on 'Red Cross Leadership," and the other by Earl Kilpatrick, former head of the Extension Department of the University of Oregon, and now a member of the staff of the Midwestern Branch of the Red Cross, who will tell of disaster relief work of the Red Cross.

John Lawrence Mauran, chairman of the St. Louis Chapter, American Red Cross, will preside at the luncheon, and Mrs. Frank V. Hammar, vice chairman, will be on the program. Prominent women on the Board of Directors of the chapter beside Mrs. Hammar, include Mrs. John T. Davis Jr., Mrs. J. Porter Tirrill, Mrs. Peyton T. Carr, Mrs. Ross Bowles, Mrs. J. B. Rule, Mrs. Horace Rumsey, Mrs. Henry Clarkson Scott, Mrs. Eugene T. Senseney, Mrs. Joseph W. Bray, Mrs. L. H. Conn, Mrs. Sidney Schwab, Mrs. Max Kotany, Mrs. Harvey G. Mudd, Mrs. George H. Capen, Mrs. Marcus A. Hirsch, Mrs. George Warren Brown and Miss L. R. Ernst.

Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Loisel Papin, who have been making their home in Chicago since their recent marriage, will arrive in St. Louis tonight and will be guests at the Buckingham Hotel for the present. Mrs. Papin was Miss Lillie Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard B. Allen of 4632 Maryland avenue.

Several Spring Parties at the Country Clubs

Miss Margaret Carter Announces Dinner Dance for Fiance, John Eaton Monins, May 14.

SPRING parties at the country clubs provide an agreeable change after a dull month or two. Last night at the St. Louis Country Club where the spring season is just getting under way, the largest group was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Edward K. Love of Westmoreland place, who had 75 guests for Miss Maud Miller Streett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Clark Streett, and Miss Eugenie Edmunds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Edmunds. In June the hosts and their guests will separate for the summer—Miss Edmunds to go East before joining her parents at Wequetonsing, Mich; Miss Streett with her family to Lake Sunapee, N. H., and Mr. and Mrs. Love to their home at Biddleford Pool, Me., where their daughter, Miss Martha, now in school in Florence, Italy, will join them.

Another dinner dance last night was given by Mr. and Mrs. Ira E. Wight Sr. of 42 Westmoreland place, for Mr. and Mrs. Wight Jr.

Next Saturday night the debutante set will be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brookings Wallace in honor of Miss Edmunds and Miss Janet Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Brookings Wallace of Price road.

The evening of May 14 Miss Margaret Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Ray Carter of 8 Portland place, will give a dinner dance at the Bogy Club for her fiance, John Eaton Monins of Ringwould, Kent, England, who will arrive in St. Louis this week to be the guests of her parents until their marriage June 5.

Saturday evening, May 15, at the St. Louis Country Club, Miss Katharine McCluney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. McCluney of 13 Kingsbury place, and Miss Elizabeth Douglass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Douglass of 16 Vandeventer place, will share honors at a dinner dance to be given by Mr. and Mrs. William La Beaume of Hotel Chase.

On May 22, Mrs. J. Sidney Walker of the Oxford Apartments will entertain 25 of the debutantes and their escorts at a similar party at the St. Louis Country Club.

Travels of Missouri People in Europe

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, France, April 20.—Musical recitals, art expositions, the arrival of many visitors and the opening of the racing season at Longchamps—all of which combine to make the Parisian spring season the gayest on the Continent—have enlivened the American colony of the French Capital during the past week.

The first Sunday racing at Longchamps a large attendance, and it seemed that every American who had arrived in the Capital within the last fortnight was there. The weather was perfect, so the women could wear their new spring frocks, and the men were not annoyed with long shots among the winners.

In the tribunals were Mrs. Caruso, widow of the famous American tenor, with Signorina Avezzana, daughter of the Italian Ambassador to France, whose mother was Miss Jacqueline Louise Taylor of St. Louis. Mrs. George Warren Brown of St. Louis, who is spending the spring season at the Hotel Plaza-Athenee, in Paris, was with a party of friends.

At the April luncheon of the American Women's Club of Paris, Bishop Charles H. Brent of Buffalo, N. Y., new head of the Episcopal Church in Europe, was the guest of honor. Members of the club present included Mrs. James E. Harding of St. Louis and Paris, and Mrs. K. A. Stimpson, formerly Dorothy Baker of St. Louis.

A group of St. Louisans which spent the winter in Europe is returning to the United States to plan summer trips. Mrs. Henry Clarkson Scott and her daughter, Miss Alice, have returned to St. Louis, while Mrs. Scott's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Scott, have taken a house in South France and will remain abroad with their children for a few months. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wiegand sailed for home on the Majestic today, as did Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Wheeler. Mrs. Pierre Chouteau Scott and her daughter, Miss Chouteau Scott, who have been at Hotel des Sainte-Peres, arranged to sail for New York April 27, with Miss Mary Taylor and Miss Catherine McMahon. Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Banister and their daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Clinton Sherrill, who were guests at the Saint James et d'Albany, sailed today. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Lee and Wayne Lee are still registered at the Wagram Hotel, in Paris, and

Three Interesting Engagements Made Known Last Week

Miss Mary Sipple to Be Married to Washington Man and Miss Mary Cotter to Pasadena, Cal., Resident.

THE week ending yesterday saw several interesting engagements added to an already important list. The debutantes of a season and two seasons ago were especially interested in two announcements made Friday.

The betrothal of Miss Mary Lemon Sipple, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Caleb Sipple of Brentmoor, and Arthur Gorman Lambert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilton J. Lambert of Washington, D. C., was announced at a tea for 60 guests at the Sipple home, while earlier in the day, Miss Mary Louise Cotter, daughter of William Cotter of 501 Clara avenue, entertained 10 of her close friends at luncheon to tell them of her betrothal to Frank H. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Miller of Pasadena, Cal.

By a peculiar coincidence both young women are graduates of Mary Institute and Miss Dow's School at Briarcliffe, N. Y., and made their formal bows to society a year apart, each at a reception and later a ball at the St. Louis Country Club. Each is a member of the Junior League.

Mr. Lambert is a graduate of Princeton University, class of 1922, and of the Law School at Harvard. He is engaged in the practice of law in Washington, where he will take his bride to reside. The wedding plans have not been announced. He is a member of the Chevy Chase Country Club.

Miss Cotter met her fiance during the past winter in Pasadena, where she spent two months with her father and sister. Mr. Miller is a member of Migwick Country Club. The wedding will take place in October.

A May day party given yesterday by Miss Alice Barnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hunter Barnett of 6315 Waterman avenue, was the occasion for the announcement of Miss Barnett's engagement to Harry Donald Stone of Pittsburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Stone of Uniontown, Pa.

Society to Open Its Season Early In Washington

Elite Anxious to Be Back in Time for Arrival of Spanish King and Queen in September.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The approach of the closing days of Congress sees no abatement in the social gayety of Washington. Nor will there be much cessation of activities all summer, for the several investigations scheduled for the recess will keep many Senators and Representatives in Washington for months.

Society is eager to get its little fling at the seashore, mountain and the pleasure grounds of Europe, however, before September, at which time the King and Queen of Spain are to come to Washington for a round of gayeties which will mean an early opening of the formal social season here. Even should President and Mrs. Coolidge remain at the summer White House until later, and receive the King and Queen's formal call out of Washington, instead of in it, it will have no effect on the opening of the season here.

Just where the summer White House is to be remain as mystery which only the Coolidges share, for no intimation has been given out from the White House as to its location. As a matter of fact, no one really knows whether or not President and Mrs. Coolidge intend to leave the White House this summer. There is plenty of precedent for their remaining there.

Washington awaits with more than usual interest the annual horse show, which will attract visitors from many cities. It is a gay social event, as well as a brilliant sporting week, and the cosmopolitan atmosphere is heightened by the attendance of the diplomatic corps. Many of the embassies and legations are represented in the entries and the junior entrants include many boys and girls from diplomatic families.

Mrs. Margaret N. McCluer of Kansas City, national president of the American War Mothers, is in Washington and will be one of the guests of honor at the banquet of the American War Veterans' Club Thursday. Mrs. Albert J. Brosseau, the newly elected president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, will also be a guest of honor.

Mrs. John Trigg Moss of St. Louis, who has been spending the last two weeks in Washington, is ending to her duties as chairman of the Resolutions Committee of the Daughters of the American Revolution Congress, has gone to New York for a week before returning to her home.

Mrs. Edgar C. Ellis, wife of Representative Ellis of Missouri, was hostess at tea Thursday at the New Willard Hotel. Among her guests were these Missouri women: Mrs. Paul T. Kitt, Chillicothe; Mrs. W. W. Botts, Mexico; Mrs. William A. Shelton, Mrs. Charles D. Shaw, Mrs. V. F. Boor, Mrs. Howard Lea and Mrs. Thomas Callahan, Kansas City, and the wives of the following Representatives from Missouri: Mrs. Samuel C. Major, Mrs. M. A. Romjue and Mrs. Clarence Cannon.

Mrs. Ellis attended at a luncheon to 50 guests Monday at the New Willard Hotel, given by Mrs. George Mesta of Pittsburg, Pa.

The former Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. William G. McAdoo and their children, Eleanor Axson and Jessica McAdoo, are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow P. Wilson at their country place near Washington. This is the first visit to Washington since Mrs. McAdoo since the death of her father, the late President Wilson. The McAdoos will remain here for three weeks, after which they will visit friends on Long Island.

Washington society is interested in the announcement of the engagement of Allan Galt, son of Mrs. Walter Galt of Washington, and a nephew of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, to Miss Elizabeth Campbell, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Archibald Campbell. Miss Campbell is the daughter of the Assistant-General of Governor's Island, New York, and the marriage will occur in Washington next month.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson of New York are house guests of President and Mrs. Coolidge at the White House. Col. George Harvey, who spent part of last week in New Jersey, has joined Mrs. Harvey at Jeykills Island.

All the elite of Washington turned out on Saturday to witness the congressional ball game at Clark Griffith stadium. Vice President Dawes and Speaker of the House Longworth were both on hand to cheer their colleagues, although the lineup was arranged according to party rather than according to service in the House or Senate. Senator James A. Reed was among the solons who watched a box party of enthusiastic congressional fans.

Sen. John J. Persing will be one of the box holders at the game. He will have with him on that occasion his son, Warren Pershing, who will be home from his preparatory school in New Hampshire. The General's young Warren will remain in Washington until June, when he will visit relatives in Hannibal, Mo., after which they will go to Omaha, Neb., to visit the General's sister, Miss Mary Pers

Five Years of Progress
The Ethelton System of Beauty Culture was established five years ago in what was then known as the St. Louis School of Hairdressing (since re-named the St. Louis Academy of Beauty Culture.)
Under the management of Ethel M. Thornton the business has expanded to such an extent that twice additional space has been taken. The business has branched out in all departments and a large supply department has been added.
Miss Thornton and her assistants have gone from coast to coast in search of new ideas for the betterment of the business, and the knowledge they have gained has resulted in making this one of the most up-to-date schools and beauty shops in the Middle West.
This week, in recognition of our five years of progress, we are offering drastic reductions in a wide range of regular specials, and we invite the public to take advantage of these really startling offers:

Society to Open Its Season Early in Washington

Are Anxious to Be Back in Time for Arrival of Spanish King and Queen in September.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, April 30.—The approach of the closing days of Congress sees no abatement in the social gayety of Washington. Nor will there be much cessation of activities all summer, for the several investigations scheduled for the recess will keep many Senators and Representatives in Washington for months.

Society is eager to get its little fling at the seashore, mountain and other pleasure grounds of Europe, however, before September, at which time the King and Queen of Spain are to come to Washington for a round of gayeties which will mean an early opening of the formal social season here. Even should President and Mrs. Coolidge remain at the summer White House until later, and receive the King and Queen's formal call out of Washington, instead of in it, it will have no effect on the opening of the season here.

Just where the summer White House is to be remain sa mystery, which only the Coolidges share, for no intimation has been given out from the White House as to its location. As a matter of fact, no one really knows whether or not President and Mrs. Coolidge intend to leave the White House this summer. There is plenty of precedent for their remaining there.

Washington awaits with more than usual interest the annual horse show, which will attract visitors from many cities. It is a gay social event, as well as a brilliant sporting week, and the cosmopolitan atmosphere is heightened by the attendance of the diplomatic corps. Many of the embassies and legations are represented in the entries and the junior entrants include many boys and girls from diplomatic families.

Mrs. Margaret N. McCluer of Kansas City, national president of the American War Mothers, is in Washington and will be one of the guests of honor at the banquet of the American War Veterans' Club Thursday. Mrs. Albert J. Brosseau, the newly elected president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, will also be a guest of honor.

Mrs. John Trigg Moss of St. Louis, who has been spending the last two weeks in Washington, attending to her duties as chairman of the Resolutions Committee of the Daughters of the American Revolution Congress, has gone to New York for a week before returning to her home.

Mrs. Edgar C. Ellis, wife of Representative Ellis of Missouri, was hostess at tea Thursday at the New Willard Hotel. Among her guests were these Missouri women: Mrs. Paul T. Kitt, Chillicothe; Mrs. W. W. Botts, Mexico; Mrs. William A. Shelton, Mrs. Charles D. Shaw, Mrs. V. F. Boor, Mrs. Howard Lea and Mrs. Thomas Callahan, Kansas City, and the wives of the following Representatives from Missouri: Mrs. Samuel C. Major, Mrs. M. A. Romjue and Mrs. Clarence Cannon.

Mrs. Ellis attended at a luncheon to 50 guests Monday at the New Willard Hotel, given by Mrs. George Mesta of Pittsburg, Pa.

The former Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo and their children, Ellen Axson and Jessica McAdoo, are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Wilson at their country place near Washington. This is the first visit to Washington of Mrs. McAdoo since the death of her father, the late President Wilson. The McAdoos will remain here for three weeks, after which they will visit friends on Long Island.

Washington society is interested in the announcement of the engagement of Allan Galt, son of Mrs. Walter Galt of Washington and a nephew of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, to Miss Elizabeth Campbell, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Archibald Campbell. Miss Campbell is the daughter of the Adjutant-General of Governor's Island, New York, and the marriage will occur in Washington next Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Stoddard of New York are house guests of President and Mrs. Coolidge at the White House. Col. George Harvey, who spent part of the week in New Jersey, has joined Mrs. Harvey at Jeykills Island, Ga.

All the elite of Washington turned out on Saturday to witness the congressional ball game at the Clark Griffith stadium. Vice President Dawes and Speaker of the House Longworth were both on hand to cheer their colleagues, although the lineup was arranged according to party rather than according to service in the House or Senate. Senator James A. Reed was among the solons who entertained a box party of enthusiastic congressional fans.

Gen. John J. Persing will be one of the box holders at the horse show. He will have with him for the occasion his son, Warren Persing, who will be home from his preparatory school in New Hampshire. The General and young Warren will remain in Washington until June, when they will visit relatives in Hannibal, Mo., after which they will go to Omaha, Neb., to visit the General's sister, Miss Mary Pershing.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Knapp of 4600 McPherson avenue will sail this week for Europe. They will spend six weeks in London and Paris.

MRS. RUTHERFORD CRAVENS.
Mrs. Cravens, a member of the Morse Players, will have a prominent part in "The School for Scandal" at the Toy Theater in the Musical Arts Building, Tuesday evening. —Murillo

MISS THERESA SHEA.
Miss Shea will take a leading part in the "Taming of the Shrew" at Webster College, May 9 and 10. —Strauss.

Two Interesting Engagements Made Known Last Week

The affair was given in honor of the hostess' sister, Mrs. Thomas La Rue Husselton of Atlantic City, formerly Miss Beth Barnett, and Miss Ruth Landreth of Joplin, Mo.

The luncheon table had for its centerpiece a huge May day basket of spring flowers, with small ones at each place filled with sweet peas, under which were cards bearing the names of the couple in invisible ink and candles attached to make them legible. Miss Barnett is a graduate of Missouri University and a member of Kappa Alpha Theta.

The guests were Miss Katherine Howell, Miss Margaret Johnson, Miss Elizabeth Marsden, Miss Melville Clement, Miss Martha Wilber, Miss Ruth Boulden, Miss Margaret Nettleship, Miss Ida Scott, Mrs. C. P. Daniel, Mrs. P. A. Gardner, Mrs. Robert C. Swisher, Mrs. D. G. Barnes, Mrs. Linn C. Culbertson and Mrs. C. O. Foster Jr.

The wedding will take place early in October.

Mrs. George W. Taussig of Englewood, N. J., is visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. B. J. Taussig, of 3747 Washington boulevard. Mrs. Taussig, who formerly lived in Kirkwood, has been the guest of honor at a number of social affairs the past week.

School For Scandal At New Toy Theater

"THE SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL," by Richard Brinsley Sheridan, one of the clasic comedies of the English stage, will be produced by the Morse Players at the New Toy Theater, Tuesday evening. Those taking part are Sanford McCauley, Marjorie Halliburton, Dorothy Meyers, Rose Hobleman, Theresa Wittler, Virginia Cento, Kathryn Trautz, Kathryn Cochran Cravens, Irma Gottschalk, Mary Leritz, Julia Laughlin Boehmer, Junior Boehmer, Mary Ann Jones, from Hampton, Ark.; Imo Malcolm, from West Plains, Mo.; Lucille Hultsch, Springfield, Mo.; Louisa Hudson, Henrietta, Ok.; Christine Gray, Birmingham, Ala.; Hallie Tate, East St. Louis, and Margaret Ukley.

The play is under the direction of Harry R. McClain.

Benefit Lawn Card Party to Given May 17

One of first al fresco affairs of the season will be the lawn card party which the Catholic Woman's League will give the afternoon of Monday, May 17, at the St. Louis County estate of Dr. and Mrs. Robert E. Wilson on the Berry road, Webster Groves. Mrs. Wilson is a member of the Board of Governors of the league.

Invitations for the party were issued last week. The proceeds will be used to help finance the day nursery and social service departments of the organization and the social service headquarters at 1023 Selby place. Arrangements have been made to have automobiles meet the Kirkwood-Ferguson car line every 20 minutes from 1:30 p. m. the day of the fete.

The Arrangement Committee having the affair in charge is composed of Mrs. John C. Muckerman, Mrs. John A. Calnane, Mrs. W. J. Polk, Mrs. Edward J. Walsh, Mrs. Edward V. Papin, Mrs. John J. Scherrer, Mrs. Leo Moser, Mrs. Raymond F. McNally, Mrs. W. W. Boyd Jr., Mrs. G. F. A. Brueggeman, Mrs. James G. Cahill, Mrs. A. A. Cervantes, Mrs. George Clayes, Mrs. Seth W. Cobb, Mrs. F. W. Two-Piece Living-Room Suite

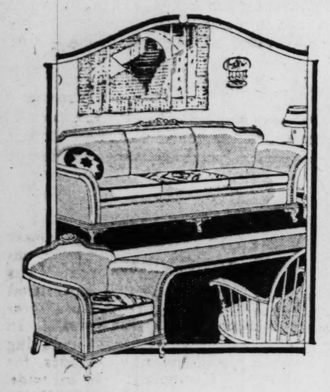
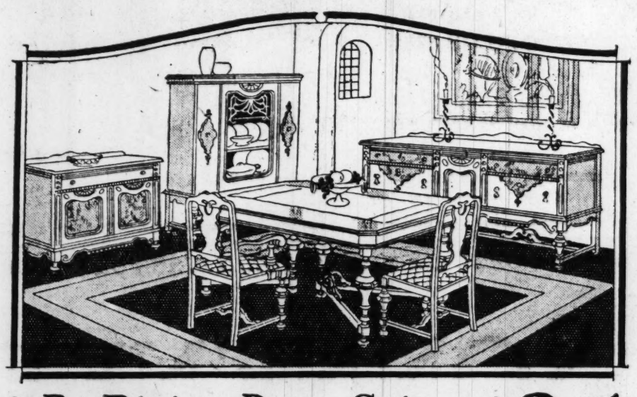
With Solid Mahogany Frame



$237.50

The continuous mahogany woodwork at the base, up the arms and across the top makes a charming frame for the Spanish-styled upholstering, with large, brass-headed nails holding the taupe mohair coverings in place. This Suite is a remarkable value.

Each piece is equipped with loose spring-filled cushions, reversed in a colorful linen frizette, giving a delightful touch of color to the neutral background.



9-Pc. Dining-Room Suite In Rich Walnut Finish $195

Buffet, extension table, china cabinet and six chairs—beautifully finished in walnut. The buffet is of dustproof construction with roomy drawers and sliding silver tray; the table can be extended to 8 feet; the cabinet is large and roomy; and the chairs have slip seats covered in tapestry.

8-Piece Suite, $152.50 10-Piece Suite, $230.00

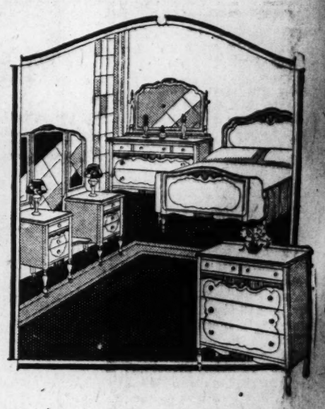
Four-Piece Bedroom Suite

Of New Design, Finished in Walnut

$197.50

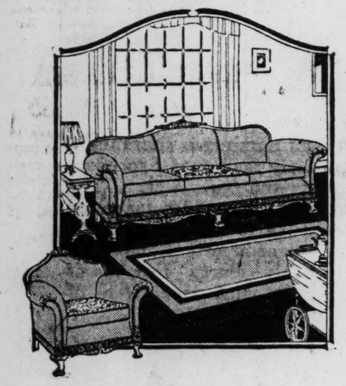
An extraordinary value is offered in this unusually beautiful Suite built of selected hardwoods with dustproof construction throughout and attractively finished with walnut veneers and overlay of maple. A typical value in this sale.

This charming Suite consists of 50-inch dresser with dovetailed drawers, triple-mirror vanity, full-size bow-end bed and large roomy chifforette.



Two-Piece Living-Room Suite

Of Taupe Mohair and Carved Wood



$169.50

An unusually decorative as well as serviceable Suite, with all the parts exposed to wear upholstered in taupe mohair, and an attractively carved frame across the top, at the base and on the front of arms of each piece.

This well-made Suite is of full-web construction and consists of an 80-inch davenport and large armchair with loose spring-filled reversible cushions—an exceptional value.

Coxwell Chair, $36.50

The Coxwell is always the most popular Chair in the living room. This lounge Chair is very attractively designed with spring seat and figured tapestry covering.

Breakfast Set, $48.75

Made of solid oak with lacquer finish in frosted tan, silver gray or Italian oak. The extension table can be extended to 33x66. Four Windsor Chairs complete the Suite.

Our Plan of Convenient Terms of Payment Puts These Important Savings Within Easy Reach of Every Home

Nine-Piece Dining-Room Suite

Of Spanish Design---A Remarkable Value

$227.50

A particularly charming Suite in the massive Spanish style and finished in American walnut. The Suite consists of a 66-inch buffet, roomy china cabinet, 8-foot extension table and six chairs upholstered in figured tapestry.

A special feature is the new styled extension table with equalizing slide—the extra leaf folds and is concealed inside the table. The table is easily extended as illustrated.

BLANKETS

To Be Ordered Now for September Delivery

$10.00 PAIR

We have planned this sale with the idea of offering an unusual service to our customers. We know from experience that most people want to possess really fine wool Blankets—and we have succeeded in securing Blankets of this type to offer at a genuinely substantial saving. To obtain these extraordinary values we accomplished economies in five distinct ways:

(1)—Through large quantity buying; (2)—by enabling the manufacturer to work in "off seasons"; (3)—by permitting the maker to concentrate on one standard of specifications; (4)—by entirely eliminating handling in the store (the Blankets are delivered direct from our warehouses; orders are taken from samples); (5)—by pricing the Blankets at the closest margin.

Place Your Order

—In Person—Samples shown in Blanket Section on Second Floor and at 8 other stations throughout the store.

—By Telephone—Call CEntral 6500, and ask for the Telephone Order Department.

—By Mail—Fill out the order blank below and send it now. Out-of-town shipments will be postpaid.

Blankets Will Be Charged to Your Account When They Are Delivered, on or About September First

Specifications of These Blankets

—Guaranteed pure virgin wool of superior quality—treated, dyed, and woven by makers of acknowledged high standing.

—Size of Blankets, 70x80 inches (double).

—Uniform weight, five pounds.

—All Blankets bound with three-inch cotton sateen ribbon.

—Fabric closely woven; thick, springy, fluffy texture.

—Five-inch block plaid patterns in eight color combinations.

—Dyed in the wool for perfect, lasting colors.

—Fully scoured and shrunk.

Individually Wrapped

Every Blanket is individually wrapped at the factory to protect it from soil and handling. So, when it comes to you, it is absolutely fresh and clean. This is an advantage that every housewife will appreciate.

These Blankets may be purchased on our Club Plan of Convenient Payments.

Women's Exclusive Coats Are Now Greatly Reduced in Price

Values Decidedly Out-of-the-Ordinary Are Featured in Two Special Groups

$85 and $98.50

Assembled in these two groups are many of our select Coats—models that copy imports and that introduce individual styling. Each is tailored to a fine effect and is lined in a silk of heavy texture. The Topcoats, some with capes, are tailored of imported tweeds; the twills and Patou crepes fashion dress Coats, and share favor with black silks. All are repriced at substantial savings for this selling.

The Eloise

$18.50

This smart Shoe is distinctive for two reasons—the style in which it is fashioned, a graceful instep tie, and the leathers used in its design. This is the season of lizard trimming and it is never lovelier than when used with parchment kid as on the new Eloise.

(Main Floor.)

Coats for Service Wear

Presented at a Moderate Price

$32.50

Mrs. O. M. Chapman of South Gore avenue. A luncheon was followed by songs by Misses Hazel and Gladys Payne. A program on "American Scientists" was adopted for study during the coming year. Mrs. Chapman gave a most interesting review of Edmund Rostands' "Cyrano de Bergerac," as portrayed by Walter Hampden.

Mrs. A. L. Johnson of Crete, Neb., and the Misses Hazel and Rite Woman's Club, of which Mrs. Claude Ricketts is chairman, will Gladys Payne of Webster Groves were guests.

The art section of the Scottish meet Wednesday at 1:15 p. m. in the ladies' lounge of the Cathedral, 3637 Lindell boulevard. Mrs. George Bergfeld will give a talk on the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial. Views of the Lincoln Memorial, Washington Monument and the Capitol at Washington will be shown. At the business session section officers will be elected.

The Book and Flower Guild held its April meeting at the Glen Echo Club, Mrs. Albert H. Hitchings hostess. Announcement was made that the Guild would be given the flowers which were left from the annual show at the Garden Club in May, for distribution to the hospitals and city institutions.

Plans were discussed for an entertainment to be given next month, the date to be announced later. The next and final meeting of the season will be tomorrow, with Mrs. D. H. Painter, Edgewood drive.

Mrs. Albert Kunz of 3826 De Tonty street, entertained the Cultus Club at her home, April 22. Mrs. F. W. Norris conducted the program on "The Dramatists of the Spanish Renaissance." Musical numbers were given by Miss Hazel Strother and Miss Marguerite Reid.

The Conference of Jewish Women's Organizations was held April 29. The calendar of events for May follows:

May 31—Council of Jewish Women's Board; B'nai Amoona Mothers' Club; Young Ladies of Orphans' Home. May 4—Home Circle P. T. A., Ladies' Auxiliary, Old Folks' Home. May 5—Bible Study Group, Auxiliary Jewish Sanitarium, Ben Akiba, Beth Hamedresh Hagodol Ladies' Aid. May 7—Friday musical. May 10—Council Jewish Women, Montifiore Ladies' Aid. Gertrude Charity birthday luncheon; Ebn Ezra Lodge No. 22, I. A. B. B. May 17—B'nai El Sisterhood Board; all sisterhoods. May 18—Orphans' Home. May 19—Bible study group child study group, Daughters in Israel. May 20—Miriam Rose Bry Board. May 21—Friday musical. May 26—Bible study group, child study group, N. R. Society. May 28—Pioneers.

The Mnemosyne Club will meet the afternoon of May 14 at the home of Mrs. W. A. Wilkinson, 3186 Portis place. The program will consist of a paper on the "Panama Canal" by Mrs. C. E Cullen and a review of Temple Bailey's recent book, "The Blue Window," by Mrs. Allen Hall. The club held its annual meeting Friday at the home of Mrs. E. S Chisholm, 4452 Washington boulevard. The following officers were elected: Mrs. William Walker president; Mrs. C. G. Buder, first vice-president; Mrs. C. E. Cullen, second vice-president; Mrs. Erle Ormsby, recording secretary; Mrs. Myrt Rollinsm, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. M. Ezell, treasurer, and Mrs. William Blume, parliamentarian.

The Mother's Club of Soldan High School will meet in the school auditorium at 3 p. m. tomorrow. Charles Miner, executive secretary of the Missouri Social Hygiene Association, will give an illustrated lecture, "The Gift of Life."

The regular monthly meeting of the Barr Study Circle will be held tomorrow at the home of Mrs. L. H. Davis, 1032 Morrison avenue at 10 a. m. "The Child, His Needs and His Nature" will be discussed in the first hour. A chapter from the book on that study by M. V. O'Shay, Professor of Education, University of Wisconsin, will be read by Mrs. F. J. Feinman. After luncheon the business meeting will be conducted by the chairman, Mrs. Walter Hippolite. Election of officers will be held. This will possibly be the last regular meeting this year.

The Junior Girls' Auxiliary of the Jewish Orphans' Home will give a Mothers and Daughters' day party at the United Hebrew Temple, Kingshighway and Enright avenue, this afternoon. A musical program has been arranged by Miss Esther Smith and Miss Rose Pearson.

Mrs. L. William Gerling of 3 St. Andrews Lane, St. Louis County, will entertain the members of the Woman's Missionary Society of the West Presbyterian Church at a garden party May 20, at 3 p. m. This is to be a benefit birthday party, to complete the $1000 pledge made to the furnishing fund for the new building of the Young Men's Christian Association. Twelve hostesses, representing the months of the year, will have booths, where birthday penny gifts will be received, one penny for each year of the donor's life.

The hostesses will be: January, Mrs. John T. Garrett; February, Mrs. George H. Owen; March, Mrs. Harry Montgomery; April, Mrs. Godfrey Anderson; May, Mrs. George M. Park; June, Mrs. Samuel H. West; July, Mrs. W. Hampton Nash; August, Mrs. Austin W. Biggs; September, Mrs. H. C. Gilger; October, Mrs. A. M. Roblee; November, Mrs. Henry S. Krug, and December, Mrs. W. H. Moulton.

A musical program is being arranged by Mrs. Frank E. Howard, music chairman of the society. Mrs. Gilbert F. Close, president, with members of the Board of Directors, will assist the hostesses. Birthday gifts from interested friends may be sent to any of the hostesses. Many automobile parties are being arranged by members.

Montebello Camp, on a high bluff overlooking the Mississippi River near Kimmswick, Mo., will be opened Saturday by the St. Louis Young Women's Christian Association for the entertainment of employed women and girls over 18 years of age. There is a spacious dining room, reading rooms, recreational hall and large screened-in porches. The beds are new and comfortable and the food excellent, well cooked and plentiful. The camp is supplied with running water, shower baths and electric light. The dormitories are cool and airy.

For summer vacations and week-end parties this is a delightful spot and the rates are so moderate that it is within reach of hundreds of girls and women who could not afford an expensive vacation. For Y. W. C. A. members, the rate is $7 a week, $1.75 for week-ends and $1 a day. For non-members, the rate is $8 a week, $2.25 for week-ends, and $1.25 a day. The registration fee is $1, and this is applied on board at camp. All registrations must be made at the Y. W. C. A., 1411 Locust street, GArfield 2748. Rates for cottages and special rooms will be given on request.

The camp is about 25 miles from St. Louis, on the Missouri Pacific Railroad and Lemay Ferry No. 9 paved State road goes to within a quarter of a mile of the camp, there being adequate bus service.

The camp offers tennis and outdoor sports, bacon bats, stunts, hay rides, friendship fires, handicrafts, songs, dramatics, book hours, nature study, Bible study, inspirational addresses and vesper services. Week-end parties and picnics will be arranged for groups, but all reservations must be made early.

The twentieth anniversary of the founding of the Gertrude Charity Society will be held at Hotel Chase, May 13, at 12:30 p. m. After luncheon a program arranged by Mrs. Sol Serkes will be given. Membership prizes will be awarded. Mrs. Harry Quicksilver is president.

The Western Catholic Union Branches 143 and 225 will present a three-act comedy, "It Looks Like Rain," tonight at 8:15 and again May 9 at the same hour, at Perpetual Help Hall, Twenty-First street and Linton avenue. Dancing will follow the performances. The proceeds will be used to defray the expenses of the baseball team.

Chapter O. of P. E. O. will hold its annual musicale tomorrow at Hotel Chase. The business meeting will begin at 2 p. m. and the program at 3 o'clock. The program has been arranged by Mrs. Lillian Craig Coffman and Mrs. Ruth Kelso Renfrow. Artists will be: Mrs. Ivan Lee Holt, piano solos; Mrs. John S. Jones, Miss Kathryne May Farmer and Mrs. Victor Ettinger, vocal; Mrs. John Eggert, violin; Miss Louise Evers, cello; Mrs. Coffman and Catherine Gaw, accompanists.

The hostesses will be: Mrs. Samuel P. Harris, Mrs. William Lanyon, Mrs. Calvin P. Bascom Mrs. William M. Fitch, Mrs. T. M. Jeffords, Mrs. John S. Jones, Mrs. T. P. Mathews, Mrs. C. H. Philpott, Mrs. L. H. Renfrow, Mrs. T. S. Vickroy, Mrs. C. L. Voss, Mrs

The W-B "Doublette"
A Very Special Offering

An Efficient 2-in-1 Garment $2.00 The Price Is Extremely Low

The Corset Section offers an extremely interesting value in the "Doublette"—a brassiere-and-girdle combination that embodies the essentials of the new mode. It is skillfully fashioned of daintily figured pink batiste, sufficiently boned to prevent spreading, and eliminating the break at the waistline. The girdle part has wide sections of ease-lending elastic.

Stylish Stout Girdles—Special, $3 and $5

Sizes to 40 are available in these Girdles—suitable for every type of stout or near-stout figure. They include all the well-known slenderizing features of the stylish stout garments, with sections of elastic combined with woven pink coutil and flowered brocade.

Fancy Doublettes
$5.00 and $10.00

Extremely attractive are the Doublette models in fancy silk-stripe fabric, at $5.00. In silk brocade, with jersey top, $10.00. These give ample support to the stout figure.

The Triplette
$5.00

A lighter weight garment that is comfortable and appealing for Spring wear, is the Triplette—a three-in-one garment pictured at the right. In exquisite materials.

F. M. Wright and Mrs. E. F. Nelson.

This will be reorganization and business week at the College Club. The regular election will be held Tuesday, together with a special election of a third member of the Scholarship Committee to succeed Mrs. William Wittrig, who resigned. Reports of the chairmen of committees will be heard.

The board of directors will meet Thursday and Friday to act upon recommendations of the Scholarship Awards Committee, which will sit with the board. Following the Friday meeting the committee members will remain at the clubhouse for dinner.

The Tuesday Literary Club of Clayton met April 27 at the home of Mrs. Caswell Grave, 615 Hanley road. Mrs. C. Grave gave a paper on painting, "The Greatest of Our Modernists." Mrs. P. Giers gave a paper on sculpture, "Modern Tendencies." A musical selection and readings from John Farrar and Amy Lowell followed.

St. Louis Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will meet at the Forest Park Hotel at 2 p. m. tomorrow with Mrs. G. B. Arnold, Mrs. W. H. Bush, Mrs. I. Baker and Miss Nanka Faucett as hostesses. Members of the board were entertained Thursday by Mrs. L. M. Ottofy of 5228 Vernon avenue.

The St. Louis Dante Study Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Val Vogel of 5179 Cabanne avenue, Thursday, at 2:15 p. m.

The New Era Literary Club held its annual all-day meeting April 27, with Miss Anne Jones of Glendale. The following officers were re-elected: President, Mrs. Taylor Rhodes; vice president, Mrs. William Dings; secretary, Mrs. Carlos F. Hurd, and treasurer, Mrs. Clyde B. Still.

The next meeting will be held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Malcolm Robb, who will also have charge of the program, the subject of which is "Clocks." Mrs. Robb has a collection of clocks which will be shown to the club.

The evening study class of the Tercentenary Shakspeare Society will hold its regular monthly meeting tomorrow evening at 7:30 p. m. in Cabanne Branch Library. Mrs. O. S. Ledman will direct the study of the play, "The Two Gentlemen of Verona." Those interested in drama study may attend.

The executive board of the St. Louis Tercentenary Society will meet Tuesday at 1 p. m. in Vandervoort Music Hall. Lee Merriwether and Thomas Wood Stevens will address the society at 2 p. m. Mr. Stevens, known to St. Louisans as the master of the out-door stage, will tell of Shakspearean productions to be given in June and July at Garden Theater.

The Garden Theater offerings for the season 1926 were the subject of speeches at the annual luncheon of the Society on Shakspeare's birthday. A congratulatory telegram was received from Robert Bruce Mantell, honorary president, by Mrs. Harry E. Wagoner, president. Among the speakers were Dr. A. N. DeMenil, Mr. Nathan Frank, Mrs. William W. Keyser, Mr. Flint Garrison, Miss Elizabeth Morse, Mr. Harry McClain, Mr. R. B. Leonard and Mr. Patrick Cook. Affiliated clubs in the State sent representatives. The new executive board was introduced. Mrs. Charles H. Hoyle, hospitality chairman, was assisted by Mrs. Victor Miller, Mrs. Alfred Meyer, Mrs. R. C. Frampton and Mr. O. S. Ledman.

Mrs. Eugene Marsh, a member of the League of Pen Women of America, has organized a branch of the league in St. Louis, with seven members. A charter was granted by the St. Louis branch of the National Board, April 11.

The regular monthly meeting of the St. Louis Council of National Congress of Parents and Teachers will be held Thursday at 2 p. m. in the assembly room of the Board of Education. The election of officers will be held. Mrs. Arthur J. Burn is chairman of the St. Louis Council.

The St. Louis Fine Arts Club will meet at the Artists' Guilds Friday, at 4 p. m. The subject will be the "Art of Dancing" and will be given in a lecture and demonstration by Miss Faye Bates, assisted by her pupils. This is the last meeting of the season for the club.

The Kirkwood Study Hour Club held its regular meeting Tuesday at the home of Mrs. R. C. Houck, 222 East Adams street. The program was directed by Mrs. T. H. Heath. The club was addressed by Mrs. Dorothy Gaynor Blake of Webster Groves on "The Educational Side of Music." Mrs. Blake played several of her own compositions, together with others composed by her mother, Mrs. Jessie L. Gaynor. The club will meet with Mrs. Martin Walsh of Big Bend road, May 11.

The Woman's Chamber of Commerce will hold its regular monthly meeting and luncheon Thursday at the Coronado Hotel. The business meeting at 10:30 a. m. will precede a 12 o'clock luncheon which will be followed by a program given by the Legislative Committee of the club. Mrs. Maurice Sternberger, president, will speak. A five-minute talk on "Civics" has been arranged by Mrs. Adolphe Neuville, chairman of civics, and the report of the Election Committee will be read. A meeting will be held by the Smoke Abatement Committee at 1 p. m. tomorrow at the home of the vice chairman, Mrs. L. E. Bersche, 6308 Rosebury drive. Mrs. Bersche

The Robert E. Lee Chapter of the Children of the Confederacy was organized under the auspices of Mrs. Esther Spaulding, State Directress of the Children of the Confederacy, at the home of Mrs. John Vaughan, 5110 Enright avenue, who will be the directress of the chapter for the year. The following officers were elected: President, William Lowe Mason, Jr.; vice-president, Helen Conley; treasurer, Mildred Vaughan; recording secretary, Betty Dee Mason; corresponding secretary, Diana Lee Spaulding; historian, Eleanor Liston; press secretary, Suzanne Mason.

The annual reception to friends and visitors of Miriam Rose Bry Convalescent Home in Webster Groves will take place from 2 to 5 p. m. today. A feature of the ceremonies will be the dedication of a memorial fountain to the late Rose Munchweiler. The fountain has been donated by the Ben Akiba Aid Society, of which Mrs. Munchweiler was president. Rabbi Julian H. Miller will be the principal speaker.

At the regular meeting of Miriam Lodge No. 17, U. O. T. S., last Tuesday the following officers were elected: Augusta Littman, monitress; Lena Levy, president; Babette Lipsitz, first vice president; Clara Nathan, second vice president; Gertrude Scharff, recording secretary; Flora Freund, corresponding secretary; Birdie Loebner, financial secretary; Edith Just, assistant financial secretary; Minnie Greenfield, treasurer; Frieda Halpern, mentor; Ray Kauffman, warden, and Maude Bauman, guardian. Installation of officers will take place Tuesday, May 11, at the Buckingham Hotel.

The St. Louis Unity Club of the Woman's Benefit Association will hold its regular monthly meeting Friday at 10 a. m. in the Moose clubrooms, 3830 Olive street. Plans will be made for the Missouri State convention, which will be held in the Woman's Benefit Association's summer camp on Lake Huron, Michigan, in July. It is expected that 500 delegates from Missouri will attend this convention, the first Missouri State convention to be held in Port Huron.

The Smilax Girls Club will hold its regular meeting the first and third Friday evenings in the Woman's Benefit Association clubrooms in the City Club Building.

The Council of Catholic Women will hold its annual convention at the Hotel Chase Tuesday and Wednesday, May 11 and 12. FAIRBANKS POPULAR IN ROME

Astor and Wife Entertained—Fascisti Admire Screen Star.

ROME, May 1.—Since their arrival here, Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford have been feted in every circle of Roman society, passing from one reception to another. Douglas has won the admiration of the Fascists who devoted the leading article on the front page of Impero last night to him, under the headline of "Why We Like Douglas Fairbanks."

The reason given is that the Fascisti see that Douglas has their temperament, which is not surprising, it is declared, because he was born in California, where the Latin strain is very strong. This is so evident in his features, that the writer of the article recognized Fascist qualities the moment he saw Fairbanks' first film produced in Rome. The article declares that Fascismo is art in life and life in art characterizes Fairbanks.

dent, Mrs. Upton Coudy, outlined the program for the district meeting. Mrs. Henry N. Ess, president of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs, will be a guest, and Mrss George A. Still of Kirksville, past president, will make her first vice with the district clubs in several years at the meeting Wednesday at the Coronado Hotel. There will be a musical program. No business will be transacted at this meeting, as the various committee chairmen make monthly reports of their work, and make complete report at the biennial meeting which will be the spring of 1927.

The Book Club met at the home of Mrs. J. C. Blythe, 6135 Victoria avenue, April 26. The program concluded the year's study of the capital cities of the world and was descriptive of the national capitol. Roll call was answered by American news and quotations from American authors. The papers were "Historic Washington," by Mrs. W. B. Knight, and "The Charm of Washington," by Miss M. L. Baker.

Mrs. F. H. Littlefield, chairman of transportation for the Biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, to be held at Atlantic City in June asks that all delegates make both Pullman and hotel reservations with her as soon as possible. Where reservations are made direct to Hotel Morton, Atlantic City, it is necessary that it be understood that the one so reserving, is a delegate from Missouri. It is also necessary for delegates, who desire the fare and a half, to get from the chairman an identification certificate before buying tickets. Missouri delegates will have a June 23 limit on special tickets.

Lutherans Gain 96,000 Members.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Approximately 96,000 new members joined congregations of the United Lutheran Church in America during the year ending Easter 1926, says a statement from the office of the Secretary, Dr. M. G. G. Scheer, based upon the findings of "The Lutheran," official church weekly of that body.

A Two-for-One Value

We invite you to visit Osage Hills and to acquaint yourself with this fine project. Our office on the grounds is for your use. Come out today. You will enjoy the ride out Big Bend Road direct to the property. The Manchester-Meramec and Kirkwood-Ferguson street car lines end at Osage Hills.

A purchase in Osage Hills is exactly that. For every foot of ground set aside for homes in the beautiful Country Club Grounds in this unique development an equal amount and more of footage is given over for community parkways, the golf course and other recreational areas. Thus, while a purchaser pays for only the tape-line measured front footage of the lot of his choice, he actually acquires in addition all the benefits in increased valuation that accrue from the large surrounding acreage devoted exclusively to the beautification of the entire community.

A two-for-one value . . . easily that . . . half to be sold and the other half to be given over completely to developments which will greatly enhance the value of all the purchases. What other St. Louis residential development offers such splendid opportunities to investors? What other gives such guarantees of increased future values? Consider this before making an investment in other property, just ordinarily planned and developed.

Refrigerators

Boyer-bilt REFRIGERATORS

An Invitation

TO those interested in the subject of Refrigerators for either home or commercial use, an opportunity is afforded to inspect what is probably the most complete line of Refrigerators on display in St. Louis.

Here will be found almost every conceivable type of quality Refrigerator from the Boyer-bilt all-porcelain corkboard insulated family Refrigerator—Servel, Ideal Electrical Refrigeration—large storage Refrigerators—several lines of moderately priced display Refrigerators and also the most expensive commercial Refrigerators made in America.

To this most complete exhibition of quality Refrigerators we cordially invite those who are interested in better refrigeration.

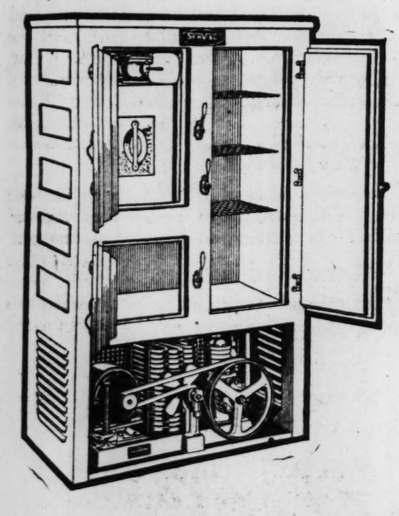
for the home!

The Boyer Refrigerator Company is pleased to announce its appointment as the distributors in this territory for Servel, the Ideal Electrical Refrigeration. SERVEL—one of the oldest companies in the comparatively new field of Household Refrigeration.

Because of our knowledge of Servel's past experience — because Servel is one of the three largest electrical refrigerator companies—because of the tremendous satisfaction Servel is giving to users throughout the country—because we know Servel will bring joy, health and satisfaction finally to almost every home—we are happy to have the privilege of representing Servel in this territory.

During the coming week it will be our pleasure to exhibit the complete Servel line, showing each model in actual operation. To those who are interested in the ideal refrigeration afforded by Servel, an invitation is extended to call at our showroom during the coming week where the complete stock will be available for your leisurely inspection. Your questions will be courteously answered.

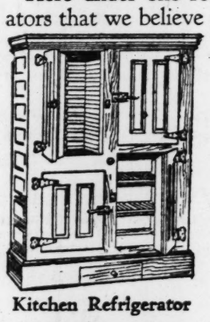


You will not be solicited.

We simply wish to extend to you an opportunity to learn more about electrical refrigeration.

for commercial use!

Here under one roof is a display of Commercial Refrigerators that we believe is not equalled anywhere in America for variety and price range.

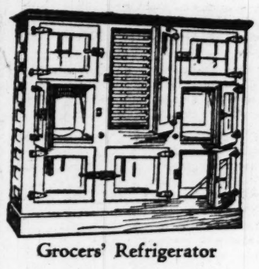


Kitchen Refrigerator

From simple slide-top Ice Chests, selling around $18.00 each, the prices range up to $1500.00 each for stock numbers.

Included in this line is the new Boyer-bilt pure corkboard insulated Commercial Refrigerators for markets, grocers, restaurants, hotels, cafes and institutions.

The Boyer-bilt commercial line is distinctively in a class by itself, offering unusual quality features. Nevertheless, the prospective purchaser is very agreeably surprised by the reasonable prices asked for this genuine quality.



Grocers' Refrigerator

During the coming week our Show Room will be a veritable Catalog where the actual product in each size and style may be examined and compared as to quality, size and price.

Market Cooler

A convenient deferred payment plan is available to those who prefer it. Anyone whose business or occupation is in any way concerned in the handling of perishable foods will find the Boyer Refrigerator Show to be very interesting indeed. Some may find the visit to be a very profitable one.

Music!!! Souvenirs!!!

For the entertainment of our visitors there will be music each evening.

To every lady who attends will be given a useful kitchen knife of stainless steel. There will be some surprise features of interest to all those who attend the Boyer Refrigerator Show.

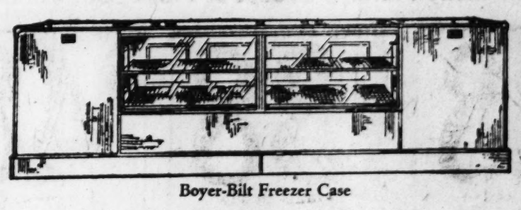
for food display!

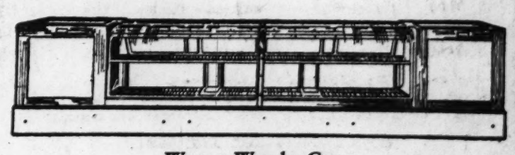
It is only in recent years that perishable food merchants have come generally to appreciate the great fact that the display of their merchandise is just as important as the displaying of merchandise of any other kind. Merchants generally have learned to their satisfaction and profit that display will increase their business. The public, too, has welcomed the display of perishable foods and particularly fresh meats because of the suggestions that are given them daily for the menu. The problem of the merchant has been the proper refrigeration of his perishables while they were being displayed. This problem has in recent years been answered to a great extent by the use of Freezer Display Cases.



Boyer-Bilt Freezer Case

The Boyer Freezer Display Case is distinctively new in both appearance and mode of operation. Its snowy white porcelain exterior offers an appearance of sanitation and beauty that is instantly appreciated.

At the Boyer Refrigerator Show during the coming week the Boyer system of refrigeration (patent applied for) will be fully demonstrated and merchants who are familiar with present systems will immediately recognize the advantages offered by the Boyer method.



Warren Wonder Case

The Warren Wonder Case is without any question America's most beautiful Display Refrigerator. Its three curved plate glasses eliminating the top rail in the display section affords a display that commends admiration immediately. We believe that the Warren Wonder Case exemplifies the highest quality that has ever been built into a Freezer Display Case. One of the pronounced features of this case is the method of glazing which entirely eliminates sweating, regardless of humidity or temperature. The Warren Wonder Case is the highest priced refrigerator display case in America and its price is entirely justified by the genuine quality that is put into it. An inspection will convince anyone that here indeed is the Case that justifies the claim of being truly a "Wonder" refrigerator.

Many Others to Select From

Included in the Boyer line of Display Refrigerators are 11 different types and grades and 34 sizes. Within the line will be found exactly the style, size and price to meet every requirement. Convenient terms can be arranged if desired.

French Ambassador Not to Resign.
By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Ambassador Berenger set at rest today widely published reports that he intended to resign immediately, now that he has succeeded in reaching an agreement with the American Debt Commission on the French war debt. A formal statement from the embassy said the Ambassador had appreciated so much the welcome given him in the United States and "is so pleased in Washington" that it was not his desire to give up a post where he could not but be satisfied with the first result of his mission and with cordial relations he entertained with officials of the American Government."

SOUTHERN CITIES TO CELEBRATE ON "ST. LOUIS DAYS"

Annual Good Will Tour of Chamber of Commerce Includes Arkansas and Louisiana.

"St. Louis day" will be observed successively by 38 towns in Arkansas and Louisiana next week, as the annual good-will tour of the Chamber of Commerce visits them.

The Chamber alternates long and short trips on its good-will tours and this year is to have a "long swing." About 100 executives of St. Louis business houses will make the journey, to demonstrate the interest of the metropolis in its trade territory.

Public officials and commercial organizations in the towns to be visited have sent welcomes to the travelers in care of Scott R. De Kins, secretary of the Sales Managers' Bureau. Business houses in the towns will decorate their establishments and provide receptions.

Will Be Gone Till May 16.

Leaving here at 10 p. m. next Sunday, the tourists will be gone till 11 a. m. May 16, visiting Forrest City, Marianna, Helena, Brinckley, Devall's Bluff, Lonoke, Little Rock, Pine Bluff, Fordyce, Camden, Eldorado, Texarkana, Hope, Prescott, Gurdon, Arkadelphia, Malvern, Benton and Hot Springs, in Arkansas, and Ruston, Monroe, Baton Rouge, Plaquemine, Donaldsonville, New Orleans, Morgan City, Franklin, Jeanerette, New Iberia, Lafayette, Rayne, Crowley, Jennings, Lake Charles, Alexandria, Winnfield, Minden and Shreveport, in Louisiana.

Special programs will be arranged for the six cities to be visited at night—Little Rock, Monroe, New Orleans, Lake Charles, Shreveport and Hot Springs. John B. Edwards, an attorney and former Election Commissioner, is going along as the principal speaker at night meetings and John C. Hall, president of the St. Louis Building and Loan Association and former head of the Rotary Club, as toastmaster. H. T. Bussmann, chairman of the tour, and six other men will deliver addresses at these gatherings. In addition, a short motion picture of St. Louis from an industrial recreational and civic standpoint will be shown.

A meeting of those going on the tour will be held at the Buckingham Hotel at 7 p. m. Tuesday. Lee Meriwether, an attorney, traveler and writer, will deliver an address. Wives of the tourists have been invited to attend. There will be an enertainment and dancing.

OLD CROW—$1 PER QUART

A perfect bottle, a lovely label, an irresistible price; but, oh my, something inside that would melt the rivets of a copper-lined old soak. Genuine and moonshine may appear the same; but there is a vast difference in quality and effect.

Don't entrust your eyes to $1 glasses masquerading as $10, $7.50 and $5 values. They may look alike; but remember that quality is always cut to fit the price.

I have specialized exclusively in the correction of visual defects solely by means of properly made glasses for the past 25 years.

Such knowledge and experience gained in a quarter of a century of actual practice is not obtainable for $1.

Over 20,000 satisfied customers endorse my successful service and my eminently reasonable charges.

SKULL OF BOY, 8, FRACTURED WHEN HE IS STRUCK BY AUTO

Runs Into Path of Car in North Jefferson Avenue, Says Driver, Released on Bond.

Lorraine Begley, 8 years old, 3437 O'Fallon street, is in City Hospital with a fractured skull and internal injuries, suffered yesterday afternoon, when he was struck by an automobile in front of 1540 North Jefferson avenue.

Raymond Woodward, 43 years old, of 3038 Fair avenue, who was driving north in Jefferson avenue, said the boy ran from behind a parked car into the path of his machine. He was arrested and released on bond.

SKULL OF BOY, 8, FRACTURED WHEN HE IS STRUCK BY AUTO

Ran Into Path of Car in North Jefferson Avenue, Says Driver, Released on Bond.

Lorraine Begley, 8 years old, 1437 O'Fallon street, is in City Hospital with a fractured skull and internal injuries, suffered yesterday afternoon, when he was struck by an automobile in front of 1510 North Jefferson avenue.

SUIT TO ANNUL MARRIAGE

Youth, 18, Files Through Mother as Next Friend; Bride 20.

J. Dixon Schneider, 18 years old, 3861 St. Louis avenue, through his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Schneider as next friend, yesterday filed suit in Circuit Court to annul his marriage to Mrs. Madeline Schneider, 20 years old. The petition states that on Nov. 25 last they went to Waterloo, Ill., and were married without consent of either of their parents.

It is alleged that at the time they did not comprehend the consequences of their act. They never lived together, returning to their respective homes, it is set forth. The defendant is with her mother, Mrs. Mollie Vander Lippe, 3810 Lee avenue.

Rail Rate Adjustment Deferred.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has suspended until Aug. 29 railroad schedules seeking a general readjustment of rates on grain and grain products from Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri to Mississippi River crossings, Memphis and points in the Mississippi Valley territory. The new scale would have both increased and decreased rates in various instances.

HELD WITHOUT BAIL ON HOMICIDE CHARGE

John Stenson, Who Shot Earl Guernsey, Declines to Testify at Inquest.

A Coroner's verdict of homicide yesterday held without bail John Stensen, 45 years old, saloon keeper of 800 South Seventh boulevard, for the shooting to death of his bartender, Earl Guernsey, 27, of 619 Chouteau avenue, after a quarrel in the saloon Friday afternoon.

The only eyewitness to the slaying was Frank Bishop, 40, of 1226A Hickory street, night bartender at the saloon. He told the Coroner's jury that Stenson and Guernsey entered the place about 5 o'clock and renewed a previous argument about money which Guernsey claimed Stenson owed him. After some minutes of this, Bishop said, Guernsey declared: "Well, I'm going to help myself." Guernsey then went to the cash register and took from it three $5 bills and 10 ones. "When Stenson saw what he had done, he shot Guernsey," the witness testified.

Mrs. Velva Guernsey, widow of the slain man, testified that Stenson and her husband had gone to the Guernsey home earlier in the afternoon and had argued about money and also about a revolver belonging to Stenson, which Guernsey had. After some drinking of home brew they left, still arguing and Guernsey declared, "I'm through with you." Mrs. Guernsey said she thought her husband still had the revolver, but it was not loaded.

Stenson made no statement at the inquest, on advice of counsel. He told police at the time of his arrest that Guernsey had held him up and that he had struggled with his employe for possession of the revolver, it being accidentally discharged. Police took Stenson to city hospital after the shooting, where physicians said he was drunk. The revolver with which Stenson fired the fatal shot was a regulation police weapon registered for issue to the force, and police are trying to ascertain how Stenson came by it. Guernsey had the $25 in denominations as mentioned by Bishop in his pockets when he was killed.

BOYS DUCK "KID THEY DIDN'T LIKE" IN STAGNANT POOL

Lad, 5, Stripped of Clothing, Almost Drowned When Rescued by Commuter.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Mass., May 1.—Three East Boston boys are charged by the police with having stripped the clothing from a 5-year-old youngster and tossed him into a pool of stagnant water, where he would have drowned but for the sharp eyes of a commuter on a passing train. They did it because they "didn't like the kid," one of them is said to have told policemen.

According to the police report, the three boys were playing "hookey" when James McGinn, 5, came along. He had mud stains on his trousers, and one of the older boys offered to clean them if he would take them off. He finally consented and the three removed all his clothing. They picked him up, carried him to the edge of the pool and threw him in. Then they fled.

A short time after a train passed and one of the passengers saw the body. He jumped off, ran to the pool and dragged the youngster to the surface. The boy was unconscious, but the commuter, whose identity the police do not know, went to work on him and by means of artificial respiration partly revived him. When he saw the child was returning to consciousness, he summoned the police.

MAFIA "HIGHER UPS" TAKEN IN SPECTACULAR SICILY RAIDS

Fighting Marks Clean Up in Palermo and Elsewhere—More Than 450 Persons Held.

By the Associated Press.

PALERMO, Italy, May 1.—Prefect of Police Mori, who recently was ordered by Premier Mussolini to clean up Sicily and to drive out the Mafia, or "blackhand" gang, which has its origin there, has staged a series of wholesale raids resulting in the arrests of 450 persons.

Many of those arrested are "higher ups" in the Mafia, including several well-known persons, officials and women.

A number of private houses were entered, among them being that of Edmondo Mingioi, a lawyer, who was arrested as a fugitive from justice.

Mori conducted the raids in answer to challenges threatening him with death if he dared to enter the province of Palermo.

Under Mori's direction, the police made simultaneous raids in more than a dozen places, in many of which pitched battles occurred: In the city of Palermo itself, several raids resulted in a cross fire from rifles and pistols.

Chicagoan Slain in Taxicab.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 1.—The body of a man known as Martin Garrity, slain when riding in a taxicab with three other men, was found early today several hours after the crime had been reported by the cab driver. The driver told the police he was hailed by four men about midnight and told to drive to the southwest section of the city. After he had driven for two hours, a shot was fired in the back of the cab. He was ordered to pull up to an alley, where a body was thrown out, he said. The other three forced him to drive several blocks before they left the taxi.

WOULD REINSTATE GERMAN AND AUSTRIAN SURGEONS

Dr. W. J. Mayo Sponsor of Resolution to Take Them Back Into International Society.

By the Associated Press.

ROCHESTER, Minn., May 1.—Dr. William J. Mayo, famous surgeon today confirmed a recent Berlin report that he has formally urged reinstatement of German and Austrian surgeons in the International Society of Surgery.

"Medical science, like all science," he said, "has no country and no language. To continue international rancor based on prejudice is unthinkable, justifiable in neither principle nor fact."

With his brother, Dr Charles H. Mayo, he sponsored a resolution to be presented before the meeting of the International Society of Surgery in Rome, for reinstatement of the Germans and Austrians.

The resolution urged that the "German and Austrian Surgeons be readmitted to the position they formerly occupied in the membership of the society," he said, "with full equality in every respect with other members."

The National Bakery Exhibition New Coliseum

Week of May 3rd—8th Inclusive

What shall we eat today?—a question every Housewife asks every day—a question that is being answered by the Associated Bakers of America!

Come to the New Coliseum and see the Big National Bakery Exhibition and learn for yourself how delicious and appetizing the VARIETY OF BREADS made for you by your baker really is.

Every afternoon and evening from 2 o'clock until 10:30, during the week, a modern bakery will be in operation, turning out a VARIETY OF BREADS made with fresh eggs, pure milk and butter; in fact, all ingredients used will be the best obtainable.

Of course you will want to eat some of these delicious coffee rings, sweet rolls, butter horns, etc. A big variety of products —more than twenty—will be served in the Palm Garden.

The ticket you will receive in exchange for your admission ticket will entitle you to your choice of baked goods and coffee.

MISSIONARY HOST TO BE HELD IN CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL

Fifty-seventh Annual Service of Episcopal Children Will Be Next Sunday.

The Fifty-seventh Annual Missionary Host of Episcopal Church School Children will be held next Sunday afternoon, in Christ Church Cathedral, returning to the custom of many years ago of having the service in the cathedral.

The Missionary Host was inaugurated by the late E. H. Simmons and Wallace Delefield as a laymen's movement, and Wallace Simmons, a son of one founder and namesake of the other, is president. Children of the schools save their money during the year and present it at this service for use in missions of the diocese. A pageant, "God is Light," written by the Rev. Roy Spencer Rawson, will be presented in medieval fashion and there will be music by members of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra under direction of Max Steindel.

The Missionary Host will be one of three important events announced for May 9 at Christ Church Cathedral. That morning at 11 a. m. the annual flower sermon will be preached by the Rev. Joseph Fort Newton, who a year ago became a convert to the Episcopal Church, and resigned as pastor of the Universalist Church of the Divine Paternity, New York City. The Flower Sermon was provided for in the will of the late Henry Shaw.

The evening of May 9 the opening mass meeting of the Mid-Mississippi Valley Conference on Community Welfare will be held in the Cathedral, with representatives of the Episcopal, Roman Catholic and Jewish churches as speakers. These will be Dean C. N. Lathrop of New York City, executive secretary of the national social service department of the Episcopal Church; John A. Lapp, director of the National Roman Catholic Welfare Council, Chicago, and Philip L. Seman, director, Jewish Peoples' Institute, Chicago.

NEW GERMAN ROYALTY BILL

Ministry of Justice Asked to Draft Compromise.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 1.—The Cabinet has referred the whole complex question of settlement with the former German rulers to the Ministry of Justice. The ministry has been instructed to draw up a new compromise bill altering the draft previously made by the coalition parties so it will be acceptable to the Prussian Government.

By satisfying Prussia, the Cabinet hopes to get a two-third majority in the Reichstag with the aid of the Socialists.

Serves Railroad 53 Years.

PITTSBURG, May 1.—Completing 53 years of railroad service, during which he traveled an estimated 2,661,917 miles without a wreck, Michael J. McCarthy, Pittsburg & Lake Erie passenger conductor, has retired. McCarthy, whose home is in Youngstown, O., began his railroad career at the age of 17 as a water boy.

Reduce Weight —AS I DID

By Claire Suvanner, Screen Beauty, Hollywood, California

"I keep my figure trim and normal by taking Veronica Water. It is astonishing how simple and easy it is. And I don't have to bother about diet and exercise. I feel better, too, than I have ever felt before."

A few glasses of Veronica daily will reduce weight almost "like magic." Veronica is a pure, natural, harmless mineral water recommended by physicians. Does not weaken or leave flabbiness, lines or wrinkles. Try this new, effective, safe method for reducing and to improve your general health.

ROAD ENGINEER TELLS OF WORK ON TWO ROUTES

Money for Counties Along No. 7 Being Concentrated on That Highway When Possible, Piepmeier Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MACON, Mo., May 1.—Progress on construction of two important Missouri routes, which also are Federal highways, was outlined by B. H. Piepmeier, chief engineer of the Missouri State Highway Commission, at a good roads meeting here.

Piepmeier pointed out that Macon is destined to be an important point not only on two State highways, but on two transcontinental routes. Missouri Highway No. 8 is also Federal Highway No. 36 running from Indianapolis to Colby City, Kan., and Missouri Highway No. 7 is Federal route No. 62, from Des Moines to Memphis. These roads cross at Macon.

Piepmeier said in part:

"Wherever it is possible, the available money due the counties along the north-and-south road has been concentrated upon this route, the result is that by taking into consideration the gravel roads which now exist upon the highway and what is contemplated for this season's work will make the north-and-south road an all-weather highway by the end of 1926. This route serves the two great capitals of Iowa and Missouri, and extends south into the Ozark Playgrounds, which most all travelers want to see.

Will Serve State Capital.

"It is generally recognized that this road will serve as a main north-and-south highway, serving the various educational institutions and the State capital. It permits east-and-west traffic on the various State roads which will feed into this road to travel north-and-south on an all-weather road.

"The east-and-west road is now practically all under grading contract. The grading and bridging of this important highway will result in a great service to this part of the State. It is one of the most expensive routes to build, inasmuch as it crosses many north-and-south streams, and this necessarily makes the expense of bridging and grading rather heavy. Inasmuch however, as the location has been established and the grading and bridging practically completed, the hard-surfacing of this road will come very rapidly.

"There is now left only 120 miles to be paved on this road. By 1932, the entire road will be paved with 18-foot concrete, or an equivalent type. It is readily seen that when this is accomplished, it will provide a means for east-and-west traffic across this part of the State, which has been so badly needed for many years. I think it is readily seen that Macon is especially fortunate in being located at the intersection of two transcontinental highways.

Handy Material Supply.

"Northwestern Missouri is now ably served by having a north-and-south and east-and-west road, but is also fortunate in having a material supply at hand which makes it possible to build a system of safe roads and many feeder roads of a very reasonable cost. The development of the La Grange Gravel road development in this part of the State. Three years ago, there was practically no gravel being produced in this part of the State that could be used for road improvement. Last year there were shipped from La Grange, over 100,000 tons of material, or more than 3,000 carloads. It is estimated that property owned and controlled by the State at La Grange, comprises 110 acres, contains over 5,000,000 tons of gravel. This material is now being loaded on the cars under contract, on the basis of approximately 10 cents a ton, or 20 cents a yard.

"The State is willing to furnish a limited portion of this gravel to any country or political subdivision for the purpose of building feeder roads into the State road system on the basis of approximately $1 per cubic yard f. o. b. cars at the La Grange gravel pit. The actual cost of the loading is 20 cents a cubic yard, and 10 cents per cubic yard additional is asked to cover the original investment and overhead expense of handling the material for the counties and their political sub-divisions."

Victory Highway Marker.

The bronze "eagle group" marker which is the emblem of the Victory Highway, transcontinental motor road from New York to San Francisco, which is to be erected in Contra Costa County, Cal., will be dedicated Memorial day.

ROAD ENGINEER TELLS OF WORK ON TWO ROUTES

Money for Counties Along No. 7 Being Concentrated on That Hghway When Possible, Piepmeier Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MACON, Mo., May 1.—Progress in construction of two important Missouri routes, which also are Federal highways, was outlined by R. H. Piepmeier, chief engineer of the Missouri State Highway Commission, at a good roads meeting here.

Piepmeier pointed out that Macon is destined to be an important point not only on two State highways, but on two transcontinental routes. Tour to Arcadia Over Paved and Gravel Roads

Trip May Be Made in Less Than 4 Hours, and Can Be Extended to "Shut-In" and Lake Killarney — First of Automobile Club and Post-Dispatch Bureau Weekly Tour Series.

FOR the occasional motor tourist, who seldom is able to get away on an extended trip, but wants a week-end or all-day Sunday jaunt, the route from St. Louis to Arcadia and Lake Killarney offers probably more than any other of the same length in Missouri. The trip is more interesting, and more easily made, than ever before, as a result of extending the pavement from St. Louis to Flat River and general improvement of the gravel roads beyond Flat River.

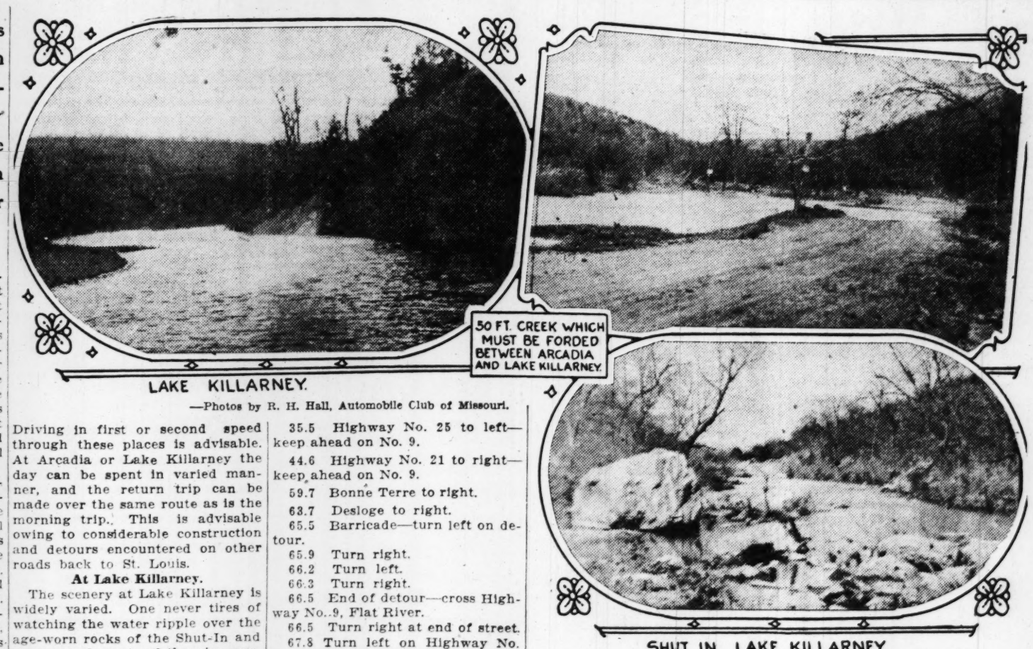
With this in mind, the Automobile Club of Missouri Touring Department, in conjunction with the Post-Dispatch Resort and Travel Bureau, has selected this trip as the first of a weekly series to be published throughout the summer. The tours are to be made and road conditions verified by George E. Drummond, head of the Automobile Club's Touring Department, and Robert H. Hall of the club's press bureau.

Off to Arcadia.

Arcadia is only 90.3 miles from St. Louis, and the trip one way is easily made in three and one-half to four hours actual driving time. Of this distance, there are 65.9 miles of concrete highway and 24.4 miles of gravel roads, well maintained except for an occasional rough stretch. Arcadia Mountain Resort at Lake Killarney is 93.5 miles from St. Louis, 3.2 miles beyond Arcadia on a road which is rougher than any other encountered on the trip, but is far the most picturesque. The mileage is taken from the speedometer on the official road car of the Automobile Club of Missouri, from its headquarters, 4228 Lindell boulevard.

Leaving the smoky haze of the city behind, one wanders along State Highway No. 9, through a very pretty country. After a straightaway course of 28.6 miles of concrete, the motorist comes to a detour of 1.1 miles, about 3.6 miles south of Barnhart. This detour, while rather rough, is well graveled and is all-weather. Concrete is again encountered, and Festus and Crystal City, Bonne Terre and Desloge are left behind before another detour is remarked. This is one mile long and is 1.8 miles south of Desloge. It is of gravel and all-weather under any condition of rain.

At Flat River the concrete is left behind and from then there is a rolling gravel road. A creek is forded a short distance south of Pilot Knob. A like experience is encountered two and one-half miles south of Arcadia, where, for 50 feet, the roadway is through a stream bed. There need be no hesitancy about fording these creeks, for the roadbed is heavily graveled.



—Photos by R. H. Hall, Automobile Club of Missouri.

Driving in first or second speed through these places is advisable. At Arcadia or Lake Killarney the day can be spent in varied manner, and the return trip can be made over the same route as is the morning trip. This is advisable owing to considerable construction and detours encountered on other roads back to St. Louis.

At Lake Killarney.

The scenery at Lake Killarney is widely varied. One never tires of watching the water ripple over the age-worn rocks of the Shut-In and the wooded crests of the pine-covered hills never fail to interest. At several places in the Shut-In, where massive boulders rise above the bed of the stream that feeds Lake Killarney, dashing rapids contrast with the vivid green of the hills. At Lake Killarney one may make a prolonged visit, for log cabins may be rented, or one can pitch a tent and sleep in the open.

Boats are to be had, and in the early morning one hears the whine of the reel, the splash of a bass struggling against the line, and the shout of the fisherman as he gleefully tells of his catch to his friends across the water. Here, too, one may go horseback riding over many interesting trails.

BRITISH LIKELY TO HOLD AUTO SPEED RECORD, MADE TUESDAY, FOR LONG TIME

No U. S. Driver in Position to Try to Beat Briton Who Did 172 M. P. H., Surpassing America's Best by 16 M. P. H.

By JAMES SPENCER,
Automobile Editor.

PROBABLY the most powerful engine that has yet been installed in an automobile is that in the 12-cylinder freak machine, with 5-inch bore and 6.9-inch stroke, that J. C. Parry-Thomas carted in a truck Tuesday to Pendine Sands, on the coast of Wales, and drove to a new world's record, averaging 169.29 miles an hour for a kilometer in opposite directions, 168.074 m. p. h. for a mile in both directions, and 172.331 m. p. h. for a mile one way; then on Wednesday was timed at 170.624 m. p. h. for the kilometer and 171.09 for the mile.

Parry-Thomas' two-way mile record is 12 miles an hour faster than "Tommy" Milton's 156 m. p. h., which the American speedway driver made on the sands at Daytona Beach, Fla., in April, 1920, while his mile record is 16 miles an hour better than Milton's best.

No American Car Fast Enough.

England is likely to hold the kilometer and mile record for a considerable time. There is no car in this country at present that can touch Parry-Thomas' speed, unless it be the Wisconsin Special that Sig Haughdahl claimed to have driven at the rate of 180 miles an hour in Florida. As is generally known, Haughdahl's run was not officially timed and so never has been accepted as a record. His car has been campaigned considerably on the dirt tracks, and in all probability could not be revamped and tuned to meet the Parry-Thomas' freak on even terms.

As will be recalled, Fred Duesenberg, the noted American builder of racers that share with Harry Miller's cars the honors on American speedways, recently discussed in an interview in the Post-Dispatch automobile section, the situation that might result if one of the British drivers succeeded in breaking Milton's record. At that time he said he believed that he could tune up one of his 122-cubic inch racers, which were used last year and in 1924 on the speedways, to beat Milton's 156 m. p. h. One of these cars lapped the Culver City speedway, in California, at 142 miles an hour and should run much faster on the beach. He also said that he was certain that by installing a supercharger, and retuning according to present day racing practice, he could make one of his 183-inch cars, which gave way to the 122-inchers, capable of 180 to 200 m. p. h. Milton's car, with which he made the 156 m. p. h., and also did 5 miles in 2 minutes and 4-100 of a second, or at the rate of 150 m. p. h., was powered with two of Duesenberg's 183-inch engines, each engine drawing a rear wheel. The car was as freakish as is Parry-Thomas'

1. The widest vision of any motor car built. Slender pillars of sturdy steel, replacing wider yet weaker wood—completely eliminate the deadly "blind spot." You can see everywhere.

2. Paige-Hydraulic 4-Wheel Brakes stop this car instantly without jar or jolt. The most expensive braking system built—but the best and the safest.

3. Ball bearing steering spindles and inclined king-pins enable you to guide the New-Day Jewett with your finger-tips, effortlessly and with ease. You can drive all day without fatigue.

4. Highly perfected and wonderfully simplified engine. Powerful—more quickly accelerated—and yet more economical, too. High-pressure oiling to prevent bearing wear and insure smoothness and long life. Full water-jacketing for uniform cooling. Silent chain timing.

5. Extreme accessibility to save you time and money. Not only on the engine but throughout the chassis. Compare with other cars and see how much more quickly and easily you can remove the cylinder head to clean the carbon. See how readily you can get at tappets, timing, electrical units, differential gears and steering gear for adjustments or inspection without removing from car.

6. Oversize construction throughout—built to stand rough treatment. A frame 5½ inches deep where others are 4½ or 5. Springs average one to four inches longer. Clutch, transmission, axles and driveshaft are unusually rugged.

7. More interior room than in many cars of much longer wheelbase. Leg room in front, 40 inches—48 in rear. The same head room as in $3000 cars. Extra wide seats to hold 5 grown persons. More knee room between seats—more passageway to driver's or rear seat than in other 2-door closed cars.

8. Features without number. Adjustable pedal pads—steel running boards—cowl ventilator—dome light—door pockets—semi-automatic spark control—rotary window lifts—beautiful, silky long-wearing upholstery—lacquer finish, rubbed, waxed and polished—coincidental theft-proof lock—large battery capacity—and many others.

BRITISH LIKELY TO HOLD SPEED RECORD FOR A LONG TIME

—built only to run at terrific speed for a relatively short distance.

Duesenberg Too Busy.

Duesenberg also intimated that he might send one of his 122-inch cars to Daytona, to try to beat Milton's 156 m. p. h.

Now, however, Duesenberg is in the midst of tuning his new 91-inch cars to the 500-mile Indianapolis race on Memorial day. After that, of course, he will have his hands full for some time returning his cars for the speedway campaign. So it probably will be months before he or Harry Miller will be able to turn their attention to designing a car to regain the world's speed laurels with the idea of building themselves or to the order of some American driver.

Immediately on learning of Parry-Thomas' feat, the writer telegraphed to Duesenberg. His reply indicates that, so far as he is concerned, Britain will hold the record for some time, but that sooner or later he will have a try at it. His telegram read:

"Your wire first knowledge Parry-Thomas' record 172 miles an hour. Not knowing conditions or car, cannot comment, except that if time was actually made with present day racing motor, it sure was fast. We are not in position to try for this record this year. Hope to have opportunity to try for same later.

Rivals of Parry-Thomas.

Maj. Seagrave and Capt. Campbell, F. S. Duesenberg, who share with Parry-Thomas leadership of the British racing drivers, and Prince Djellaledin of Egypt, who has been tuning a 355-h.-p. car that is said to have done 180 miles per hour in private trials, are the only ones who have racers that appear to have a chance against Parry-Thomas.

E. A. D. Eldridge, another British driver, has a fast car in a 300 h.-p. Fiat, with which he did 146 miles per hour on the Arpajon road, a stretch of four miles of pavement near Paris. But although this performance gave him the world's record beyond question for time made on a highway, his car is not quite in the class of those of Campbell, Seagrave, Parry-Thomas and Prince Djellaledin for beach work.

Parry-Thomas probably is regarded as Britain's leading driver. He has virtually reigned over the Brooklands track, which is the great British speedway. With a Leyland-Thomas eight-cylinder racer, he has virtually been able to defy all competition at Brooklands. He also has to his credit some fast long-distance runs. He lapped the Brooklands track at 125 miles per hour, and did a single mile on the same track at 131.48 miles an hour in the Leyland-Thomas—performances far more startling, because of the nature of the track than is apparent at first reading. He also drove his Leyland-Thomas 142 miles per hour on the Arpajon road, being beaten by Eldridge in the big Fiat.

He has been busy of late months preparing some 91-inch specials for this year's British Grand Prix and other European races. These cars, which have frames like sledges, hung so low that the driver's seat is only five inches above the ground, have been described in this automobile section.

Parry-Thomas' Car Described.

Parry-Thomas' car, with which he did the 172 m. p. h., uses a gallon of gasoline in four miles. Its 12-cylinder engine has two overhead camshifts, which operate two valves to the cylinder. It has four carburetors, which are fitted at the ends of two induction pipes, that are placed between the two banks of cylinders, feeding the valve ports through branching connections. Near the center of each induction pipe is a baffle, to cut down the cross-section area. Each carburetor fitted at the front end of a pipe is provided with an air intake scoop, which faces forward. Two additional scoops below are connected to conduits running between the banks of cylinders, and terminate in semi-circular pipes which conduct the inrushing air to the intake branches of the two rear carburetors.

The radiator slants somewhat and is partly cowled. The steering column is supported by a large bracket in such a position that it is not far from horizontal. Semi-elliptic springs are used, front and rear, with shock absorbers, and also radius rods. The drive to the rear wheels is by chain and sprockets, and the differential is located behind the gear box, which provides four speeds and reverse. The clutch is of the multiple disc type. There is no flywheel. Theoretically, the car should do 180 m. p. h. Dispatches from England immediately after Parry-Thomas' fast runs told of the car being cranked by seven men, using a sort of windlass, and declared he had to start at 70 miles an hour.

Some weeks ago Parry-Thomas abandoned an attempt at the mile record because the Pendine Sands course was in bad condition. After Seagrave made his 152 m. p. h. two-way record, it was stated that the condition of the sands and the tides had made it necessary to postpone further attempts at record-breaking until fall. So Parry-Thomas sprang a surprise Tuesday.

As was the case with Seagrave, Parry-Thomas had trouble with his car at a critical time. It swerved on soft patches of sand, and his automatic oil and gasoline pressure pump faltered, so that he had to use his hand pump with one hand while he steered with the other. So he was making 172 m. p. h steering with one hand.

Seagrave's 300-H. P. Car.

Seagrave recently drove a mile both ways at an average speed of 152.308 miles per hour, and was credited with 154 miles per hour for a mile one way. Trouble with his supercharger prevented him from attaining maximum speed. His car is a 12-cylinder Sunbeam, which develops 300 brake horsepower. Its cylinders are smaller than in the other high-powered machines, the bore being 2⅝ inches and the stroke 3 11-16 inches. Seagrave provided a thrill when his car, while running 150 miles an hour on the Pendine Sands, struck a slight rise and jumped 48 feet, clearing the ground by a foot or more.

Capt. Campbell's car is a 350-horsepower, 12-cylinder Sunbeam, built just after the World War, which held the kilometer and mile records for Europe almost continuously since 1919, attaining speeds of more than 150 miles per hour on Pendine Sands last year, and averaging 150.766 for the mile in two directions. This car has a bore of approximately 4¾ inches and stroke of about 5¾ inches, which gives it a piston displacement of 1200 cubic inches, whereas the cars that will race on American speedways this year have a displacement of only 91 cubic inches. Campbell asserts that this car is capable of 165 miles an hour, but that the Pendine Sands course, which is the best beach in Great Britain, is not long enough for him to work up to full speed.

Campbell Building 550-H. P. Car.

Campbell is preparing to sell this car, because he is building a racer powered with a Napier-Lion airplane type engine of 550-horsepower. This engine has 12 cylinders, with a bore of 5½ inches and stroke of 5⅛ inches. Campbell's old car has cylinders arranged in 'V' fashion, in blocks of six. There are three valves per cylinder, operated by overhead camshafts. Ignition is by two 12-cylinder magnetos, with two spark plugs to the cylinder, and two double Claudel carburetors. The car has four speeds and reverse, and makes 55 miles per hour on low gear, 90 on second and 142 on third. On third it quickly reaches 140 miles per hour and never is put into high until that speed is attained. High gear ratio is only 1½ to 1, and, as has been told, Campbell insists that with a long enough course the car will do 165 miles per hour in high. It does about seven miles per hour for each 100 revolutions per minute, and maximum engine speed is 2600 revolutions per minute.

Campbell's car, powered with the 5½x5⅛ inch 12-cylinder Napier-Lion airplane engine, has a piston displacement of 1460 cubic inches. Its 12 cylinders are arranged in three banks of four each, in what is known as "W" style. One block of cylinders is set vertically on the crank case, the others being inclined to it on an angle of 60 degrees, on each side.

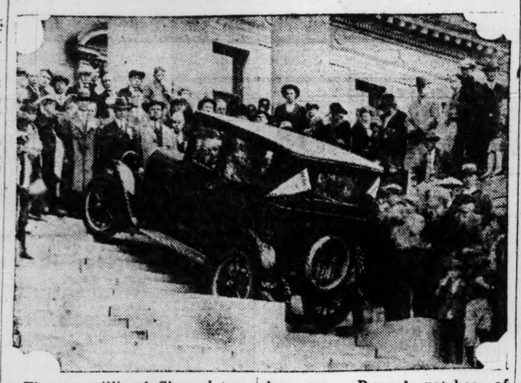
Prince's 355 H. P. Racer.

Prince Djellaledin's car is a straight eight, with bore of 4¼ inches and stroke of 5½ inches, and develops 355 brake horse power. Its piston displacement is 610 cubic inches. It has a maximum engine speed of 3000 r. p. m. and has no supercharger, though one probably will be fitted. The engine has four overhead valves to the cylinder, two dual Zenith carburetors, and a 9-bearing crankshaft. Final drive is by bevel gears, there being no differential, and the treads are widely at variance, the front being 59½ inches, while the rear is only 38. The car weighs only 2000 pounds, whereas Parry-Thomas' is reported to weigh about 4000. As has been told, the Prince declares the car has touched 180 m. p. h. in private trials.

Haughdahl's Wisconsin Special is a 6-cylinder car, with bore of 5 inches and stroke of 6½ inches, and with two valves—each 3 inches in diameter—to the cylinder, overhead camshaft, and double magneto ignition. It has no supercharger.

Milton's 156 m. p. h. car had ... cylinders, for it was powered ... two 183 cubic inch Duesenberg straight eight engines, with bore of 2½ inches and stroke of ... inches. Each engine had its own clutch and was hooked up to the rear wheel. Special clutches ...

Climbs 45-Degree Building Steps



The two-millionth Chevrolet car produced by the Chevrolet Motor Co. recently climbed the steps of the new State capitol building at Jackson, Miss., while members of the adjourning State Legislature viewed the performance. A heavy rain made the climb, at a 45 degree angle, hazardous, but failed to scatter a crowd of more than 7000 which waited throughout the downpour. Burned patches of rubber on the steps marked the progress of the coach up the steep incline, indicating the power necessary to make the ascent. The climb has been made only once before, and several powerful cars recently failed to reach the top.

After making the climb the car backed down, demonstrating the holding power of its brakes, then repeated the climb.

GASOLINE BOOTLEGGER BECOMING A PROBLEM

Officials of Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma Seek Way to End His Activities.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok.—State officials of Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri have been wrestling with the gasoline bootlegging problem. They have reached a general conclusion that illegal interstate transportation and sales of gasoline can not be stopped by uniform enforcement regulations and by uniform gasoline taxes in these and adjoining states. Until that is accomplished, or partially accomplished, some system of state-line patrol to check gasoline bootlegging may be established.

At a conference held in Joplin, it was agreed that another conference should be held later in the year, probably at Little Rock or Hot Springs, Ark., and that gasoline inspection officials of Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas, Texas and Louisiana also be asked to attend.

"The most formidable thing these states could do, in my opinion," says E. D. Graham, director of the bureau of gasoline inspection of the Oklahoma Corporation Commission, "is to recommend that a uniform tax law prevail throughout these states. So long as the tax is lower in one state than in another, it will be difficult to prevent bootlegging of gasoline. The best instrument for enforcement is a set of rules that is uniform."

Since the subjects to be discussed at the next conference are related purely to administration of rules and tax reforms, it is unlikely that representatives of refining and wholesale gasoline concerns will be invited to attend.

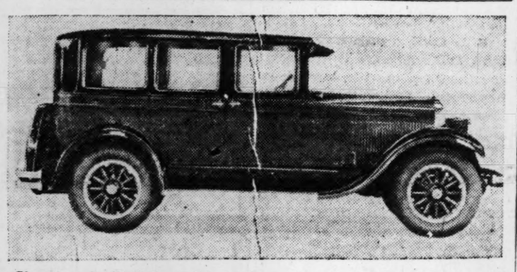
Chrysler "80" Romps Over Hills



Chrysler six "80" Imperial 5-passenger sedan which recently made a flying trip in high gear to De Soto, Mo., and back over notorious Frisco and Seckman hills.

How the Big Chrysler "80" Performs on the Open Road

High Gear Trip Over the Hills to De Soto and Back Reveals Exceptional Smoothness and Power and Roadability.

By "SPENCE."

When the Chrysler "80" imperial model was announced in January, the writer took one on a trip around the city. As the car had been driven only a few miles, it was not fair to push it to high speeds. But it ran so smoothly and displayed so much power in tests in Forest Park that a strong desire was aroused to see what it would do when thoroughly 'broken in."

Like a Jaunt to the Park.

Saturday the writer made a high-gear trip over the hills of the old Lemay Ferry road to De Soto and back in a Chrysler "80" that had been run some 4000 miles. The car was a sedan weighing around 4200 pounds—a type that usually performs none too well on the grades because of the weight. The Lemay Ferry road is still gravel after a mile or so beyond the Meramec River, and Saturday it was in generally good condition, but with some rough spots. Its grades are notorious, especially Seckman and Frisco hills. But the Chrysler ran so smoothly and sweetly throughout that the 100-mile trip amounted to no more than a run through the park in the evening.

Relaxed, restful motoring became a pleasant fact. Certainly, to go to De Soto and back over those hills in three hours and five minutes without any effort to make time speaks volumes for the Chrysler's roadability and power.

Velvety Smooth Power.

Much of the car's really extraordinary riding ease and comfort is due to the rubber mounting of the rear engine supports and the hanging of the spring ends in rubber blocks instead of the conventional shackles. Engine and road shocks are cushioned away from the body. The Chrysler method of mounting the springs parallel to the wheels also contributed materially to roadability, especially in preventing side sway and enabling the car to be driven at speed around curves without swinging out of the tracks.

The Chrysler did all the acceleration stunts with a velvety smoothness that was impressive. It crawled in high at a walking pace without an engine tremor. It went quietly in high up a grade behind a team and wagon at 8 to 10 miles an hour. On the stiffest pitch encountered during the morning it dropped to 10 miles an hour and held that pace in high for 200 yards without a quiver of protest. On a long upgrade going toward De Soto that is noted for its numerous curves the car showed so much power that it had to be throttled down on every turn.

At high speed the rear end clung to the road, whether on the straight or on curves. On the rough stretches it rode like a Pullman car on a level track.

So smoothly did the engine run that 50 miles an hour really seemed like 30, and 60 was made without vibration or travel noises. If the Chrysler "80" has a vibration period, it did not show in the 100 miles of varied running. In fact, the car may justly be described as vibrationless. No attempt was made to extend the Chrysler for a public highway is no place for 80 miles an hour driving. But on a stretch that was somewhat upgrade it was going 60 miles an hour before the writer realized it, and its speed was increasing so rapidly and effortlessly that there seemed no reason to doubt that 80 miles an hour would have been reached in another half mile.

Altogether, here is a car in which one should be able to drive 400 to 500 miles in a day without fatigue, while a 300-mile run in it should be only an easy eight-hour jaunt. A really great automobile is this Chrysler "80," a worthy big companion to the speedy Chrysler "70" and the Chrysler "58." A trip in it is an experience to be remembered with keen pleasure.

The car was driven Saturday by Bartlett M. Hall of the sales force of G. M. Berry, Inc., Chrysler distributor in St. Louis.

REO IMPROVES SPEED WAGON

Standard Gear Shift and Braking System on New Type of Famous Model.

A new Reo speed wagon, improved in appearance and with numerous added features, is being shown by the Kardell Motor Car Co., Reo distributer in this district.

It has a longer, higher hood that the former speed wagon. A cowl, a cowl ventilator and a sun visor have been added. The wheelbase is two inches longer. A different cab has been fitted, similar to that on the heavy-duty speed wagon.

The seat is divided, and a 19-gallon tank has been placed under the seat, the tank filler coming between the seats, so that it is not necessary to remove anything to fill it with gasoline.

The steering has been improved, and now is similar to that used on the heavy-duty speed wagon. Choke and ignition have been removed from the steering column and now are on the instrument board. The steering wheel is adjustable. Headlights are of the tilting type used on the Reo passenger car. The windshield is of the one-piece type.

Gear shift and braking system now are standard on this new speed wagon, whose price is $1090 at the factory for the four-cylinder model and $150 more for the six-cylinder model.

CAR SHORTAGE PREDICTED BY RICKENBACKER PRESIDENT

"It is already here—the usual spring shortage of automobiles," says B. F. Everitt, president and general manager Rickenbacker Motor Co., "but this year the shortage threatens to be unusually long."

"All indications are that the shortage will be more acute during the next three months than at any previous period in the history of the industry.

"This condition is due to the fact that, because of the lateness of the season—most sections reporting it three to four weeks late—automobile manufacturers opened the safety valve and left it open too long.

"That, by the way, has been one of the most important developments in this industry; the safety valve and our ability to use it," says Everitt. "Production methods have been brought to such a state of perfection and of flexibility that those manufacturers who are best equipped, can slacken production 25 or even 50 per cent when for a brief spell, retail sales let up, and yet not incur a prohibitive overhead."

DEEPEST FRAME ON U. S. CAR IS THAT OF MARMON

The deepest frame used on any American car is that of the Marmon, which is 10 full inches from top to bottom in section. This is two inches deeper than the frame of any other American car registered. The running boards of Marmon cars are really steel side bumpers, being hot riveted to the frame so that they are made solid parts of it and adding greatly to its strength and rigidity.

Woman Becomes Auto Dealer

Mrs. Anna J. Johannes and the sales and service station for Cleveland cars that she has established and is managing in Webster Groves.

WOMAN DEALER DRIVES CAR FROM FACTORY TO MAKE SALE

Proving that there is nothing about the automobile business to daunt a woman, Mrs. Anna J. Johannes, proprietor of the Johannes Motor Co. of Webster Groves, has just driven a Cleveland six coupe through from the factory at Cleveland, O., and delivered it. Mrs. Johannes sold the Cleveland, but when she called on the St. Louis Cleveland distributor, the Cleveland Motor Sales Co., for the car, there was none in stock. Rather than take a chance of losing the sale, she left Monday for Cleveland. Thursday she was back with the coupe, having driven it all the way through alone. She reported a pleasant trip and no trouble of any nature.

Mrs. Johannes became interested in the taxicab business a year or more ago and has been operating the Webster Groves Cab Co. with her son, Milton Johannes. Expansion into the automobile business seemed to come naturally, and about two months ago she organized the Johannes Motor Co. and obtained an associate dealership for the Cleveland car. She is actively managing the concern, and says she finds it most interesting.

BRITISH PLAN TO RESTRICT RUBBER SHIPMENTS AGAIN

Restriction of rubber exports to 80 per cent of the standard production from British plantations in Ceylon and Malaya will go into effect for the quarter beginning Aug. 1, if rubber falls below 42 cents a pound during the quarter beginning next May 1.

American Busses in Bolivia.

Four new American busses have arrived in La Paz, Bolivia, and are being put into service.

J. H. NEWMARK WRITES BOOK

Among the new business books of the season is "Automobile Salesmanship" in two volumes prepared and edited by J. H. Newmark, head of J. H. Newmark, Inc., advertising agency, New York, who has spent nearly 20 years specializing in automobile sales promotion and advertising, 15 of which were with General Motors and Durant companies. This work is said to be the first comprehensive and practical course of study published since the inception of the industry, and dealing with this important subject.

AUTO BUILT OF SHEET METAL BY WELDING PROCESS

Chassis Weighs Only 800 Pounds—Engine Made Out of Steel Tubes and Thin Pieces of Iron.

Much interest has been aroused in Europe by an automobile built of welded sheet metal after the design of a Hungarian engineer, Eugene Fejes.

Even the engine is built up by welding tubes and sheet iron. The chassis, including engine, has a wheelbase of 120 inches, but weighs only 800 pounds.

The Fejes car was tested on the Brooklands track in England, by officers of the Royal Automobile Club, and performed well, reaching a speed of 60 miles an hour with a gear ratio of 4 to 1 and climbing grades well.

The frame is made of 4 pieces of sheetiron, welded at the edges to form a hollow girder, and is very light, but rigid and strong. Webs are welded inside the girders.

The axles are made of thin sheets welded, with rings welded on, at intervals for reinforcement. The wheels are made of pressed steel sections welded together.

The engine has a cast cylinder head. Steel tubes for the cylinders are screwed into the head and welded, while valve seats, spark plug settings, water jackets, etc., are welded into place. The crankcase also is built up of sheet metal.

A 3-bearing crankshaft is used. The flywheel is a casting. A conventional multiple disc, metal-to-metal disc clutch is used. The gears and drive to the rear axle are of the usual type

The bore of the 4-cylinder engine is 2.36 inches, while the stroke is 4.33 inches.

ST. LOUISANS ON SAFETY CONFERENCE STEERING BOARD

At the request of Gov. Baker, four St. Louisans spent Thursday in Jefferson City in consultation with him and with State Labor Commissioner Roye B. Hinkle in regard to the State highway safety conference to be held at the State Capitol May 10-11.

Those who went from St. Louis and are members of the Steering Committee of the conference, were Capt. Robert E. Lee, manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association and president of the St. Louis Safety Council; Matt F. Morse, general manager of the Automobile Club of Missouri; G. C. Varnum, director of the St. Louis Safety Council, and H. R. Northrup, branch manager of the National Bureau Casualty and Surety Underwriters. They were met by representatives from other parts of the State, including Julian H. Harvey, director of the Kansas City Safety Council, and formulated plans for the conference.

Invitations have been sent by the general chairman of the committee, Labor Commissioner Hinkle, to representative men and representative business and civic organizations of Missouri, and it is expected that 1000 delegates will attend the conference, which will be opened by Gov. Baker the morning of May 10.

OLDS RETAIL SALES INCREASE

Statistics on the automotive industry compiled by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce show that a new March shipping record established by the industry in March, when shipments increased 19 per cent over March, 1925. March reports issued by Olds Motor Works covering actual Oldsmobile retail sales show an increase of 51.9 per cent in March this year over March last year. Oldsmobile retail deliveries in this same period increased 65 per cent over the first quarter of last year.

BUS TRAFFIC INCREASING

That travel by motor bus is becoming more popular each year is indicated by the report made by Howard H. Morfan, vice president of the United States, Inc., that his company carried more than 777,000 passengers last year. The concern operates bus lines from Los Angeles to Imperial Valley and has a network of lines in the valley. Since the bus company started operating its first line, over 14 years ago, it has carried over 9,000,000 passengers.

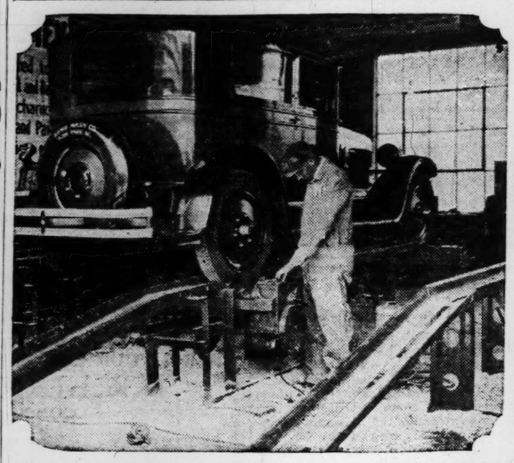
CAR OWNERS MAY NOW MAKE THEIR TIRES PUNCTURE-PROOF

A remarkable puncture-proofing process has just been perfected by the Rubberfold Mfg. Co., Chicago, which makes it easily possible for car owners to puncture-proof their own tires without removing them from the wheel. All necessity of tire changing is, therefore, completely removed until the casings are worn out. This process is sold under a money-back guarantee at a few cents cost per tire. A free introductory offer is being made to agents. Letters should be addressed to A. F. Hartman, 338 W. 47th St., Chicago.

For Scientific Brake Testing



Brake testing machine installed by General Brake Service Corporation in St. Louis.

BRAKE TESTER HIGHLY EFFICIENT

Adjustment of brakes to a remarkable degree of accuracy, with marked saving of time, is made possible by testing apparatus just installed by the General Brake Service Corp., formerly the A-C Brake Shop, in its new service station at 2727 Locust boulevard. With the help of this tester, brakes can be adjusted so that equal power is exerted on all drums, while with four-wheel brakes the proper proportion of power to be exerted on front and rear brakes can be determined.

With its aid two mechanics adjusted the brakes on 218 cars Monday, whereas 50 cars would have been about their limit without it, according to William Chaudet, head of the firm.

The tester consists of a channel steel frame elevated somewhat above the ground. A car is driven onto it and each wheel naturally rests between two corrugated drums opefated by an electric motor and with a pressure meter. The brake pedals are pushed halfway down, setting the brakes to that extent. The motor is then switched on the drums holding each car wheel in turn. The meter registers the force, in pounds, that the drums exert to turn the wheel against the grip of the brake. As the mechanic adjusts a brake he switches the machine on and off until, if the car has only two-wheel brakes, he has both brakes operating as nearly as possible with the same power. If the car has four-wheel brakes, he first adjusts the rear brakes, then adjusts the front wheel brakes to set with 40 per cent less power. That is, if the rear brakes on a car are adjusted to a standard of 40 pounds, the front brakes are set for about 24 pounds. Of course, the standard varies for different makes of cars and for various models of the same make.

After the brakes have been fully adjusted, each is tested in the machine for possible drag. Here the machine is especially useful, as even half a pound of drag on a brake is registered.

The tester obviates the necessity of sliding cars with the brakes set or running a car "around the block" to see how the adjustment works. So there is no danger of a car being wrecked by a workman.

The tester is only part of Chaudet's brake testing and adjusting system, which is combined with expert lubrication service. He has a machine for trueing up brake drums, saving the cost of replacing drums. A battery of other machines of different sizes enables the shop to reline brakes in an almost incredibly short time. The service shop has a number of individual stalls, each with its own door, so there is no need to shift cars around to let others in and out of the shop. It also has a stall, 15 feet high, for trucks with large bodies.

Chaudet has put his shop on a flat rate basis, and has a force of 21 employes. There is a foreman for work on hydraulic brakes and one for work on mechanical four-wheel brakes.

He has a special service for automobile dealers. If a workman has not gone to the dealer's place, returned with the brakes to the shop, relined them and got them back to the dealer in half an hour after the dealer telephoned, there is no charge. The dealer's men, of course, have the brake bands off and ready.

Incidentally, Chaudet has one type of brake lining which he guarantees unconditionally to last a year. It is supposed to stand 1,000,000 stops or 35,000 miles of running. Service drivers use it extensively.

SHARP PRICE CUT ON FRANKLIN CARS

With retail sales bettering the record in 1925, which showed a 42 per cent increase over 1924, the Franklin Automobile Co. announces a substantial price reduction on Franklin cars as a first step in an extensive factory expansion program. The sedan, leader in the Franklin line, which a year ago was priced at $3200 at the factory, has been reduced to $2790, or $410 less. Other price reductions on Franklins announced by the Franklin Motor Car Co. of St. Louis range up to $315. It also is announced that in June a 4-passenger victoria model will be added to the Franklin line.

Continuing the practice originated by this company, the new prices include complete equipment, making the car "ready for the road" with only tax and transportation to be added. Standard equipment on the Franklin includes Watson stabilators, balloon tires, high-pressure oiling, front bumper, rear bumperettes, reserve gasoline gauge, automatic windshield wiper, rear-vision mirror, automatic stop light, adjustable sun visor, transmission lock, fuel transformer, electric primer, air cleaner, gascolator, spare tire and rim, tube, tire cover and tire lock.

In announcing the new prices, H. H. Franklin, president of the Franklin factory, said: "Having realized our ambition to produce a style leader among automobiles, we are now about to realize another ambition—the production of that car at a price assuring a broad market. In creating this beautiful Franklin, we also advanced our standard of high quality and made it the best of all Franklins. This standard will be maintained."

The Franklin line includes sedan, oxford sedan, auxiliary seat sedan, sport sedan, coupe, rumble seat coupe, victoria, sport runabout, touring, enclosed-drive limousine and cabriolet.

The company also maintains a custom body department, headed by de Causse, designer of the present Franklin line.

50 PER CENT GAIN IN SALES O FOVERLAND SIXES REPORTED

Retail sales of the Overland Six throughout the country for April were 50 per cent over the sales for the same month last year and at a total rate for the year which, if maintained, will bring this model well up to the position of the largest selling motor car in the light six field.

The sales increase is not confined to any one section but is general in all parts of the country and with the opening of the roads in the northern sections a noticeable spurt in the total volume of orders received at the factory has developed within the past two weeks.

Dealers stocks in this model throughout the country are somewhat below normal for this period of the year, the demands on the factory having been of such a nature as to eliminate any possibility of the dealers stocking up although it is not unusual for dealers' supplies om cars on hand, in early May to be large in anticipation of the usual orders at this time of the year.

STRIPPED CHASSIS OF STUTZ EIGHT SHOWN IN ST. LOUIS

A stripped chassis of the new Stutz eight is being shown by the Benjamin Motor Co. All the features that have made the new Stutz so widely talked of are to be seen, including the worm rear drive, the hydrostatic four-wheel brakes, the engine set on a slight slant so as to give direct drive to the rear wheels, the chassis oiling system from the motor.

While use of the worm drive permits the bodies of Stutz cars to be set five inches lower than on other automobiles, inspection of the chassis proves that clearance above the roadway has not been sacrificed.

CUBA TO BUILD HIGHWAY

Commercial Attache R. M. Connell at Havana has advised the Department of Commerce that preparations for construction of the Cuban Central Highway will proceed rapidly under a decision of President Machado's Cabinet. The proposed highway will be approximately 750 miles in length.

UNNECESSARY BOULEVARD STOPS BOOST GAS BILLS

$8143 Worth of Fuel Used Daily to Make Stops in Los Angeles County.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 1.—What is the future of the boulevard stop?

Following the general adoption of this traffic measure by nearly all cities in Southern California, traffic experts are giving the operation of the plan their serious consideration.

Designed to facilitate motoring, the boulevard stop was initiated by the Automobile Club of Southern California for use at heavily traversed intersections to avert accidents, congestion and delay.

It is pointed out by students of the situation that to overdo the boulevard stop by applying it promiscuously without regard to volume of traffic will not only defeat the purpose for which it was originally intended, but will tend to increase traffic congestion by slowing down traffic, as well as cause loss of time to individuals and further expense in the operation of cars.

To determine the effect of the boulevard stop law on the cost of motoring in general, tests were made recently by the engineering department of the Automobile Club of Southern California. These indicate that the 580,000 motor vehicles in Los Angeles County make approximately 11,600,000 stops daily. These stops cause 45,240 gallons of gasoline to be consumed that otherwise would not be. The cost of this gasoline is $8143 daily, or $3,772,195 yearly. No account was taken of the wear and tear on brake linings and tires.

AUBURN PRESIDENT ON TRIP TO PACIFC COAST

E. L. Cord, president of the Auburn Automobile Co. is touring the Pacific Coast to visit Auburn car distributers, bankers and others to find out the business trend. Cord says he believes that if one wants to find out what people want he would better go to the people to get ideas for building of a motor car from the men who are going to use it. For that reason he has made it his business to cover the United States at least once a year.

You have heard it—"they are all good automobiles"—

THE impression is current that all cars sold at approximately the same price give approximately the same results. But there never was a time in motor car history when there was less basis of fact for such an impression.

Today, there are two ways of building motor cars. One is to forget quality and build cars for trading purposes. The cost of production is cut to the bone, so that dealers may offer you more than the market value for your used car.

The Buick way is to build for quality's sake—to give owners a better new car—full of value—with every modern feature.

Compare Buick design with that of other cars of the same or higher list price, and fix Buick superiority firmly in your mind, before you spend your money.

THIRD in the World
-and Sales still mounting

During the first three months of 1926 Dodge Brothers, Inc., built and sold more motor vehicles than any other manufacturer in the world, except Ford and Chevrolet.

71,189 retail deliveries were made by Dodge Brothers Dealers in the United States and Canada between January second and April third. This represents a gain of 37 per cent over the same period last year and 69 per cent over the first quarter of 1924!

Third largest in the world! And sales CONTINUING to mount week after week to new record breaking levels.

In fact, during the week ending April 24th retail sales reached the remarkable total of 9,566—the greatest single week in Dodge Brothers history!

These figures are all the more significant when you realize that the gain of the industry as a whole over last year is only 12 per cent.

There could be no more convincing evidence that today's product is regarded as better than ever before and that the present prices make it the most impressive value Dodge Brothers have ever offered.

Bullet Type Lights On Paige Roadster

As attractive a pair of headlights as have been seen on any automobile are the bullet type with which the new Paige cabriolet roadster is equipped. They are made in heavily nickeled brass, and have very much the air of the custom built. Also their rays penetrate fog for long distances. Incidentally, the delivered price of this Paige roadster, which is shown by the Wilson Motor Car Co., is $2432, not $2410, as was stated last Sunday.

Peerless Six "80" De Luxe Sedan

A new de luxe sedan has been added to the Peerless six-80 line, according to advices to the Park Automobile Co., distributer in St. Louis. The new body is said to be exceptionally luxurious for a moderate-priced car. It will be $1795 at factory. The entire exterior is finished in dust-proof, weather-proof lacquer, with fenders, dust shields, hood and winter front in the same color as the body. Bumpers in front and bumperettes in the rear are standard. Although the wheelbase of the six-"80" is shorter than that of any other car Peerless has built, the body is exceptionally roomy and comfortable. The upholstery is of a fine grade of mohair. Heavy cord pulls on either side facilitate rising from the low, comfortable rear seat. As in all Peerless closed models, an extension of the top serves as a sun visor.

Autos Use Much Alcohol.

Automobiles used 34,000,000 of the 88,000,000 gallons of industrial alcohol withdrawn under permits in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1925.

ANALYSIS OF TREND TOWARD RACERS WITH SMALL MOTORS

Motor of 122-Cubic Inches Much Faster Than 597-Inch Ones Formerly Used.

In view of the talk, which has been growing stronger of late, that this country is soon to produce small cars with European type high speed motors and 4-wheel brakes, both for domestic sale and export, the following comparison of speeds made by cars with variously sized engines in the 500-mile Indianapolis race may be of interest.

In 1911, the Indianapolis race was open to cars with piston displacement under 600 cubic inches. The largest motor entered had a displacement of 597.2 cubic inches and averaged 71.13 miles per hour. The winner was a 447.1 inch car, that averaged 74.59 m. p. h.

In 1912 the largest motor had a displacement of 597.16 cubic inches and averaged 56.2 m. p. h.. The winner, a 490.8-inch car, averaged 78.7.

In 1913 the maximum displacement was reduced to 450 cubic inches, the largest car entered having 449 cubic inch displacement and averaging 63.08 m. p. h. The winner, with 448.18 cubic inch engine, averaged 76.92.

In 1914 the winner was a 880.2-inch car, averaged 82.47 m. p. h.

In 1915, 1916 and 1919 the displacement was cut to 300 cubic inches. The winner in 1915 averaged 89.84 miles an hour with a 274-inch motor. In 1916, an average of 83.26 miles an hour was made with a motor of the same dimensions. In 1919, the average was 88.06 with a motor of 274.6 cubic inches.

In 1920 when the maximum allowed was 183 cubic inches, and this was continued through 1921 and 1922, the best average speed in these three years being 94.48 miles an hour, with a 181.44-inch motor.

In 1923 and 1924 the size of motors was restricted to 122 cubic inches. During these two years the maximum average speed was 98.23 miles an hour by a motor with the maximum displacement.

The speed of the cars increased materially with the decrease in piston displacement, or with the increase in mechanical efficiency. The smaller motors were of the high speed type generally used in Europe. A decrease of 79 per cent in piston displacement was followed by an increase of 31 per cent in speed capacity.

While the decrease in piston displacement of motors in passenger cars has not been commensurate with the decrease in racing motors, still there has been a marked trend toward the higher speed power plant.

NET EARNINGS OF G. M. C. $40,644,576 FOR 3 MONTHS

Net earnings of General Motors in the first quarter of 1926 were $40,644,576. This compares with $18,903,489 in the corresponding period of 1925. There is included in the 1926 earnings $5,789,760 representing undivided profits of subsidiary operations in excess of dividends received. After deducting dividends on the preferred stock of $1,910,634, there remains $38,733,942, equivalent to $7.50 per share on the common stock, compared with $16,993,129, or $3.29 per share in the corresponding period last year. These earnings establish a new record for any quarter in the history of the corporation. Cash in banks, Government securities, temporary loans and marketable securities as of March 31 amounted to $136,899,249. Retail deliveries to consumers were 224,720 cars, an increase of 65.5 per cent over the corresponding period of last year.

I Know What I Want

Come to think of it, I never have gone into an automobile salesroom, picked out the car I really wanted and bought it . . . Always I have let the matter slide until some salesman I never saw or heard of before . . . and of whose judgment in motor cars or anything else I knew nothing . . . came in and sold me . . . Generally he succeeded in selling me a car I had not been considering, either . . . and which I didn't like after I got it.

Now I know what I want . . . this time I am going to reverse the order, decide for myself . . . and give some automobile salesman the surprise of his young life.

Going in tomorrow and buy the car I want.

I have decided I want to own a Rickenbacker.

Six . . . or Vertical-Eight?

Not sure on that point . . . some friends who own them tell me you get all you can possibly want in a Rickenbacker Six . . . Others insist there is a super-something in the performance of that Vertical Eight that sets the blood a'tingle every time you touch the accelerator.

All agree, tho, that the utmost in up-to-dateness in body design . . . quality of upholstering . . . finish . . . and other details that are dear to my heart and hers . . . are to be found only in a Rickenbacker . . . unless you pay two or three thousand dollars more . . . and they will have to show me the difference before I will pay that.

As for the chassis . . . I guess there is no contention on that score . . . For five years at least the Rickenbacker chassis has been held up as the most outstanding example of fine engineering . . . and beautiful construction . . . on either continent.

Every salesman I have ever talked to either openly admitted . . . or unconsciously conceded . . . that superiority to Rickenbacker . . . while trying to convince me his car was just as good.

I follow these things fairly closely . . . a car is a mighty important thing in one's everyday life. I have observed that Rickenbacker was first to introduce (and prove) the advantages of all the really great engineering discoveries since the war.

First to use two fly wheels . . . first with 4-wheel brakes . . . mechanical brakes, too . . . My experience of the last year tells me mechanical brakes must be the only kind . . . certainly must be safer . . . solid metal can't leak anyway!

Rickenbacker was proclaiming "Air Cleaners" three years ago . . . sounded foolish to me at the time . . . why clean air?

But this year I notice they are all hollering about their air cleaners . . . those very makers and dealers who then told me it was a useless appendage . . . now say it is vital to the life of the motor!

Interesting, when you think of it . . . how this post-war concern could have shown the way to all the old fellows . . . in so many important improvements and inventions . . . Easy, tho, when you consider Rickenbacker engineers had nothing to discard . . . could design a post-war car from the ground up.

Here I sit selling myself this car . . . mentally I bought one long since.

I buy a Rickenbacker . . . mentally . . . every time one of the lithe things slides past me on the road . . . or jumps ahead of me in a traffic jam . . . or stops when I can't stop . . . never a sound from those brakes either . . . that shows they don't grab . . . no question in my mind about those brakes being better . . . friends who drive them say there just are no other brakes in the world.

I know what I want . . . I crave the pleasure that comes from the ownership of a super-anything.

Yes, I admit, I like to see friends glance admiringly . . . and rivals look enviously . . . at my car as I glide by.

I know what I want—I want a Rickenbacker . . . and before another salesman gets hold of me . . . and diverts me from my desire . . . I am going to phone the Rickenbacker dealer to have a car ready for me to drive—right now. Let's see . . . dealer's name is Rickenbacker St. Louis Company.

Rickenbacker St. Louis Company show room at 2218 Locust St . . . and phone? Oh yes, CEntral 1852.

Rickenbackers are made in "Sixes" and "Vertical Eights"—all popular body types—prices range from $1695 to $2595—f. o. b. Detroit, plus tax

A New World's Record!

10,000 Pontiac Sixes in the First Three Months

During the first three months of its existence, more than 10,000 new Pontiac Sixes have been produced and sold—a record not even remotely approached by any other new automobile in the history of the industry.

And by mid-summer the number produced will exceed the best record heretofore made by any car during its first full year.

As evidence of Pontiac value — of Pontiac beauty, performance and stamina — this fact must have a very definite meaning to thinking buyers.

Shrewd and motor-wise, the public instantly saw in the Pontiac a car that filled the definite need for a Six of low price and unquestioned quality.

From the very outset, buyers approached the car with confidence—because they knew that the Pontiac Six represented three years of research and refinement on the part of General Motors engineers.

They knew that Pontiac Six design had stood months of intensive development and testing at the General Motors Proving Ground.

They knew that General Motors had provided for the most exacting standards of material and workmanship—despite a price so low as to border on the sensational.

Then, in a single ride, they experienced a performance so breath-taking and brilliant as to remove any doubt from their minds.

They saw the superior craftsmanship of the spacious, durably upholstered Fisher closed body, finished in rich Duco colors, attractively panelled and striped.

They saw every evidence of painstaking care in the selection of those features and equipment items that are the basis of unimpaired comfort, pride of ownership, and permanent satisfaction.

And the orders they have placed—and continue to place in ever-increasing volume—are taxing the capacity of the Oakland-Pontiac factories, despite heroic preparations and the investment of millions for additional equipment.

So we urge you to arrange now for delivery of a Pontiac Six when you want it. Act today. A world's production record in three months forecasts an avalanche of orders from all over the country. Is your order in?

Oakland Six, companion to the Pontiac Six—$1025 to $1295. All prices at factory.
Easy to pay on the General Motors Time Payment Plan

SHAW TO SPEAK AT AUTO DEALERS' ANNUAL MEETING

LYNN M. SHAW, assistant general manager of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, will be the principal speaker at the annual meeting tomorrow evening of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association at the Claridge Hotel, following a dinner at 6.

Annual reports of the retiring president, F. C. McDonald of the Southwest Nash Co., and of the retiring treasurer, W. H. Vesper, of the Vesper-Buick Auto Co., will be presented, together with the annual report of the association's manager, Robert E. Lee. Following this, there will be election of a president, vice president, a treasurer and three directors to serve for two years, there being three holdovr directors. Associate members of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association are urged to attend to hear the address of Shaw, as well as to participate in the meeting.

The St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association now has 100 per cent of all the distributers of automobiles in St. Louis as members and a considerable portion of the subdealers.

GEORGE WEBER ADDRESSES SERVICE MANAGERS' BUREAU

A MEETING of the Service Managers' Bureau of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association was held at the Claridge Hotel Friday night. George Weber, president of the Weber Implement and Automobile Co., discussed "How a Service Manager Can Injure Business." Dan E. Hyland of the Stewart-Warner Products Corporation spoke on "Selling Accessories by Service Managers." Dennis Sawyer of the Automotive Electrcial Service Co. talked on "Electrical Equipment Troubles and Remedies," while W. J. Miller, chairman of the bureau, spoke on "Care and Adjustment of Speedometers."

JONES & LORTZ SALES, INC., TO BE HUDSON-ESSEX DEALERS

The Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co. has appointed the Jones & Lortz Motor Sales, Inc., 2809-11 North Grand boulevard, as one of its metropolitan sales agencies.

The firm's secretary and treasurer is Adrian A. Lortz, who for the last two years has handled city sales of the Lubrite Oil Corporation. For 11 years before that, he was sales and construction engineer for the Fulton Iron Works and built mills in Cuba, South America, England, France and South Africa. He will have charge of the firm's service department.

Norman A. Jones, who is president of the company, has been in the automobile business for six years, and is an experienced sales manager. He is a member of the Missouri Athletic Association and Sunset Hill Country Club.

UNITED STATES TIRE SALES CONFERENCE HELD IN ST. LOUIS

United States tire salesmen operating in St. Louis branch territory and branch office employes interested in tire sales met at Hotel Statler Monday. George L. Shugart of New York, vice president of the United States Rubber Co. and general sales manager of its tire division; P. C. Anderson of Chicago, and T. R. Burton of Detroit, field sales managers; W. H. Buschell of New York, of the technical service department, and a representative of the George L. Dyer Advertising Agency of New York, spoke.

Sales plans and additions to the line were discussed, and optimism was expressed as to business prospects for the balance of the year. The business session was presided over by George W. Manchester, manager of tire sales at the St. Louis branch, and was followed by a dinner in the evening.

The St. Louis branch territory includes Eastern Missouri, Southern Illinois, Arkansas and parts of Kentucky, Mississippi and Tennessee.

REPLACEMENT PARTS AND JOBBERS' BUREA UFORMED

Members of the Automotive Accessory Association of St. Louis recently put into active operation two important bureaus. The latest to be formed is the Replacement Parts Bureau, members of which are selected from St. Louis firms which deal exclusively or largely in replacement parts for motor cars. Charles A. Marion of the H. & H. Machine Co., is chairman of this bureau and W. T. Mills of the Auto Parts Co. is vice chairman.

The other bureau is known as the Jobbers' Bureau, its members being exclusive jobbing houses which are memebrs of the Automotive Accessory Association. George L. Nellkamp, of the Beck & Corbitt Iron Co., is chairman of this bureau and Frank Quan, of the Fred Campbell Auto Supply Co., is vice chairman.

Robert E. Lee, who is manager of the parent association, is secretary of both bureaus, which hold meetings separate from the parent association on call of the chairmen.

WILLYS-KNIGHT SHOWS BIG HORSE-POWER DEVELOPMENT

Tests recently completed by the engineering department of Willys-Overland, Inc., on the new Willys-Knight six "70" motor, are said to show that this power plant develops greater horsepower per cubic inch of piston displacement throughout its entire range than any other stock American built automobile engine.

The motor in this car is of the high speed type with a bore 2 15-16 inches and a stroke of 4¾ inches. This gives a piston displacement of 185 cubic inches.

The results, in performance, are shown in very rapid acceleration, a pronounced ability on hills and a speed range well in excess of 60 miles an hour for the sedan model.

KISSEL ST. LOUIS CO. HAS TAKEN OVER DISTRIBUTERSHIP

The Kissel St. Louis Co. has taken over the distributership of Kissel cars in this district from the Renaud Motor Car Co. C. Di Bartallo has joined the firm as vice president and J. Ventimiglia as areasurer. Paul Rehan is secretary and general manager.

The Kissel St. Louis Co. is retaining the showroom and services station at 3116 Locust boulevard. Kissell straight eights and sixes, Rehan said yesterday, are made in 47 different body styles.

STAR DEALERS APPOINTED

The following firms have been appointed Star four and Star six dealers in Missouri: F. C. King Motor Co., Rolla; Davis Motor Co., Cuba; Lee Motor Co., Dexter; Crumpecker-Randall Motor Co., Sikeston.

NEW METHOD OF REPAIRING TIRES

Heat Applied by Johnston Bros. Apparatus From Inside as Curing at Factory.

The repair plant of the Johnston Bros. Tire and Service Co., Compton avenue and Washington boulevard, which is regarded by tire men throughout the country as a model, has just been equipped with apparatus for vulcanizing tires in the same way as they are originally cured in the factory. With the addition of this machinery, this tire service station is said to be the most fully equipped in the Middle West.

The equipment is supplied by the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., and has been carefully developed for vulcanizing all manner of passenger car, bus and truck cord and balloon tires, no matter how large or small. The Johnston Bros. firm has had its tire men trained at the Firestone factory especially to use the new equipment.

Instead of applying heat to vulcanize a damaged tire from the outside, the new apparatus applies it to cure from the inside. Thus the heat is localized exactly where it is needed and a tire is cured as it was originally at the factory. There is no overcuring and the flexibility and balance of a tire are retained.

By clever use of special rubber matrices, repairs on a tread are made with the characteristic tread design of the particular tire being repaired.

The new apparatus also is so designed that bead pads can be used to enable pressure to be applied in curing a repair on the bead of a tire. This is made possible by specially shaping the inside curing arm.

Not only can any kind of injury to a tire be repaired, but in every way the contour of every part of the tire is made to conform to the original shape, tread, bed and side wall.

The firm's equipment for repairing solid tires, and for pressing them on and off rims, is equally complete. It also specializes on fitting cars with Watson stabilators, for which it is distributer, and on lubrication service.

WHITE 'ROLL CALL' SHOWS INCREASE IN USE OF TRUCKS

The extensive use of motor truck transportation and its relation to industrial and commercial growth is illustrated by the annual White roll call just announced by The White Co. Listing nearly 1000 coaerns that operate White trucks and busses in fleets of 10 or more, the 1926 roll call is the bigrest in the company's history.

At the beginning of the year there were 961 of the country's foremost truck owners operating 35,755 Whites in fleets of 10 or more, an increase of 124 owners and 4662 trucks and busses over last year's record.

Many are operating Whites 10 to 15 years old with mileage records from 200,000 to 500,000 miles. The pioneer truck owner on the roll call is W. & J. Sloane, the well-known New York furniture and carpet merchants who have used a fleet of Whites for 16 years. The company purchased its first White truck in 1910 and after running approximately 220,000 miles it is still in operation.

AUTO CLUB OF MISSOURI ELECTION TOMORROW

As recently announced, the annual meeting of the Automobile Club of Missouri to elect members of the Board of Governors will be held tomorrow, May 3. Twenty-three candidates have been nominated for the Board, four being for the outside divisions—Hannibal, Rolla, Jefferson City and Springfield. Of the candidates to be voted upon 10 are hold-over members of the present Board of Governors.

Polls will be open at St. Louis headquarters office of the Club 4228 Lindell boulevard, between 12 noon and 3 p. m., tomorrow. A like time for casting ballots at division offices has been designated.

Following the election of the Board of Governors tomorrow, the Board, at its first meeting, will elect officers of the Club.

CORDUROY TIRE HEADQUARTERS STORE OPENED IN ST. LOUIS

The Skinker Sales Co., operating Corduroy tire stores in this city and East St. Louis, has just opened a headquarters retail and wholesale store at 2420 Washington boulevard, corner of Theresa avenue. The president and manager of the firm is Howard G. Skinker. Its warehouse will be in East St. Louis.

The firm distributes Corduroy cord and balloon tires. A special feature of these tires is the massive sidewall protection.

The firm was one of the first to offer tires on credit, and still pursues this policy.

FAIRBANKS MOTOR SALES OPENS USED CAR SHOWROOMS

A used car show room has just been opened at 3301 Washington boulevard, corner of Leonard, by the Fairbanks Motor Sales, a new firm headed by C. R. Fairbanks, whi is well known on Auto Row, as he has been handling used cars for anumber of years. The firm will deal in repossessed cars.

It has the ground floor of a building owned by Armature Rewinding Co., which occupies the second floor.

CHRYSLER "58"

Chrysler engineers have designed the Chrysler "58" to satisfy the rigorous driving requirements of today, joined to a most unusual economy of operation.

How well they have succeeded is shown by the fact that the Chrysler "58" attains and maintains a speed of 58 miles per hour, accelerates from 5 to 25 miles in 8 seconds, and achieves 25 miles to the gallon.

Some cars have one of these features; a few have two—but none, regardless of price, except Chrysler "58", gives all three in combination.

And nowhere can you find a car of its price with such additional outstanding and enduring superiorities as power plant insulated from the frame and saved by Chrysler-designed spring support and live rubber from destructive road shocks; such riding comfort and ease of handling; ruggedness and long life that result from prodigal use of the finest alloy steels combined with a workmanship trained to most accurate precision standards; and scores of other distinctive advantages.

Before you buy your next car you owe it to yourself to learn at first hand the exact measure of excess value which Chrysler "58" at its electrifying low price, offers you.

You will find us ready to extend to you every opportunity to make searching investigation and exhaustive comparisons.

The yearly Michigan motor report for the touring season 1926 has been issued by Secret Manager Hugh J. Gray, of Michigan Tourist and Resort sociation. Michigan's two trunk roads for 1926 offer to the touring public than before.

Gray reports that detours virtually eliminated on the great motor trunk lines of M gan this year for, with but a gle exception, there are to b detours whatever on the Michigan Pike or the Mack Trail—the former, the Lake M gan shore route, the latter, central Michigan highway.

On the Mackinac Trail, from Kent County line south, 13 mil good gravel is the only detour torists will find on the two roads.

The report of Gray shows from Michigan boulevard, ar the base of Lake Michigan, thr Northeastern Indiana and str north along the Lake Mich shore to Benzonia is one unbr ribbon of concrete. Thence 26 miles north is good grave a point seven miles south of verse City. There hard surface continues to Elk Rapids. MICHIGAN'S TWO MAIN ROUTES ALL SURFACED

Only One Detour, and That Good, on West Michigan Pike and Mackinac Trail.

The yearly Michigan motor road report for the touring season of 1926 has been issued by Secretary-Manager Hugh J. Gray, of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association. Michigan's two great trunk roads for 1926 offer more to the touring public than ever before.

Gray reports that detours are virtually eliminated on the two great motor trunk lines of Michigan this year for, with but a single exception, there are to be no detours whatever on the West Michigan Pike or the Mackinac Trail—the former, the Lake Michigan shore route, the latter, the central Michigan highway.

On the Mackinac Trail, from the Kent County line south, 13 miles of good gravel is the only detour motorists will find on the two great roads.

The report of Gray shows that from Michigan boulevard, around the base of Lake Michigan, through Northeastern Indiana and straight north along the Lake Michigan shore to Benzonia is one unbroken ribbon of concrete. Thence for 26 miles north is good gravel to a point seven miles south of Traverse City. There hard surface road continues to Elk Rapids. Following this, is 22 miles of gravel to a point 11 miles south of Charlevoix. Then cement and hard surface roads take the motorists to Brutus. From Brutus to Mackinac the road is good gravel and concrete.

The Mackinac Trail is cement construction from the Indiana line to Plainwell, then gravel and cement from Plainwell to Wayland—16 miles. Then, with the single detour in Allegan County, the traveler rides on cement to Cedar Springs. Thence to Petoskey the road is good gravel with some stretches of cement.

Scenic spots in all sections of Michigan now have good roads leading to them.

Railroad Wants Gasoline Cars.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Co. is inviting bids for 10 gasoline rail cars and 13 trailers for 1926 delivery and use on main and branch lines.

Bus Trips From St. Louis

By JEAN CAMERON.

Another interesting bus trip takes one from St. Louis over Illinois State highway No. 11 to Effingham. The first bus in the morning leaves the waiting room at 610 North Broadway at 7:30 o'clock. The route is across the Free Bridge to East St. Louis, straight out Tenth street to St. Clair avenue, and east on Ninth street to pick up Illinois State Highway No. 11. The line between St. Clair and Madison counties is presently passed, and the highway continues east across the bottom lands. Soon Monks' Mound and its surrounding group of mounds are passed on the left, and the Fairmount Jockey Club race track, with its grandstands and buildings also is seen on the left, before the road starts to climb the long grade into Collinsville, settled by the Collins brothers from Connecticut in 1817 and platted by members of the family in 1836.

Seen Along the Road.

Four miles from Collinsville the road branches. The bus continues on No. 11 to the right toward Troy, beyond which the pavement continues on the long fill and bridge across Silver Creek and its branches to St. Jacobs, six miles farther east. The next city, Highland, marks the first break in the pavement of Highway No. 11. The streets here have been graveled, and are passable in wet weather, but regard for personal comfort as well as for car springs makes any official regulation of speed unnecessary within the city limits.

The pavement leading out of the city is narrow, but has been graveled on either side, so that light cars can pass without danger of stalling, whatever weather conditions may be. The next bus stop is Pocahontas, and here the traveler's attention is caught by an old-time log cabin amid the newer houses of the main street. A road to the Pocahontas mine leads to the right. The highway crosses a long fill, with short stretches of rough pavement and, about two hours after leaving St. Louis, Greenville is reached. Here the bus stops for a few minutes, though not long enough to enable the traveler to see much of this city, county seat of Bond County, whose first log cabin was built in 1815 and its courthouse in 1822.

Into Vandalia.

Seven miles from Greenville, the bus passes through Mulberry Grove, and nine miles beyond the entrance to Vandalia is marked by a detour to the left caused by construction of new sewers and new paving. Three blocks of the detour is across a partly gravelled flat, where in extremely wet weather the going is none too certain, especially when turning out to pass cars. The detour passes over a narrow bridge then turns right down a steep grade, which in wet weather is slippery enough to require caution in descending, and is difficult to ascend without chains.

Vandalia was the capital of Illinois in 1820 and was county seat of Fayette County. The old capitol building was taken for the courthouse when the city ceased to be the capital in 1839. Here Highways No. 11 and No. 2 intersect, and leave the city over the same bridge across the Kaskaskia River, then separate, the bus continuing to the left on No. 11. Beyond Brownstown and St. Elmo, Effingham County is entered, and, just beyond, Altamont, the highest point between St. Louis and Terre Haute, is passed, also Dexter and Funkhouser, before Effingham, on the Little Wabash, is reached at 11:23. Here connections are made with the Wabash Valley Transit Co. buses for Terre Haute, Indianapolis and places further East.

Effingham, county seat of Effingham County, named for Gen. Effingham and laid out in 1854, is a prosperous place of about 5000 population.

Three trips each way with Fageol busses are made daily by the Community Bus Co. The trip is a particularly charming one. The route is through rich dairying and farming country. Most of the land is level or slightly rolling. Variety is given by the numerous little streams and shallow timbered valleys, into which the highway dips smoothly, swinging out again by gracious curves and gentle grades. Everywhere modern cottages, comfortable farmhouses and old mansions, with silos and spacious barns, bear testimony to the fatness of the land, which for nearly 100 years has brought maximum returns for minimum outlay.

At this time of the year the trip is particularly delightful, for the fields, dotted with herds of high-class dairy cattle, are vivid green, orchards are in bloom; forest trees, shrubs and hedge rows just bursting into leaf, early flowers beginning to show, and all the wayside and most of the lawns glowing with millions of dandelion blooms, most cheerful and best beloved of all the spring flowers—so long as they are blooming on someone else's lawn, not on one's own.

By using the early bus in the morning and returning by the late one in the evening, one can have about five hours in Effingham on a week day—an hour longer on Sunday—or a proportionately longer time at intermediate points.

CAR RATED AT 8 H. P. AVERAGES 49.17 M. P. H, FOR RUN OF 10,000 MILES

AN 8.3 H. P. Renault car, whose four cylinders have a bore of only 2.28 inches and stroke of only 3.54 inches, has just completed a run of 10,000 miles in 203 hours 22 minutes, at an average speed of 49.17 miles an hour. For six days the little Renault averaged 50.4 m. h. p. A thunderstorm halted the car for an hour after it had run 24 hours, and later it was delayed two hours by a fire in its fuel and oil station.

NEW 90 DEGREE
CADILLAC

Cadillac production for the first eight months ending March 31, was more than double that of the same period a year ago.

This is the most conspicuous sales success ever recorded for a car of the Cadillac price.

The new Cadillac has more speed than you will ever want to use—and its greater speed is coupled with greater luxury and comfort. It has enhanced hill climbing ability. It is built to give you more miles of continuous satisfactory service. It is gloriously facile and smooth in its acceleration. In even its minutest details it manifests a supremacy that is found only in a Cadillac.

The biggest point of all is that in the new Cadillac none of these features is developed at the expense of others, or at the cost of excellence, but that all are developed to a degree never before approached.

As a consequence the new Cadillac is everywhere hailed as the greatest car ever built.

As such it is without question the most satisfactory purchase for anyone who contemplates a car that costs $2,500 or more.

BUILDERS' ARTISTRY SHOWN IN DAVIS PLACE

Harmony of Lines and Originality of Design in Houses Called an Achievement.

The growth of St. Louis, from an artistic as well as a municipal point of view, is demonstrated in the development of Davis place, created by the Davis Realty Co., according to Holbrook Ashton, vice president of the Lubrite Refining Co.

An attractive duplex residence recently was purchased from the Davis company by Ashton. In its harmony of line and originality of design, the house is typical of the distinguished atmosphere of Davis place.

Lying west of the Hanley road between Polo Drive and Clayton road, Davis place a year ago was but a part of the rolling stretches of St. Louis County and was used as a private golf course. Today, with 22 handsome houses under construction, most of them virtually completed, Davis place stands in its changed personality as the newest and one of the most attractive residential quarters in St. Louis.

"My faith in the future of St. Louis is limitless," said Everett Davis, president of the Davis company, recently. "The Post-Dispatch is right in labeling St. Louis and its environs a veritable 'billion-area.' And it will become a 'trillionarea' before long. The $100,000,000 being spent in St. Louis by the Bell Telephone Co. is sufficient proof of the belief held by that corporation in the possibilities of this city. Ten million dollars of that sum is being put into the magnificent building which will house the company. The remaining $90,000,000 is being expended to enlarge and improve the telephone system in St. Louis.

"The most skillful engineers and city planners have created duplex homes of charm and artistic value in Davis place, and the outcome is an achievement."

SALES REPORTED BY THE MAURER-GHIO-BEFFA CO.

The Maurer-Ghio-Beffa Realty Co. reports the following sales:

2335-37 Olive street; lot 40x105; sold for Tony J. Ghio to Alexander Moretta, who is going to expend considerable in remodeling these two stores and flats as soon as present lease expires.

3512 Cora avenue, five-room modern brick cottage, for George Peel to Mr. and Mrs. Selle.

A lot 40x150 on Forsythe boulevard, for a client of Christian Brinkop Realty Co., to F. W. Imholz, who is going to improve with a modern store building.

Moorland Drive Residence

The Morris-Aach Realty Co., with the Butts Realty Co. report the sale of 7054 West Moorland Drive, a nine-room residence, with sun parlor and sleeping porch. There is a two-car garage in keeping with the residence. Lot 75x200 feet. This residence was sold for Ray Agatstein to Herbert and Ruth H. Frank for a home.

NEW RHONDALE SUBDIVISION OFFERED TO PUBLIC TODAY

The Rohn Realty Co. is opening today its new subdivision, Rhondale, in the southwest section of the city, near the new proposed Francis Park site. The property consists of 100 lots, some of which front on Watson road, and extends westward to Prather avenue, and is bounded on the north by Bancroft avenue. Property fronting on Watson road and Lansdowne avenue can be used for either business or residence. Present plans provide for the Ozark Trail to traverse Lansdowne avenue and Watson road.

The company has been very successful in the subdivision business, having sold South Lindenwood and Watson Terrace, which together comprise about 1100 lots which are situated in the same vicinity as Rhondale.

The property is being sold on a monthly payment basis. A number of purchasers in South Lindenwood and Watson Terrace have made selections and many inquiries are being received daily for information.

M. W. BROOKS REALTY CO REPORT SEVERAL SALES

M. W. Brooks Realty Co. reports sales as follows:

Residence, 4237 Wyoming street, to Lawrence and Esther Brendell; residence, 3310 South Compton avenue, to M. M. Schwarzkopf.

Sold 5116 Southwest avenue, single flat, to C. W. Baker.

This company also reports having made several loans, also quite a lot of insurance business.

RECENT SALES REPORTED BY WALTER HEUER CO.

The Walter Heuer Real Estate Co. reports the following sales: 1100 Louisville avenue, sold for Frances E. Schroeder to a client of Charles Bierman; 4972 Eichelberger street, to a client, the seller being represented by J. I. Epstein & Son; 2528 Benton street, for Charles Brueckner, to a client; lot on North Market street, west of Kingshighway, for Joel Lacy to Philip J. Cummings.

PROSPEROUS BUSINESS IS REPORTED BY THE MUELLERS

J. Charles Mueller & Son, North St. Louis builders and realtors, 3528 Hebert street, report more prosperous business for 1926 than 1925. The following sales since March 1 are reported:

Five and five room flat and garage at 4820 Farlin avenue, to William Kane, $16,000; five and six room flat and garage at 4851 Farlin avenue (on the Muller stock plan) to Howard Schulze, $16,000; 4861 Kossuth avenue, five and six room single flat, lot 35x120, to F. Meckfessel; four lots in 5000 block of Aubert avenue, 35x120, each to a client who is erecting four five-room bungalows which will be for sale by Muller & Son when completed; five and six room single flat at 4865 Kossuth avenue (under construction), to W. Schuerbeker; two single five and six room single flats at 4859-63 Kossuth avenue are near completion; two lots corner Moraine and Rosalie in Heckman's O'Fallon Park addition, to a client, who will erect two of the prettiest and best arranged five and six room flats in North St. Louis; six 35-foot lots on Hebert street in Mars subdivision to a client, who will erect six five and five room flats.

The seven stores and apartment building being erected by J. Charles Mueller & Son at the southwest corner of Thekla and Kingshighway will be completed by May 15. Several of the stores have been leased for a long term. Also sold a 100-foot lot at 4932 North Union boulevard to the Union Hardware Co., which has awarded Mueller & Son contract for the erection of a large store building. The firm made building loans in the sum of $100,000.

MANY SALES REPORTED OF SUNSET MANOR PROPERTY

The William E. Reasor Realty Co. reports a very active week in Sunset Manor, new subdivision on Denny road, south of big Bend road. Monica drive to Lynwood place has been practically sold out and a number of sales made on the adjoining streets. The company also reports the sale of a style "A" brick bungalow, which will be built at once.

Along with the installation of sewers, gas, water and electricity, and the construction of streets and sidewalks the company is pushing ahead with the brick bungalows.

These home, in a number of attractive styles, are being built and sold on the new home ownership certificate plan.

With the widening and paving of Denny road and its establishment as the main cross-county boulevard, much interest and speculation has been manifested by investors in all properties along the new boulevard. Sunset Manor is ideally located and is being offered in 40-foot lots, with all improvements, and is proving a particularly attractive spot for investors and medium priced homesites.

SALES REPORTED BY THE RENGEL-WEBER REALTY CO.

The Rengel-Weber Realty Co., 3127 South Grand boulevard, reports having closed the sale of property at 3418 Gravois, consisting of store and flat above, also lot alongside, which was sold for the account of Max Johnson to Mortimer Lindeman, who purchased for an investment. The erection of the Melba Theater Building at the southeast corner of Grand and Miami, and a new filling station at the northeast corner of Grand and Gravois, has brought this section to the attention of investors, so that they are seeking properties in this locality.

The company also reports having sold a lot on the north side of Rhodes avenue, west of Kingshighway, to Mrs. Corrine Klapp, for the account of a client. Also residence, 1122 Rutger street, for the account of Otto Dehm to Frank Niedzialek. Also residence at 3705 Humphrey for the account of James J. and A. M. Burke to Theresa Bauer.

The firm also reports that the March closing of its books exhibited the best month in the history of the business, and it has recently been compelled to add a few more salesmen to the force to take care of the increase in business and in order to be prepared to serve its many clients this spring.

C. M. M'DONALD SELLS LOT TO SCOTT CLEANING COMPANY

The C. M. McDonald Real Estate Co. report closing the sale of a vacant lot, 30x114 on the south side of Delmar boulevard, located 400 feet east of Skinker road, to the Scott Cleaning Co., which will erect a special building to be used as a branch.

Also a lot on the north side of Hoover avenue, just west of Big Bend boulevard (formerly Pennsylvania avenue) in Westmoor, for a client, to Anna Wrieden, who will improve with a single flat.

FORTY HOUSES BUILT IN LINCOLN TERRACE

Popular Subdivision on Hanley Road Reported to Be Selling Rapidly.

Lincoln Terrace, on Hanley road and Bruno avenue in St. Louis County, is a noteworthy subdivision venture. It is designed exclusively for Negroes with building restrictions contemplating its upbuilding with substantial homes.

The addition is being marketed by Leopold Grossberg, who laid it out and who announces that only 75 lots remain unsold. The lots are being sold on terms of $10 cash and $5 a month at prices that invite both home building and investment, according to Grossberg.

Forty houses have been built and sold in this addition, and a liberal time-payment plan has solved the problem of home ownership.

Plans are being made for the erection in the addition of 100 more houses, with a "home beautiful" as a model. The property is reached by the Market street car line, or by auto to Hanley road, and south to Bruno avenue.

VERNON LAUX REALTY CO. SELLS LOTS AND FLATS

The Vernon Laux Realty Co. reports the following sales:

98-foot lot, southwest corner Sarah and Labadie, for Mary Harper of Chicago td Audrey Realty Co.; 74-foot lot on southwest corner Sarah and Labadie, for same parties; 2723-25 Henrietta street, four family three room flat, for a client, to C. Greater; 2718-20 Howard street, four family three room flat, to a client of Hartwig-Dishinger Realty Co.; 1542-44 Lafayette avenue, four family four room flat, for Charles A. Ebel to L. J. Roller; 35-foot lot on Hampton boulevard, for a client, to Charles Ebel.

TRANSACTIONS REPORTED BY CAIN & HARDESTY

Sales for April reported by Cain & Hardesty, 7270 Manchester avenue, Maplewood, included the following properties:

WILLIAM EICHENSER CLOSES SALES ON SEVERAL HOLDINGS

William Eichenser reports closing the following sales:

4571 Easton avenue, store and flat, for Oscar Stein to William B. Buchanan, who owns the adjoining property; 2333-35 Warren street, double four-family building with a 50-foot lot, for Caroline Fahner to Alice M. Brandon; vacant lot, 25x124 feet on the north side of Connecticut street, just east of No. 4219, for Catherine Fries to James A. Sarles, who will improve with modern bungalow, and vacant lot, 35x105 feet, on the north side of Loughborough avenue, in Gravois-Loughborough place, for Lee J. Sloan to Dana R. Graff.

GRAVOIS-WEBER PARK SALES REPORTED BY DAVID P. LEAHY

David P. Leahy reports the following sales in Gravois-Weber Park:

To Louis Mots, 100 feet on north side of Gravois avenue; to D. Hedenkamp, 150 feet on southeast corner Gravois avenue and Weber road; to A. W. Pohman, 110 feet north side of Gravois avenue, to L. M. Massucci & Bro.; 95 feet on south side of Gravois avenue, to L. Althage; 50 feet on east side of Weber road and 50 feet on east side of Arthur avenue, to M. C. Schneider; 50 feet on east side of Arthur avenue to A. M. Bradfield.

REALTY FIRM AND BUILDING ASSOCIATION HOLD MEETING

Officers, directors and co-workers of the American Home Building & Loan Association and the Yeckel-Feydt-Earickson Realty Co., at a joint meeting recently at Bevo Mill, heard several technical discussions of points to be watched in real estate and loan transactions. Louis F. Yeckel, president of both organizations, said many of the co-workers are taking special courses of study at colleges and universities to better fit themselves for their work. Yeckel emphasized that honesty is a big factor, but that knowledge of values and a technical training likewise is essential.

City Counselor Muench spoke of problems confronting the administration, especially from a legal standpoint. Prof Charles Cullen of Washington University spoke on education and its place in business. He also gave an outline of the legal fundamentals of real estate. Another speaker was C. P. DeLore, a director of the American Home Building & Loan Association.

This Great SIX Rides on OIL!

FOUR simple little one-syllable words—"It rides on oil" aptly and vividly explain why Cleveland Six is noted for:

MORE than average POWER.
SMOOTHER than average RIDING.
MORE than average DURABILITY.
LOWER than average UPKEEP.
LESS than average DEPRECIATION.

To protect quality and augment the benefits of exacting engineering, Cleveland Six has adopted an advanced method of high-pressure motor lubrication. Oil is continuously pumped to all bearings under full pressure. And the pump is self-priming—which means that it will pump to the last drop of oil in the crankcase!

Cleveland has, moreover, the famous "One-Shot" system of centralized chassis lubrication. You simply press a plunger with your heel—and "One-Shot" automatically lubricates the entire chassis. Gone is all uncertainty, all cause for worry. Nothing is left to memory or to chance. Even a patented type of spring shackle is used having an automatic take-up that keeps the springs properly buoyant and noiseless.

In all details, right down to every bolt and cotterpin, this great Six is built to stand up—time on and—so long as you keep gasoline in the tank, water in the radiator and oil in the crankcase. Look at the new models. Compare!

Remarkable All-Star Program Through K S D Tonight

The greatest aggregation of stars which has ever appeared in a radio concert in the United States will be broadcast tonight by WEAF of New York, through KSD and 14 other stations, beginning at 7:15 Central Standard time.

In the magnificent roster are Frances Alda, soprano; Josef Hofman, pianist; Louise Homer, contralto; Maria Kurenko, soprano; Allen McQuhae, tenor; Kathryn Meisle, contralto; John Powell, pianist, and Albert Spalding, violinist.

This will be a gala program and will last one and one-half hours. All of the stars have appeared in separate broadcastings in the series of 30 Atwater Kent programs which have been enjoyed by KSD listeners in the winter season just closed.

Tonight's program is as follows:

"Sound An Alarm," from Judas Maccabaeus ..... Haendel
Kitty O'Toole ..... Protheroe
Allen McQuhae.

Nocturne in F Major ..... Chopin
Study on Black Keys ..... Chopin
John Powell.

"Amour viens aider," from Samson et Dalila ..... Saint-Saens
Coming Home ..... Willeby
Kathryn Meisle.

Duet: "Home to Our Mountains," from Il Trovatore ..... Verdi
Kathryn Meisle and Allen McQuhae.

"Shadow Dance," from Dinorah ..... Meyerbeer
Maria's Wiegenlied ..... Reger
Maria Kurenko.

Nocturne in E Minor ..... Chopin
Zigeunerweisen ..... Sarasate
Albert Spalding.

"L'altra Notte," from Mefistofele ..... Boito
Mighty Like a Rose ..... Nevin
Frances Alda.

Rhapsodie No. 12 ..... Liszt
Josef Hofmann.

Ave Maria ..... Gounod
Maria Kurenko and Albert Spalding.

"He Shall Feed His Flock," Messiah ..... Haendel
"Stride la vampa," from Il Trovatore ..... Verdi Louise Homer.

"Barcarole," from Tales of Hoffman ..... Offenbach
Frances Alda and Louise Homer.

RADIOGRAMS.

The United States navy radio station NAA at Arlington broadcasts a time signal at noon and at 10 p. m. daily, using a wave length of 435.5 meters.

Of the 5,000,000 owners of radio sets in the United States, 600,000 are on farms.

TWO FINE OPERAS ON KSD SCHEDULE

Varied Choral and Instrumental Offerings Among the Week's Local Features.

The new soprano, Hilda Goodwin, of the "Capitol Family," will make her debut tonight through KSD and 14 other stations on the WEAF chain.

Monday night the chief remote control broadcasting event will bring to KSD the opera "Faust" by Gounod, given by the WEAF Grand Opera Company, and on Wednesday night "The Pirates of Penzance" by Gilbert and Sullivan, success of the olden days, will be presented by the WEAF light opera company, and broadcast through K S D. In the "Eveready Hour" on Tuesday night "The Golden Wedding" program will be given, repeated by popular request, after having been given in two former Eveready Hours during the winter.

Locally K S D begins its schedule with a program at 7 o'clock on Monday to be given by the choir of the West Presbyterian Church, directed by Miss Katherine Carmichael. Members of this choir are Mrs. Rowland Arnoldy, soprano, Mrs. Wesley Becker, contralto, Clifford Irons, tenor, and Worth McCown, baritone, all popular local artists.

Friday night the noted flutist, John F. Kiburz, will present the "Commerce Hour" program, and the St. Louis University Glee Club, under the direction of George T. Devereux, will give before the microphone, a portion of the program to be presented at their annual concert next week. The music at the West End Lyric Theater on Thursday night and Saturday night, a different program each evening, will also be broadcast through Station K S D and a half hour of the Hotel Statler dinner concert will be another feature of the week's schedule.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Post-Dispatch Radio Department cannot undertake to answer questions by mail.

Q. How often should the electrolyte in my storage battery be changed? J. M. F.

A. Unless you have been charging your battery at too high a rate there is no need for changing the electrolyte. In any event do not attempt to do it yourself. Keep the level of the electrolyte in the battery about ¼ inch above the plates at all times. Distilled water will have to be added frequently to compensate for the loss of water through evaporation. The acid does not evaporate. About once a year it might be a good plan to have your battery cleaned out and refilled with a new solution of fresh acid. The cleaning process is necessary because after constant use (and when a too high charging rate is used) partial disintegration of the plate elements takes place. That is to say, the active material which is compressed into the meshed plate forms during manufacture, becomes loosened, and frequently falls to the bottom of the container. If enough material falls, there is the possibility that it will reach up to a level with the bottom of the plates and in time cause short-circuits from plate to plate. Also a certain amount of dust is also liable to fall into the battery when the vents are removed during charging.

Q. What has become of the Northside Realty Company which broadcast through WBBM in Chicago? Are they broadcasting through a different station? M. K.

A. We don't know through what station the Northside Realty Co. is broadcasting at the present time or whether or not they are broadcasting at all. WBBM is now the exclusive station of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation.

Q. Below is the hookup of my short-wave receiver. I can tune WGY (2XK) and KDKA, but cannot pick up any amateur stations. What is the reason for this? Please publish hookup of Hartley transmitting circuit. J. M. W.

A. Can you read the code? Probably you are hearing thousands of amateur stations but do not recognize them as such. The only amateur short wave phone band is between 75 and 80 meters. From the number of turns used in the diagram of your receiver it is evident that your set does not tune up to 75 meters and therefore you would not hear any amateur phone station. We have given several hookups of the Hartley transmitting circuit lately. Look over the back copies of the Post-Dispatch.

Q. I have a Crosley 5-38 set which brings in local stations clear and with no noise, but when tuned to distant stations it crackles so loud that the signals are drowned out. Can you tell me what the trouble might be. M. J.

A. Your question is one that is asked often at the present time. The trouble is probably just static. From now until the fall it will only be on exceptional nights that you will be able to get reception free from noise on stations other than those under 500 miles away.

Q. I have a Fried-Eisemann NR5 which has been giving good service. Recently I bought a B battery eliminator which gives excellent service on local stations, but I am unable to get any outside stations. What do you suppose is the trouble? My eliminator used two UV201A tubes.

A. The fault can be either with the eliminator or with the set. There is no reason why adding a properly working B battery eliminator to the set should cause it to cease to function properly. If the B battery eliminator is working properly the fault is in your set. If you still have your old B batteries you can replace the B eliminator with the batteries and see if the set works any better. A common fault with B battery eliminators that use 201A type tubes for rectification is that they will not hold up under the heavy current drain that is required to operate a five-tube set. Try putting new tubes in the B battery eliminator.

Q. What is the theory of ionization in a vacuum tube? M. F.

A. In a rarefied gas some of the electrons present are constituent parts of atoms and some are free. These free electrons move about with great velocity, and if one of them strikes an atom it may dislodge another electron from the atom. Under the action of the voltage between plate and filament the newly freed electrons will acquire velocity in one direction—the direction in which the colliding electron is moving—and the positively charged remainder of the atom, called an "ion," will move in the opposite direction. Thus both of the parts of the disrupted atom become carriers of electricity and contribute to the flow of current through the gas. This action of a colliding electron upon an atom is called "ionization by collision," and, on account of it, relatively large plate currents are obtained in electron tubes having a poor vacuum.

Q. Will you kindly publish a hook-up for a tube reactivator? P. J. H.

A. Obtain 16 or 17 volts of battery, either by building up C batteries or tapping off a B battery at 16 volts. Apply this voltage to the filament of the tube for 30 seconds—no more. Then burn the tube in a socket of the set without the B battery connected for about half an hour. If this roes not bring it back to normal, try applying the 16 volts to the filament for the same length of time. If the tube still does not function, throw it away as there is not much chance of ever bringing it back to normal.

The radio industry in the United States now uses 10,000,000 pounds of copper a year. In some types of sets as much as 10 pounds of copper is installed.

WHY

Firestone

TIRE DEALERS

Serve You Better

We represent one of the world's largest and most efficient tire makers—Firestone.

We sell and service the most economical tires made—Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords—the only tires on the market with every fiber of every cord saturated and insulated with rubber. These famous tires have given—and are giving—unheard-of mileage on the largest taxicab, bus and truck fleets in the world. They are also giving unheard-of mileage to hundreds of thousands of car owners.

We offer you our facilities and experience in aligning your wheels, mounting your tires, checking them for air pressure, inspecting them and making repairs when necessary by the latest Firestone methods of repairing, thus enabling you to get full mileage from your tires.

Equip your car now with these wonderful Gum-Dipped tires. We will take your old tires in trade, giving you a liberal allowance for unused mileage.

We also Sell and Service OLDFIELD TIRES

RADIO FOR AMATEUR AND EXPERT

FADING CHIEF BAR TO GOOD RECEPTION

Scientists Also Hear Report on Experimental Use of Tube as a Speaker.

Papers dealing with some of the technical problems of radio were included in the sessions of the American Physical Society which met at Washington last week.

Dr. Dellinger and two aides presented a paper on the investigating of radio fading, in which they asserted that Signal intensity fluctuation is one of the chief barriers to reliable long distance reception of broadcasting and of the higher radio frequencies. With a view to securing quantitative data on this phenomenon the Bureau of Standards invited a number of university and other laboratories to engage in a co-operative program of fading measurements. This report summarizes the progress made in 1925 when five series of simultaneous observations were made on certain specially arranged transmissions from broadcasting stations. Twenty laboratories in the Eastern half of the United States were engaged in the work. The measurements consisted of recording graphically variations of deflection of a galvanometer connected to radio receiving apparatus so as to indicate directly variations in the received field intensity. These records were supplemented in some cases by absolute measurement of the field intensity and by simultaneous continuous records of direction variation. The measurements yielded data of value on the characteristic radio wave phenomena during a solar eclipse, during the sunset period and the variations throughout the whole diurnal cycle.

One paper presented by R. R. Ramsey of the Indiana University, dealth with resistance of condensers at radio frequency and showed that the individual results varied from .05 ohms to .15 ohms, the condenser being set so that the capacity was .00008 microfarads.

Allen Astin of New York discussed a wave form of free electric oscillations. The use of a cathode-ray tube for the transmission of speech was discussed by C. W. van der Merwe of New York, who said: "The key to the success of the "Speaking tube" is the luminosity of the discharge, since the light from the glow has to be reflected in the receiver. The success of this essentially wireless telephone will therefore depend on the efficiency with which the discharge tubes carrying large currents can be built." "Quantitative comparisons confirmed the superiority of the tube over the arc," he added, "and with the current of only 10 milliamperes flowing through the former, it was possible to telephone a distance of 60 feet with the greatest ease."

Stringing the Aerial.

An aerial wire should be stretched tight enough so that there is little swaying in windy weather. Some little slack must, however, be left in order to insure against the wire breaking from contension.

WEST ENJOYED 'ROXY'

The famous "Roxy" of WEAF recently sneaked into Los Angeles for a well-earned rest, but KFI searched him out at the request of its audience and prevailed upon him to handle an hour program. Although his gang was far, far away in New York, KFI did its best to furnish him appropriate material for his inimitable foolery. Proving that East is East, and West is West, and both are absolutely identical, in radio taste at least. Roxy went over big with his Western audience, his well known voice bringing a flood of Eastern telegrams as well, from listeners who had missed him. Roxy's act was in the nature of a farewell to the Pacific Coast, as on the following morning he left for New York to attend to the details of his new theater.

Keep Set Dry.

Do not wash any part of a radio set with water, and never let the set stand near an open window in rainy or damp weather. Water or dampness impairs the efficiency of the coils and causes leakage. Use alcohol for cleaning panels or for taking off any excess of soldering paste from the windings or from connections.

A Tube Tip.

Tubes should rest properly in their sockets. See that the springs are "springy," and that they exert enough upward pressure to keep the bulbs tight against the bayonet lock of the socket.

LAUGH OF THE WEEK

When Rob Wagner, famous author of under-developed, over-posures of Hollywood's life, libert and the pursuit of happiness consented to act as master of ceremonies of the KFI Midnight Frolic, was only with the express understanding that a large screen should be erected about him and the microphone. He was told that a screen about him in a broadcasting studio was like a screen on one side of a man in an amphitheater, but he insisted, nevertheless. The three-hour program would have finished with the screen up but it not chanced that Rob's artistic eye was captured by the blonde beauty of the Ashley Sisters during the first half hour. Whereupon Rob folded up the screen like an Arab and as silently laid it away.

"B" Battery Failure.

The factors most frequently causing short "B" battery life are:

"C" battery exhausted.

Excessive plate voltage.

Audio-frequency amplifier not equipped with "C" battery.

"B" battery of insufficient capacity for the drain placed upon it.

Tubes draw excessive current because of accidental displacement of grid and plate.

SIX-TUBE RECEIVERS BECOMING POPULAR

Various Arrangements Give Better Quality, Simplify Tuning and Permit Total Shielding.

Most listeners are familiar with five-tube sets which employ two stages of radio frequency, amplification, detector and two stages of audio amplification, as this is one of the most popular receivers at the present time. A number of six tube sets have been produced during the past season and this summer and the coming season will no doubt see the introduction of many more sets of this type.

All of the new receivers using six tubes feature certain refinements over the average five-tube set and therefore are somewhat more attractive. The sixth tube serves to increase the amount of amplification through the audio or radio frequency amplifiers, to permit better control through the use of two main tuning units, or to improve the quality of reproduction.

One of the first six-tube sets that was placed on the market contained two stages of radio amplification, detector and three stages of audio amplification. The extra tube used as an audio amplifier brought up the signal strength from distant stations for loud speaker reception. Very low ratio transformers were used and the amplification characteristics over the audio range were said to be better than those of the ordinary five-tube set.

Another variation in six-tube receiver design is that of the set with three stages of radio frequency amplification. A very good example of this type is found in the Bremer Tulley counterphase. The tuning condensers in the antenna coupler and first stage of radio are connected in tandem as are those in the other two stages of radio amplification. This method permits the set to be operated by two main tuning dials. Besides simplifying tuning this arrangement improves the receiver for the reception of distant stations.

A six-tube set that appeared on the market this spring uses three stages of radio amplification, one of which is untuned. The antenna coupler condenser and the two condensers in the other two radio amplifiers are all connected together so that the receiver has but one main tuning condenser. Ease of operation is the main feature of this set. Stations may be tuned in on it by simply turning the one dial and all stations can be logged with a marked degree of accuracy.

Other modifications of the three-stage radio frequency receiver will no doubt appear on the market in the future. The writer has seen a laboratory model of a set of this kind which has four tuning dials. The tuning of such a receiver is too complicated for the average listener but the results obtained under tests showed that the set had remarkable qualities as a distance getter.

Resistance coupled amplification has been one of the most noteworthy developments during the past season and is beginning to be incorporated in complete receivers. This method of audio amplification requires three tubes and from the standpoint of efficiency is not quite as good as transformer coupling which requires but two tubes. However, the resistance coupled amplifier shows marked improvements in reproduction, particularly in its ability to amplify the low and high audio frequencies in the same proportion as the frequencies in the middle of the audio range.

Impedance coupled amplification is also being used in complete receivers. The impedance coupled amplifier also requires three tubes but has about the same amplification characteristics as the resistance coupled amplifier with slightly more amplification per tube. Manufactured receivers using either of these forms of amplification generally employ a total of six tubes.

Several receivers have been produced that use two tubes in parallel in the last stage of audio amplification. This permits a great amount of volume to be delivered to the loudspeaker without distortion. The advent of power tubes will very probably cause this arrangement of the six-tube set to disappear.

Six tube receivers, in general, have refinements not found in the average five tube set and will no doubt become more popular as the manufacturers develop them into more attractive designs. In some cases the sixth tube adds amplification and brings in more distant stations, in others better quality is obtained, and again the use of a sixth tube enables the manufacturer to totally shield the receiver, thereby stabilizing the action of the circuits and making the receiver more selective on local stations.

The Speed of Waves.

Sound waves travel in air with a velocity of 330 meters per second, and the velocity of light waves is 300,000,000 meters per second. The electro-magnetic waves used for radio have frequencies between 10,000 and 30,000,000 per second, which corresponds to wave lengths between 30,000 and 100 meters, respectively.

For the Notebook.

Buried metal plate or pipe driven in moist earth can be used as the ground.

Metal dials usually increase the microfarads.

A common cause of distortion in audio amplification is poorly designed transformers.

The length of the aerial is measured from the extreme end, and includes the lead-in and ground wire.

Radio signals are better 600 miles fram a broadcast transmitter than they are 300 miles, because fading is less and the signal strength is slightly greater.

One way to stop a radio nuisance—a neighbor who permits his set to oscillate continually—is to have a petition signed and sent to the supervisor of radio in the district.

WHITE RADIO BILL APPROVED BY HOOVER

Measure Provides for Vesting Regulation in a Commission Representing Various Sections.

Public service by radio would end, Secretary Hoover points out, if all stations proceed to select their own wave lengths and selfishly choose their time for broadcasting regardless of the other stations on the air. "It is apparent that under the present law of 1912, as now construed, no one has authority to protect the listening public against utter chaos in a service upon which it has come to rely."

The Chicago court ruling, he explains, affects all forms of radio service as well as broadcasting. The amateurs, commercial, experimental and private point-to-point service, might follow the attitude assumed by the Zenith station, choosing their own channels. This would result in an terrific interference between all stations within the wide bands used by radio telegraphy and telephony.

Commenting on the situation recently, Secretary Hoover said:

"Congress has full power to confer the needed authority. The White bill, now before the Senate, which has passed the House, gives the power. There have been suggestions that this authority should be administered entirely outside of the Department of Commerce by a special commission set up for the purpose.

"There are three separate functions which must be performed by some Government agency. The first is the determination of who may broadcast. This is a discretionary or semijudicial authority. I have continually alvocated that the use of wave lengths is the use of public property and that the determination of who should have use should not be in the hands of any one person but should be placed in the hands of a commission, representative of the different sections of the United States, wholly independent of the department. Such a commission, to be appointed by the President with the approval of the Senate, is provided for in the White bill. This board will not need to be in continuous session and will imply but little expense.

"The second important function lies in the administration of the decisions of this commission and the minimizing of interference from many causes outside wave conflict. The third is the furthering of development of the art in the interest of listeners and of the industry. These last two functions are essentially administrative, and in my view should rest in one of the executive departments rather than by creating a new and additional Government agency, which would imply considerable additional expense. Moreover, boards and commissions, by their divided authority have always been a failure in administration; they are desirable for discretionary or judicial determinations. The tendency to create in the Government independent agencies whose administrative functions are outside the control of the President is I believe, thoroughly bad. I believe the staff of the department had performed a great service in development of the radio art and developing the method of control and regulation in a new field. So far as the Department of Commerce is concerned the extraordinary difficulties and conflicts in the situation are such that we will be well satisfied to see radio administered by any other department which can properly undertake its regulation."

Drill Shaft Holes Large.

When drilling the holes in a panel for the shafts of instruments, do not drill the hole the same size as the shaft, but make it large enough so that the shaft will not stick or bind if it does not run exactly true, or if the holes that mount the instruments have not been drilled exactly of an inch leeway all around. The dial will hide the larger holes anyway.

NEW TYPE DETECTOR IS HIGHLY SENSITIVE

Radio Corporation's Latest Product Specially Designed to Improve Set Efficiency.

NEW YORK, May 1.—A new detector tube, UX-200-A, which is described as super-sensitive, non-critical and economical in operation, and which will markedly increase the reception range of the average type of broadcast receiver, will soon make its introduction to radio set owners, experimenters and radio fans, according to an announcement made by Elmer E. Bucher of the Radio Corporation of America.

"This tube may be used in any existing receiver operating on a six-volt storage battery," said Mr. Bucher, "and it will provide vastly increased sensitivity as well as output volume, with no changes on critical adjustments of any kind."

"The UX-200-A Radiotron is the result of long and extensive study and development with the detection and rectification of radio frequency energy by the research engineers of the RCA's manufacturing associates, the General Electric Co. and the Westinghouse Co.," Mr. Bucher declares.

So far as physical dimensions and base are concerned, the new detector tube is similar to the well-known UX-200 and UX-201-A tubes. However, the new detector tube has a characteristic appearance quite different from any other tube. Instead of a plain or silvered bulb, the UX-200-A has a bluish, smoky color due to the special gas content but incidentally serving as a means of identification.

High sensitivity has been the prime requisite in developing this new detector tube. While this has been achieved in a miraculous degree, neither the current consumption of the tube has been increased nor have the adjustments been made any more critical. The filament, which is of the XL type, requires only ¼ of an ampere at a potential of 5 volts. The "B" battery potential usually recommended is 45 volts while a lower potential as in the case of the UX-201-A may be used with very little difference in results. A 10-ohm rheostat should be employed to regulate the filament current which would presumably be supplied by a 6-volt storage battery. The recommended grid leak and grid condenser are 2 megohms and .00025 microfarads, respectively.

"The UX-200-A tube has a greater sensitivity than any existing special detector tube," according to Mr. Bucher. It may be used in any receiver of the storage battery type without change or special adjustment. Its internal resistance is such that it may be used with either resistance or transformer coupling. The new detector tube is absolutely stable and provides reliable operation at all times, with no more critical adjustments than required with standard "hard" tubes.

The UX-200-A Radiotron answers the demand for a highly sensitive ultra-stable, storage battery detector tube so long desired by owners of storage battery receivers who seek the utmost efficiency in broadcast reception. Actual tests with typical receivers indicate that UX-200-A provides an increase in volume nearly equal to an additional radio-frequency amplifier stage, without distortion or loss of tone quality. The sensitivity is likewise vastly increased.

FOURTH FIGHT FROM WGN

The fourth of its series of "Old Time Prize Fights" will be staged by WGN on Saturday evening, May 8, at 9:30 o'clock. This time the station will recreate the long-to-be-remembered mill between Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson, the famous colored boxer, which took place in Reno, Nev., early in the century.

These "Old Time Prize Fights" are proving the sensation of the spring broadcasting season. Before the fight begins, listeners are asked to imagine themselves back in the days of the battle, while WNG prepares to bring it to them by telephone line, much as it does with its famous long-distance broadcasts of today. Then they hear the roars of the crowds, and the voice of Quin Ryan, WGN's sports announcer, comes in with his preliminary announcement. Listeners are then able to follow the fight through Ryan's graphic description and the rise and fall of the mob noise that is heard behind his voice, echoing the actions in the ring itself.

One woman listener found the "Old Time Prize Fights" so dramatic that she wrote Announcer Ryan telling him that she would never again believe a word he said, since the fight and its noises were feigned so cleverly that she actually believed it to be taking place.

LAUGH OF THE WEEK
When Rob Wagner, famous author of under-developed, over-exposures of Hollywood's life, liberty in the pursuit of happiness consented to act as master of ceremonies of the KFI Midnight Frolic, it only with the express understanding that a large screen should be erected about him and the microphone. He was told that a screen about him in a broadcasting studio was like a screen on one side of a man in an amphitheater, but he insisted, nevertheless. The three-hour program would have finished with the screen up had it not chanced that Rob's artistic eye was captured by the blonde beauty of the Ashley Sisters during the last half hour. Whereupon Rob climbed up the screen like an Arab and as silently laid it away.

"B" Battery Failure.
The factors most frequently causing short "B" battery life are:
"C" battery exhausted.
Excessive plate voltage.
Audio-frequency amplifier not equipped with "C" battery.
"B" battery of insufficient capacity for the drain placed upon it.
Tubes draw excessive current because of accidental displacement of grid and plate.

Why Not One American Car Lasts as Long as Reo — Not One

On December 31, 1925, there were 124.9% as many Reos in registered use as had been produced in the last eight years. No other car shows as high a percentage. Only three others show more than 100%, and each of these three is at least $1500.00 higher in price than Reo. The registration figures which are the basis for this computation were compiled and furnished by R. L. Polk & Company, automobile statisticians. All American cars that have been built for seven years or more, and are still being produced, were compared. Not only for eight years, but also for seven and nine years, Reo headed the list with the longest average life of any American car.

Three major factors determine how long automobiles last:

1. The durability that is actually built into the car.
2. The low cost of repairs and repair parts.
3. The infrequency of radical changes in design.

The first is the most vital

Correct engineering, the best of materials and superior workmanship contribute more to the long life of an automobile than any other factors.

But, given two or more cars of equal durability, the other two factors become important.

The effect of low repair costs

There may be left, in two cars of equal age, an equal amount of serviceability.

In the case of one, however, the cost of repairs may be so high that it may be cheaper to discard this car and buy a new one.

In the other, the cost of repairs may be so low that it pays to keep the car running, thereby getting out of it the last 15,000 or 20,000 miles of service.

That is one reason why the Reo, of all the cars built in America, is the longest lived.

That is why, on the basis of the most accurate tests yet devised for determining the relative longevity of automobiles, Reo has a longer average life than the highest priced cars built in America—cars which, like Reo, are notable for their high standards of engineering and manufacturing.

For, since these cars are many hundreds of dollars higher in price than the Reo—and since they are larger cars than the Reo—it follows as a matter of course that the price of repair parts for them is considerably higher than the price of the corresponding parts for the Reo.

Year after year, the sturdy Reo withstands the punishment of the highways, giving its owner thousands of miles of carefree, economical transportation beyond his utmost expectations

It also follows, equally as a matter of course, that even though the essential quality of the Reo may be no higher than the quality of these other fine and larger cars, the comparative inexpensiveness of Reo repairs makes it sound economy to operate the Reo after the higher priced car has been discarded.

And the third—obsolescence

The losses in resale values caused by frequent and radical changes of models are what the scientists studying automobile life call obsolescence.

Professor C. E. Griffin, of the University of Michigan Bureau of Business Research, in a recent study entitled "The Life History of Automobiles," makes the following observation:

"Marked style changes and frequency of change of models have a bearing, indirect but none the less important, upon the rate of scrapping . . . A deliberate policy of frequently changing models is socially wasteful . . . There is no need for confusing genuine improvement with a deliberate policy of issuing new models for the purpose of stimulating sales."

It is noteworthy that not one of the four manufacturers occupying the leading positions in the long life league has pursued this "socially wasteful" policy of frequent model changes.

It is equally noteworthy that cars occupying more modest positions in the long life ratings—cars whose quality is demonstrably not comparable with the quality of the four leaders but which are measurably well-built automobiles—are considerably lower on the list than they would be if they had not resorted to this policy which forces the premature junking of their older models.

The three combined

The explanation of Reo's astounding margin of leadership in long life is not found in any single one of the three factors, but in the Reo combination of all three:

1. Quality of materials and workmanship equal to that of the finest cars produced in America.
2. Low repair costs which lengthen the life of a Reo car even beyond that of the other first quality cars.
3. And, finally, a persistent avoidance of the frequent model changes which hasten obsolescence and thereby shorten automobile life.

Celebrating Our 19th Anniversary

By Sharing Our Profits With You

NINETEEN years ago this month the firm of Prufrock-Litton Co. was established to sell Dependable Furniture at a fair price—to operate a store where homemakers could buy safely and economically. The integrity of the name "Prufrock" was even then known to the furniture buying public, as Wm. Prufrock began the manufacture of "Parlor Furniture" in North St. Louis in 1870—and today our Upholstered Furniture has a national reputation. Salesrooms also in New York City and Grand Rapids, Michigan.

TODAY, the greatest asset this firm has is the good will of countless friends—well merited by nineteen years of Truth and Service. And it seems fitting that our friends should participate in the celebration of our nineteen successful years.

We know of no better way than by letting them share in our profits—and are therefore offering liberal reductions throughout our entire stock. Visit Our Store Monday or Tuesday and Inspect the Most Unusual Furniture Values We Are Offering.

Start 'Em Right, They'll Finish Right!

It's coming slowly but surely!

Men and women of national prominence see the "handwriting on the wall" and, without any selfish motives, are doing their utmost to impress on the parents of today the positive necessity for more consideration for the bringing up of their offspring.

It's an undeniable fact that NOTHING is as valuable and important as the HOME training and Home environment of children in their early years.

That will solve most of the troubles which beset them in their journey through life.

$131,000 BUDGET FOR 1926 HEALTH PROGRAM

Tuberculosis Society to Extend Its Work Among Growing Negro Population Here.

A $131,000 public health program will be promoted by the Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis during the coming year, it was announced yesterday by Homer Hall, president, after a special meeting of the board of directors. Not only will an extensive campaign be waged against tuberculosis but the department of promotion of health and disease prevention will be enlarged.

The $131,000 budget for this year is $40,000 smaller than last year's. The decrease, according to Hall, is accounted for by the fact that several types of work carried on for years by the society were last year turned over to the city or county government.

One of the health-promotion departments which will be materially increased this year is that of open air school work. The budget for this department will be approximately $37,000 more than three times that of last year. It will include the feeding of all children in all open air schools whose parents are not able to pay for their meals, social service investigations by trained workers, and work among all discharged pupils.

"This phase of the society's work," Hall said, "is one of the most important of the health promotion and disease prevention activities, as in these schools, children who are prone to be underweight and susceptible to tuberculosis are built up."

During the last year open air school work has increased nearly 100 per cent. The Residential and Porter Open Air Schools have doubled their capacity, while the establishment of a school for Negro children with a capacity of 120, requires the society to be responsible for the meals of more than 500 children. The Board of Education operates the day open air schools, and charges the society the actual cost of the meals, which is 24 cents a day for each child. The Tuberculosis Society operates the Residential School, which cares for the pupils by night as well as by day, and the cost there is $1.12 a day for each child.

Work among Negroes will be extended this year. The research department reports the Negro population here is 10 times as great as it was five years ago, while the death rate from tuberculosis is four times that of the white population.

The Night and Day Camp which is maintained all year round for self-supporting girls and young women last year cost $18,549 to operate. The increase in cost of food will this year cause an estimated expenditure of $23,243 on it.

On health education $40,000 will be spent this year, $7000 more than last year. Approximately $6000 has been set aside for medical work and for medical social service. Last year $7640 was spent by this department.

The cost of raising money last year was about 2 1-3 per cent, while administration required 18 per cent of the budget allowance.

The receipts of the society last year were $110,000 and the expenditures $107,000. The principal sources of revenue are the Christmas health stickers and the midsummer benefit baseball game, while about $10,000 is donated by individuals through trust funds. Last year the society raised the largest amount in its history, more than 100,000 firms, corporations and individuals having contributed, exclusive of the thousands of school children who buy Christmas seals on School day.

CAMPAIGN TO REUNITE TWO CATHOLIC RITES PLANNED

Movement Will Be Launched at St. Louis University Auditorium Tuesday Night.

The movement to reunite Catholics of the Latin and Oriental rites, which is already being advanced in Europe, is to be launched here Tuesday evening at a meeting at St. Louis University Auditorium, 3640 Lindell boulevard.

The musical side of the program will be under the direction of the Rev. Basil Merenkow of the Ruthenian Church. The speakers are all adherents of the Roman Catholic Church. They are to be: Archbishop Glennon; the Rev. Dr. Augustine Count Galen, O. S. B., president of the Catholic Union; Msgr. J. J. Tannrath, chairman of the St. Louis Catholic Union Committee, and Rev. Albert Muntsch, S. J., of St. Louis University.

WINEGROWERS OF FRANCE ESTABLISH WRITERS' PRIZE

Will Give $300 Annually to Author Best Depicting Qualities of Vineyards.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 1.—The French wine-growers have decided that the moment has come to show their gratitude to the writers who sing in praise of the product of the vine and depict the charming qualities of French character and soil.

To this end they have instituted an annual prize of 10,000 francs (about $300) for the author who best succeeds in the task. Every great wine region is represented among the founders of the prize—Champagne, Burgundy, Bordeaux, Anjou, Alsace and the Rhone.

A notable committee, headed by the Marquis de Flers of the French Academy, has undertaken to award "the prize of the vineyards."

WANTED
Men and Money to Help Build a New Empire

IN SOUTH TEXAS, where the mighty Mid-Continent dips its feet into the sea, lie opulent acres, waiting for the plow. At the tip of this land, on a high bluff looking eastward to the sea, is Corpus Christi.

The city and the country are fast filling up. But we need more men and more money! We have everything else. Millions of productive acres stretch inland from Corpus Christi. An established natural gas field supplies fuel lavishly, at low prices. Oil wells are being brought in.

And a great port is nearing completion, with nation, state, county and city cooperating in its development. It will be successful from the start—because it is based upon an economic need. Edward N. Hurley, former chairman of the U. S. Shipping Board, calls it the "International Port" of Corpus Christi. It will be next door to Mexico and several days nearer the South and Central American nations than are Atlantic seaboard ports.

Men of vision have opened their purse strings to make Corpus Christi a city of beauty—a port of Opportunity. A city of 25,000 and growing fast, it has every modern improvement and convenience—with all the natural beauty a semi-tropical climate gives. It is a healthful, pleasant place to live, with breeze-cooled summer days and mild winters.

Our only needs are more men of vision and more money.

Technique of Ibsen Comes From Greeks

Rediscovered the "Elaborated Catastrophe," and Adapted Classical Unities to Full-Length Drama.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.
Music and Drama Critic of the Post-Dispatch.

ECOYED by the fame of Miss Eva Le Gallienne, not a few unwary spirits fluttered last week into the Shubert-Rialto Theater, and found themselves tangled in the nets spread by that crafty old fowler of the stage, Henrik Ibsen.

Half a century after "Pillars of Society," the Norwegian dramatist still appears to be caviar to the general. There are many reasons; but we shall consider the one factor of technique. In structural formula, "John Gabriel Borkman" and "The Master Builder" remain quite as alien and mystifying as were the involutions of the sonata form when first it struck, during the eighteenth century, upon ears used only to the fugue.

Ibsen's pioneer play, "Love's Comedy," was a year old in 1863, when that date was published a celebrated treatise in which Gustav Freytag, after profound research into Shakspearean practice, laid down what he believed to be an infallible theory of modern dramatic architecture. According to his scheme, a well-built play follows a series of seven incidents, or points, which may be plotted as follows: Start, rise, height, turn, fall, pause, and

Up a Tree and Down Again.

EXCEPTING "Romeo and Juliet" as a perfect specimen of this method, its action may be analyzed thus: Start, brawling of the clans of Capulet and Montague; rise, meeting of Romeo and Juliet and the progress of their passion; height, their secret marriage; turn, Romeo's slaughter of Tybalt; fall, Juliet's betrothal to Paris and the attendant disasters; pause, Friar Lawrence's machinations on behalf of the lovers; and, end, their death.

That is the structure familiar and comprehensible to playgoers of Teutonic antecedents. Shaw simplifies it by describing the conventional drama as consisting first of exposition, then of an entanglement leading to a climax, and finally of a sort of tidying up, by means, indifferently, of a happy ending or a catastrophe. Augustus Thomas defines the process in homely language. "In two acts," he says, "you get your characters up a tree; in the third, you get them down again."

Freytag's celebrity as the modern Aristotle of the theater was about to overspread Europe when Ibsen came forward with a succession of dramas in which he lopped away, not sadly diminished, six of the German savant's seven points, that is to say, he expanded the third, or denouement, until it occupied virtually the entire action, developing into a form known as the "elaborated catastrophe." Mr. Thomas would say that, in Ibsen's typical plays, the characters are thoroughly up a tree before even the curtain rises, and that he devotes three, four or five acts to getting them explain how they got there and helping them down.

Ibsen and Sophocles.

BOTH "John Gabriel Borkman" and "The Master Builder" are technical masterpieces of this method. In both, before the play opens, the substantial portion of the action has already taken place—with the exception of the one transfigured, climactic hour during which the hero is spurred on by the force of his own vitality, by external impetus, to assert his indomitable ego. With Borkman as well as Halvard Solness the denouement spells simultaneously inner victory and outer ruin. Those who remember the "Electra" of Sophocles last year at the Forsden Theater must be struck by the fact that its structure, too, is that of the "elaborated catastrophe." Before the runners with the torches come speeding through a grisly dawn to announce the approach of Orestes, all the preliminaries of the action have long since been dispatched. There remains only the denouement to perform—the murder of Clytemnestra and Aegisthus.

"The ancient drama," says Nietzsche, "had grand pathos in view"; and adds that, deliberately excluded action by relating it either previous to the commencement or behind the scenes. He complained of the modern to esthetics caused by rendering the Doric word "drama" as "action." Its genuine meaning is "event."

Unity of Time, Place, Action.

BUT the typical Greek tragedy was a one-act play, given without pause or change of scene. Among the examples exhibited in this department, there are o

MARIE TEMPEST IN NEW ROLE ACCORDED FRESH LAURELS

Crowns Her 41-Year Stage Career With Part in "The Cat's Cradle" in London.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 1.—Comediennes come and go on the London stage, but Marie Tempest has led all rivals for 41 years and has just won another success in "The Cat's Cradle." The play is by Aimee and Philip Stuart. In it, Miss Tempest has the role of an actress.

Forty-one years ago Miss Tempest brought London to its feet when she sang the leading role in "Ermine." Four years later she went to New York and won success singing in "The Red Hussar." For 10 years she alternated between the United States and England and then gave up singing to become a legitimate actress. Her success in the spoken drama has been even greater than it was in light opera, and at 62 she has no rival in her particular line on the London stage.

RENEE ADOREE and JOHN GILBERT in "THE BIG PARADE" ~ Shubert-Rialto

IRENE BORDONI in "NAUGHTY CINDERELLA" ~ American

BEVERLY BAYNE ~ Orpheum

ROD LA ROCQUE in "RED DICE" ~ Kings & Rivoli

MARY BRIAN in "BROWN OF HARVARD" ~ Loew's State

ADOLPHE MENJOU and ELSIE SAWSON in "A SOCIAL CELEBRITY" ~ Missouri

CORINNE GRIFFITH in "MLLE. MODISTE" ~ Grand Central, West End Lyric & Capitol

DOLORES COSTELLO in "THE LITTLE IRISH GIRL" ~ New St Louis.

Irene Bordoni in Song-Play, and "The Big Parade"

AFTER a month of idleness, the American Theater will reopen for one week tonight in order to present Miss Irene Bordoni in her latest starring vehicle, "Naughty Cinderella." The Shubert-Rialto turns from Ibsen to the films by offering "The Big Parade," a war picture after a scenario by Laurence Stallings.

"Naughty Cinderella," described as a romantic song-play, was adapted by Avery Hopwood from a French farce by Rene Peter and Henri Falk. It is about the exploits of a Parisian damosel who gets into ambiguous relations with a young Englishman, but finally hauls him to the altar.

As is usual in Miss Bordoni's plays, she not only acts but offers numerous songs, both in French and English, besides regaling the eye with pretty gowns. One of these airs in "J'ai deux amants," with music by Andre Messager and text by Sasha Guitry. In the supporting company are Henry Kendell, John Deverell, Orlando Daly, Nat Pendelton, Alfred Ilma, Mario Raimondi, Berry Murray and Mary Robinson.

"The Big Parade" will open tonight, and thereafter be shown twice daily. John Gilbert is starred as the ne'er-do-well son of a wealthy man. He enlists in the American Expeditionary Force, and loses his indolent traits in contact with his buddies, Bull and Slim. Prominent in the cast are Renee Adoree, as a French peasant girl; Claire McDowell and Hobart Bosworth, as the hero's mother and father, and Karl Dane and Tom O'Brien, as his chums.

St. Louisan Sings in Opera.

BOSTON, May 1.—William Simmons, a St. Louisan and a student at the New England Conservatory of Music, is receiving congratulations upon his performance of one of the principal roles in Puccini's "Madame Butterfly," which was given last week at the Boston Opera House by past and present students of the Conservatory. His part was that of Prince Yamadori.

DOROTHY MAYNARD BACK AS SUMMER OPERA STAR

Engagement of Irene Dunne and Maude Gray Raises String of Sopranos to Three—Yvonne D'Arle Not to Return as Prima Donna.

THOSE who have been worried as to the choice of a prima donna for the Municipal Theater Association's approaching season will be put out of their suspense by the announcement that the cast will boast of three sopranos. The engagement of Miss Maude Gray for soubrette parts was disclosed some weeks ago. Within the last few days the management has also recruited Miss Dorothy Maynard and Miss Irene Dunne.

Miss Maynard, who appeared at the Forest Park auditorium during the seasons of 1923 and 1924, became a prime favorite with Municipal Theater devotees by means of an excellent voice, agile dancing ability and a magnetic personality. The daughter of Jeanette de Longpre, a French-Canadian church singer, Miss Maynard studied for opera in France and

MINNEAPOLIS SYMPHONY TO PLAY RETURN CONCERT

Verbrugghen's Orchestra Re-Engaged for Next Season by Civic Music League—Ganz, Traubel and Pampari to Be Symphony Soloists.

THE furore achieved by Henri Verbrugghen and the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra at the Odeon last February has led to a return engagement of the Belgian director and his organization for one of next season's concerts of the Civic Music League. Negotiations are also under way for a St. Louis concert to be given by a great Eastern orchestra under the baton of a celebrated conductor.

It is also announced that the Civic Music League, during November, will present Mme. Luella Melius, soprano, in a recital. She is the American singer whose debut as Gilda in "Rigoletto" proved a sensation last season at the Chicago Civic Opera. She appeared later in "La Traviata" and "The Barber of Seville," and has been engaged to sing during the summer at Ravinia.

Symphony Soloists Announced.

EIGHT of the 12 soloists to appear at regular concerts of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra next season have been announced. The list includes two members of the orchestra, Max Steindel, cellist, and Mme. Graziella Pampari, harpist. Rudolph Ganz, director of the orchestra, will appear as soloist in the Brahms D Minor concerto for piano. Miss Helen Traubel, St. Louis soprano, is also on the roster.

Others engaged are Henry Deering and Josef Lhevinne, pianists; Dusolina Giannini, soprano, and Carl Flesch, violinist. Deering is a former St. Louisan. A feature at one of the three pairs of orchestral concerts will be a performance of Scriabine's "Poeme Extase."

Gaynor Choral Club Concert.

UNDER the direction of Leo C. Miller, the Jessie L. Gaynor Choral Club will give a concert on May 13 at the Armory in Webster Groves. The principal numbers will be "Fair Ellen," by Max Bruch, and "Song of Fate," by Brahms. Several members of the Symphony Orchestra, with Ellis Levy as concertmaster, will assist.

Abraham Haltowitsch, a blind violinist from Russia, will make his first St. Louis appearance in a recital to be given at the Odeon on May 25. On coming to this country he was detained at Angel Island, San Francisco, as an alien "likely to become a public charge." It is related that Immigration Commissioner White, hearing him play Tschaikowsky's "Serenade," was so moved as to take measures

Behind the Screens

TEMPERAMENT for art's sake may prevail in many of the theatrical branches, but in the movie studios the impression is that stars rapidly are becoming reconciled to the theory of business for art's sake.

Grocery stores and temperament, for example, do not mix well. The same is true in regard to barber shops, chicken ranches, financial exchanges and haberdasheries, a few of the other enterprises in which the actors are engaged.

With Alf Reeves, business manager for Charles Chaplin, George K. Arthur owns a grocery store which is patronized by many of the movie folk. He also is interested in a tonsorial parlor, where Renee Adoree, one of the stars of "The Big Parade;" Lew Cody and Jack Conway, director, have shares.

One of the shop's service features is a "boot car" which calls each morning for the shoes of patrons and returns them shined.

Antonio Moreno owns a subdivision near Los Angeles. John Gilbert likewise dabbles in dirt and has enriched his bank account.

Ramon Navarro finds he has to give much attention to a financial exchange in Mexico City. Karl Dane, who was an aviator during the war, operates a chicken ranch and an agency for airplane parts.

Lon Chaney owns a haberdashery operated by his son. Bert Roach, not to be left behind the others, raises fine bull pups.

Two Plays in One Night by Same Author

Deft and Merciless Studies of Spinsterhood in Munro's "At Mrs. Beam's" and "Beau-Strings."

By ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT, Drama Critic of the New York World.

NEW YORK, May 1.

AS was forecast in these dispatches, that remote Ulsterman who writes under the name of C. K. Munro and whose name was unknown in our town as recently as last Saturday evening, went about his business in London on Monday warmed by the pleasant consciousness that two plays of his were running for dear life in New York.

One of these is "At Mrs. Beam's," a comedy of life in a London boarding house; and the other is "Beau-Strings," the heavily jocose and locally applied title for his comedy of life in an English sanitarium. Both plays have scenes in them written with extraordinary discernment, both are richly amusing. But the former fell into the good hands of the Theater Guild, and is therefore so much more artfully and generously produced that it is made to seem much the better play.

Miss Fontanne a Pert Hussy.

THERE are patches of deeply satisfying entertainment in "At Mrs. Beam's," and it is probably due to something diffuse and rattlepated about the play itself which thus makes it come apart in your memory as if it were a succession of one-act sketches—some of them fair to middling, some of them devastating in the divination that went into their writing.

The comedy is the Guild's final bill for the season. Mr. Munro's piece makes good use of its best talents, notably in the case of Lynn Fontanne, who luxuriates brilliantly in the role of a trollop from Rio.

But "At Mrs. Beam's" belongs peculiarly to any good actress who plays the role of its humming, darting, anguished spinster, Miss Shoe. And Jean Cadell, who came over from England to repeat for us the performance of Miss Shoe which made her celebrated in London when the play was new there in 1920, is rather more than just a good actress. In this role, at least, she is uncanny.

Looks Like Queen Mary.

THIS character—that of a birdlike and withering old maid whisking in and out of a Notting Hill Gate boarding house—is a portrait of a lady who circles happily, busily, inexorably over the caravan of other people's lives, thinking herself a part of them, deriving from them all the excitement and the romance and the tonic for her own hungry heart. It is a role written with humor, compassion and penetrating observation, so that you laugh helplessly at Miss Shoe and are embarrassed at having done so.

Miss Cadell arrays her in amazing relics of limp finery and makes her look just a wee bit like Queen Mary. This part, as written and as played, is as nourishing an experience as an undiscovered book by Mr. Dickens or perhaps an old volume of "Punch" found in a fragrant attic on a rainy day.

To Mrs. Beam's boarding house on a pleasant, unsuspecting day come a thief and his girl to take lodgngs on their way from Paris to some distant land where the police may not be on such intimate terms with them. And it is within the pattern of "At Mrs. Beam's" that Miss Shoe immediately should suspect him of being the alarming Monsieur Landru and herself undertake the work that a less consciously competent person would Girl of 14 Sings and Plays.

MISS DOROTHY VERNA SCUDDER, 14-year-old daughter of Mrs. Oscar F. Scudder, 6615 Enright avenue, will both play the piano and sing at a recital which she will give tomorrow evening at Baldwin Hall.

Her piano numbers will include Beethoven's Sonata Op. 2, No. 1; Schumann's Nocturne and the ballet music from Schubert's "Rosamunde." Her songs will be Howard Fisher's "Look Down, Dear Eyes," and Edward Teschemacher's "A Song of Waiting."

Strange Instruments Heard.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Two Japanese instruments seldom heard in this country were used in a concert given today by Mr. and Mrs. Michitaro Ongawa—the samisen, a three-stringed instrument; and the gekkin, or moon fiddle.

Clara Clemens in New Version of Joan

NEW YORK, May 1.

NOW it is Clara Clemens, otherwise Mrs. Ossip Gabrielowitsch, who has gone and given her own dramatic version of her father's "Joan of Arc." It happened a few afternoons ago at Hampden's Theater, thereby presenting the first professional by-product of a personal habit in the house of Mark Twain.

For it was the amiable custom of that family, whenever conversation lagged of an evening, to break into a suddenly improvised theatrical version of one of their father's books, with a cast enthusiastically headed by the author.

Undoubtedly the pressure of those memories was back of the project in this daughter's mind and induced her to bring, with the assistance of Donal Haines, the shadowy figure of Mark Twain's Joan to life before the footlights of New York.

Dramatic Reading Planned.

NOT that this finished version can, strictly speaking, be called a drama. The original idea was to give what is somewhat vaguely called a "dramatic reading" of the lines through which Mark Twain recaptured the exaltations and agonies and ecstasies of the Maid of Orleans.

But the project somewhat became surrounded with costumes and scenery until it compromised with the gray-bearded narrator seated outside the curtain, reading the introductory paragraphs which blend into ten vignettes of the scenes acted by Miss Clemens as Joan with somewhat bewildered support from members of the Hampden company.

In spite of the appealing and picturesque figure made by the latest Joan, and for all the earnestness and sincerity of the effort, one is forced to the melancholy conclusion that the first idea of a "dramatic reading" was the wiser after all.

Almost Sings Lines.

ALTHOUGH the lines were all Mark Twain's, their arrangement failed utterly to give the simplicity and poignant power of this book, which the author considered his masterpiece. They were solemnly intoned by actors intent on giving a histrionic flourish to the tragic history, told with such straightforward naturalness in the original story.

As Joan, Miss Clemens made a plaintive and appealing picture, but she all but sang the lines in cadences and emphasized the fact that her only experience before footlights thus far has been on the concert stage.

The idea of this painstaking and sincere tribute to her father's work is certainly a worthy one, and more experience and a different manner of attack might result in some genuine dramatic effect. Unfortunately these aims have not yet been realized.

two instances of a change of site during the actual progress of a play. The "Eumenides" of Aeschylus has two scenes, one in Delphi and the other in Athens; the "Ajax" of Sophocles begins in front of the hero's tent and removes to a solitary region by the seashore. The first of these exceptions was in violation of the classical unities of time and place; the second transgressed the unity of place.

The Greek law of the unity of time, it will be remembered, confined the duration of an action within the space of a single day; that of the unity of space restricted its locale to one site. To these was added a third unitty, that of action, affirming that all the incidents of a play must converge upon a single plot.

Unity of action is, of course, fundamental, and characteristic of all competent drama. The unities of time and place were rejected by Shakspeare and with particular violence by Goethe and Schiller. But with the typical form of Greek drama—that of a one-act play lacking intermissions and changes of scene—the unities of time and place ceased to be matters of esthetic debate and became necessities of practical technique. Any modern one-act play, given without pause and change of set, must automatically obey the laws of temporal and spatial unity.

Secret of Ibsen's Technique.

HOWEVER, the Attic playwrights had a capital opportunity for extending the three unities over a full-length action. It was the rule of the annual competitions of the Great Dionysia that each author must submit three one-act dramas. There was at first a tendency to base the entire trilogy upon successive phases of the same legend, thus attaining at least unity of action. It was only in the "Lycurgeia" that Aeschylus hit upon a trilogy which followed approximately all three of the unities. The practice was to confine their control to the one-act play alone. Even unity of action, so far as the trilogy was concerned, was quickly dropped.

The secret of Ibsen's method, it seems to me, is that he adopted the "elaborated catastrophe" of Greek technique, applied it on a large scale to the modern three or four act drama, and bound it together with a somewhat flexible adaptation of the unities of place and time. The Norwegian seems to have struck upon this rediscovery by dint of his own genius, for his classical erudition was negligible. He may have found a hint in the French drama of Racine and Corneille, but this also is doubtful. Ibsen made a boast of the fact that he never read books.

Gained a Formidable Speed.

SOMETIMES he contrived a literal observance of the unity of place. In "Hedda Gabler," for instance, all four acts occur in the drawing room of the Tesman villa. Usually he managed to introduce variety in unity. The three acts of "Little Eyolf" all take place on the estate of Alfred Allmers, but one is in the conservatory, another in a narrow glen and the third in the garden. The three acts of "The Master Builder" are situated in the workroom, in the drawing room and on the verandah of the house of Halvard Solness. The first act of "John Gabriel Borkman" is laid in Mrs. Borkman's drawing room, the second in a gallery upstairs, the third in the drawing room again, and the fourth in an open space just outside the house.

The duration of Ibsen's later plays is sometimes less than the classical single day, and never seriously more; by this means they gain a formidable and bewildering speed. It has been computed that 60 hours would bound the actions of "A Doll's House," "Pillars of Society" and "The Lady From the Sea." The duration of "Rosmersholm" is placed at 52 hours; that of "The Wild Duck" at 40; of "Little Eyolf," 36; of "Ghosts," 16; and "Lady Inger," five hours. "John Gabriel Borkman," in which the action is continuous, literally persists in time for a shorter period than that required for its performance, as many minutes are lost in scene changing. Its actual duration cannot be much greater than two hours.

ture for First National, will be completed this week and he is planning to start "Subway Sadie" within two weeks. Dorothy Mackaill will have the featured feminine role, with Jack Mulhall the male lead.

Earl Hudson last week placed "Mismates" in production. Doris Kenyon has the lead. In the cast are Sam Hardy, Philo McCollough, Charlie Murray, with Warner Baxter as leading man. Charles Brabin is directing and Nicholas T. Barrows furnishing the "gags."

Norman Bel Geddes, creator of the cathedral background for the New York showing of "The Miracle," having been engaged by D. W. Griffith for the creation of effects for "The Sorrows of Satan," will design scenes showing the expulsion of Lucifer from Heaven and his fall to earth.

Following a vacation of several months, during which she considered many stories, Constance Talmadge has started work on "The Duchess of Buffalo," by Hans Kraly. The original story by the author of a number of Miss Talmadge's previous successes was selected as offering the best material for the Schenck star.

With the completion of "Good and Naughty," her current starring production for Paramount, Pola Negri will leave for Europe for a six weeks' vacation.

June 21 has been set as the starting date for "The Deluge," Cecil B. De Mille's next production, and the producer-director is now in New York completing final arrangements for the filming. "The Deluge" will be based upon the biblical story of Noah and the Ark and the destruction of the world and is the prize-winning suggestion of a Sunday school teacher in Long Beach, Cal., in de Mille's recent contest.

Dale Fuller, who has supplied the tragic note in many screen productions, has been cast for her first comedy role in "The Speeding Venus," Priscilla Dean's new Metropolitan production.

Louise Dresser will portray one of her typical character roles in "Gigolo," Rod LaRocque's next starring feature.

DOROTHY MAYNARD TO REJOIN OPERA CAST AT MUNICIPAL THEATER

Italy, and was a pupil of the late Mme. Marchesi.

Will Sing in "Eileen."

HER American debut was in "The Red Feather," a light opera, and her career in the commercial theater included engagements in "Robin Hood," "The Sho-Gun," "The Spring Maid," "The Rose Maid," "The Chocolate Soldier" and "Caroline." She will take part in "Eileen," an operetta by Victor Herbert with which the season of 1926 will begin on the evening of May 31.

Miss Dunne, a newcomer at the Municipal Theater, will also have a role in "Eileen." She is well-known in the field of musical plays, and is at present singing at the Imperial Theater, New York, in an operetta called "Sweetheart Time." Her position here will be that of second soprano.

This announcement disposes of a general expectation that Miss Yvonne D'Arle would return as prima donna. She is now singing in an opereta imported from Vienna, "Countess Maritza," under a "run of the play" contract.

WITH the engagement of Miss Maynard and Miss Dunne, the association completes its cast for the summer. The other members are Thomas Conkey, baritone; Edward Molitore, tenor; Bernice Mershon, contralto; Detmar Poppen, basso; Robert Pitkin and William McCarthy, comedians, and Roland Woodruff, juvenile.

For a special production of Verdi's "Il Trovatore" during the week of July 5, the management has retained Miss Frances Peralta, soprano; Miss Marion Telva, contralton, and James Wolfe, basso, all of the Metropolitan Opera Company. In addition there will be Judson House, tenor, and Greek Evans, baritone. The chorus of 96 members was chosen last week, and intensive rehearsals will begin tomorrow morning at the Jefferson Memorial.

Golden Wedding Celebrated.

The fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. George Springmeyer of 5376 Arlington avenue, was celebrated last week. Springmeyer is 73 years old and his wife 71. A son, George Jr., a daughter, Mrs. S. O'Neil and seven grandchildren attended.

DEVEREAUX TROUPE TO PLAY "BARBER OF SEVILLE" FRIDAY

Traveling Repertory Company Will Appear at Artists' Guild Three Days.

The Devereux Players, a traveling repertory company, will appear in four performances, beginning Friday evening, at the Artists' Guild, 810 Union boulevard.

The engagement will open with "The Barber of Seville," a comedy by Beaumarchais on which Rossini founded his opera. Ibsen's "Rosmersholm" will be given Saturday afternoon and Sunday evening, and Edmond Rostand's comedy, "The Romancers," will be offered Saturday night.

have felt better left to Scotland Yard.

Study in Dishabille.

THE second scene of the play, with the morning sunlight streaking the bedchamber of that thief and his girl, is one of the most deadly and intrusive studies of dishevelment I have ever come upon in the theater. In the moody bickering between this keen, fastidious crook and the smoldering, sultry, uncomprehending girl he carries along with him, you almost smell the stale odor of cigarette butts littering the ashtrays, almost feel the irritation of cracker crumbs on the dingy and crumpled sheets.

Sometimes the penetration becomes actually embarrassing, and you draw back disconcerted as sometimes you do when your idle eye intrudes on some scene glimpsed through a tenement window from the detached and passing elevated.

This episode of ominous and gathering storm is magnificently played by Miss Fontanne and Mr. Lunt. One does not often come upon its like in the playhouse. It is so like "At Mrs. Beam's" that its best scene should have all the quality of a fine and somewhat scornful interlude, refusing to mess about with the more routine comedy going on downstairs.

Introducing Miss Gee.

AS its central figure, "Beau-Strings" has a sterile and adhesive spinster named Miss Gee, who sits perched on the verandah of a hydropathic hotel and swoops down on every arriving couple. To Miss Gee the sight of any man attached (by marriage or other means) to any other member of her own sex except herself is a spectacle vaguely but urgently disquieting.

So, by a thousand familiar devices of infiltration, she tries to disrupt such attachments—picking, you might say, at any coverlet which she is not under. In his portrait of her, as in his portrait of poor old Miss Shoe, the playwright is deft, humorous and merciless. "Beau-Strings" is directed by a young newcomer in our theater—Sigourney Thayer, whose father is headmaster of that austere and faintly snooty preparatory school, St. Mark's.

Otis Skinner as Falstaff.

IN this season of revivals, they are even working on that ponderous rarity, "Henry IV"—Part One only, I suppose. This is the great Falstaff play, and it is one of the ironies of Shakspearean history that when an actor feels minded to embody the rascally knight, he usually undertakes, instead, that dreary and dirty farce, "The Merry Wives of Windsor," in which, as a matter of fact, the role of Falstaff lacks salt and savor.

The new Falstaff is none other than Otis Skinner, and the revival, scheduled for one week only, is for the annual rescue of the Players' Club treasury. The Players still stand cobwebby and smoke-stained and charming on the south side of Gramercy Park, in the house that Edwin Booth left in his will as a club for his fellow players.

Recently it has been in prints because of a rumored novation. It is fantastically ported that some of its more chievous members wish a taken each year by which member must be expelled from club. It would all be done by ret ballot, and even the most ble and reluctant members have to vote for the expulsion someone.

The notion is that every becomes encumbered with genial fellows through the eral laxity of admission, and the thought of such a poll opened once a year would tonic effect on the manners members. It is not a bad

20,000 AT COMMUNITY FUND SOCIAL CENTERS IN APRIL

Report of Secretary Shows Popularity of Neighborhood Gatherings in Three Districts.

Approximately 20,000 St. Louisans living in the crowded districts attended social and educational gatherings at three Community Fund neighborhood centers last month, according to the report made last week by Miss Bertha B. Howell, secretary of the Community Council's Department on Neighborhood Services and Recreation.

The centers mentioned were the Holy Cross Corporation, the Neighborhood Association, and the Kingdom House. Children are cared for during the day while the mothers work, proper nursing is taught, and young people attend school and club meetings at these houses.

ANNUAL WHEEL CHAIR PARADE

Keen competition Among Patients at Veterans' Hospital.

Great secrecy surrounds the preparation of floats and costumes for the annual wheel chair parade to be held by patients at Veterans' Hospital No. 92, below Jefferson Barracks, May 12. Prizes donated by St. Louis merchants' associations will be awarded for the best decorated floats and the best costumes and considerable effort is made by patients to guard their decoration schemes until the day of the parade. Approximately 5000 spectators viewed the exhibit last year and a similar number are expected to attend this year, according to Col. Barker, superintendent of the hospital.

Seeks Aid in Finding Son.

Mrs. Anna Toth, 3708 Nebraska avenue, has asked the police to help search for her son, Nick, 17 years old, who left home April 2, supposedly to seek work, and has not been heard from since. For several weeks previous to his disappearance Toth had talked of going to California. He is described as being medium height, with brown hair and blue eyes, and with one front tooth missing. He was last seen wearing a dark brown, striped suit, gray shirt, gray cap and tan oxfords.

Attorney Tells How to Avoid Being Taken in by Real Estate Swindlers When Investing

Verify Deeds by Actual Examination of Property and Records, Says Richard H. Wagner, Who Also Discusses Values.

Advice to investors in real estate loans, designed to help them in avoiding loss through misrepresentations and swindles, has been prepared for the Post-Dispatch by Richard H. Wagner of the St. Louis Bar. He writes:

"Most of the losses said to have occurred recently have been in the buying of mortgages said to have been misrepresented, or in the depositing of money with realty concerns and accepting in return receipts or personal notes without security.

"Now, any transaction in which money is exchanged for a personal note, or left on deposit by consent, is not a secured investment, but an entirely personal one, depending for its strength upon the responsibility of the individual holding the money. So this would be no more secure than if any business man borrowed personally so much money, and promised to pay it back.

"Every investor in real estate mortgages should know how to tell if his mortgage is a first deed of trust—if it is the one described in the title—if the notes are in correct form, and if the property securing the deed of trust is the property that has been inspected by the investor.

"The investor should ascertain first whether the property inspected is the property secured by the deed of trust. To do this, one must follow the description in the title, giving the distance from some street, and description of the lot. Pace off the distance to verify that the property is the same. Also look on the plat in the title, or on the plat book at the City Hall, and inquire the ownership of the property on either side of the property inspected. You can then locate it without fail.

"The deed of trust described by the title company, in the certificate of title, shows either a book or page number, printed on it by the Recorder of Deeds, or else a date and daily number, also made by the Recorder of Deeds. By comparing these figures on the deed with the figures described in the deed of trust in the title certificate, it can be easily ascertained if the deed described and bought are identical, including the name of the owner and the other parties thereto.

Deeds of Trust.

"All deeds of trust are considered first deeds of trust, unless expressly stated otherwise. Second deeds of trust always have an incorporated clause stating that 'this deed is subject to a prior or first deed of trust now of record.'

"The purchaser should be very careful that any deed of trust recorded prior to the deed of trust purchased has been released of record, unless the deed so purchased is a second deed of trust, then such first or prior deed should remain of record. Only in buying a first deed of trust should the purchaser see that all prior deeds have been released of record.

"The purchaser should be very careful that any deed of trust recorded prior to the deed of trust purchased has been released of record. The title companies show this very plainly and simple. They also make reports on taxes on each sheet of the certificate.

"The notes of the deed of trust are described in the body of the deed, as well as in the title. The purchaser of a deed of trust should compare the notes themselves with the description and see that they coincide exactly.

Insurance Imperative.

"Every loan should be secured by fire insurance up to the full amount of the loan on improved property, and tornado insurance from one-half to two-thirds of the value of the loan. The policies should be assigned to the trustee of the deed of trust, named it, the deed of trust, as party of the second part.

"The matter of taxes, special taxes and mechanic's liens are so plainly shown in the title that no one upon examination should fail to detect an error, as the word 'none' should appear after each of these items.

"Now as to the amount of money to be lent on a piece of property, and the interest to be expected. The average loan in ordinary financial times, where a loan is 60 to 65 per cent of the value of the property, yields 6 per cent; from 50 to 60 per cent of the value of the property, yields 5 to 5½ per cent, and below 50 per cent of the value of the property the rate varies on the individual piece of property, but rarely goes below 5 per cent.

How to Appraise Property.

"By adopting the following methods, a reasonably accurate appraisement of property can be made by anyone, even with very little knowledge of real estate:

"In unimproved property, find the assesment at the city hall. This should be approximately 60 per cent of the actual valuation. In addition to this, find out other vacant property in the neighborhood, and see the owner or owners of improved property, who can always approximate the value within a few dollars.

"On improved property, such as flats, a great number of people take the monthly rentals and multiply by 100 to get a valuation, for the average flat rents on about 10 to 12 per cent basis gross.

"Residences rent on about 8 to 10 per cent basis. This, of course, means property that is not in a run-down condition nor yet brand new—what would be called average rental property.

"But upon property that has been run-down, very conservative loans should be made, even on a rental basis. These should not exceed 50 per cent in any case, while in the newer districts, where buildings in the neighborhood are new, a loan as high as 70 per cent would be safer than a 50 to 55 per cent loan in a depreciating neighborhood. The reason for this is apparent, for if one is forced to take the property upon foreclosure, there are always ready buyers for bargains in new property; while on

HEADACHE LEAVES AND COMPLEXION IMPROVES

"Never in fifteen years have we been without Thedford's Black-Draught in our house," says Miss Susie Mershom, of Lancaster, Ky.

"Black-Draught is our regular family stand-by. A long while ago I was suffering with a spell of indigestion and I was real sick. I read in a paper how Black-Draught was good for such ailments, so I thought I would try it. In almost no time it had me on my feet again.

"Since then I have kept Black-Draught always on hand. For family use I have found it has no equal. The children often need a mild laxative, and I always give them Black-Draught.

"Occasionally I have awful headaches—the blinding kind, which come across the front of my head and temples. This, I think, is a form of biliousness, and when I have one of these spells I begin taking Black-Draught, a pinch after meals, and in a short time I am well. The headache leaves me, and my color improves.

"My mother is 87 years old. I give her Black-Draught when she needs a mild remedy for constipation. Her health is generally very good, and about all she ever takes is Black-Draught. We would not be without it for anything, and always say a good word for it when we have an opportunity."

Thousands of others have written to tell how many disagreeable symptoms, due to constipation, have disappeared after they had taken Black-Draught. It is a natural remedy, composed of selected medicinal roots and herbs, and put up by modern, scientific, accurate methods.

The great popularity of Thedford's Black-Draught is itself an indication of the satisfaction it gives its millions of users. JA-30.

TUESDAY LITERARY CLUB BEGINS CLEAN-UP MOVE

Will Try to Check Littering of Streets With Paper and Other Refuse.

The Tuesday Literary Club, a Federated Club, with 250 members, is about to launch a "Clean-up Campaign," the announced purpose of which is to arouse the civic pride of the citizens of St. Louis against the littering of streets with paper and other refuse.

It is planned to have printed posters to be attached to newsstands, pledging the news vendor to be careful of waste paper, and requesting the same of patrons. Last Thursday, members of the club went on a tour of inspection of the Department of Streets and Sewers' street-cleaning apparatus, accompanied by Director Brooks.

Miss Faye Johnston, chairman of the Civics Committee of the club, announced that the campaign is to be conducted intensively.

TELLS HOW TO AVOID BEING SWINDLED IN BUYING PROPERTY

the other hand, in old districts the property must be a much greater bargain and show a very high rate of income to interest even speculators.

Importance of the Title.

"The title to the real estate upon which the loan is to be made is of paramount importance, and, to insure perfect accuracy and safety, should be made by a company which is exclusively engaged in the title business, and not by the broker from whom you buy your loan. For it is very easy to see that a man making the loan would be a prejudiced party in abstracting the title himself, and if he were so disposed would have unlimited opportunity to construct the title to suit himself and not follow the records at the City Hall.

"In other words, the title should be ordered from persons engaged exclusively in the title business, even if ordeerd through real estate brokers or agents.

"To summarize, the points which must be remembered in making real estate loans are:

"Title—Name of owner, taxes, needs of trust, judgment, mechanics' liens, attachments and restrictions.

Deeds of Trust—Compare daily number, or book and page number, with description of deed in title. Compare description of notes and property in deed.

Other Safeguards.

"Notes—Should coincide with description written in the deed of trust.

Insurance—Fire insurance should be written to the amount of the loan; tornado insurance to about 60 per cent the amount of the loan. All insurance policies should be assigned to the trustee of the deed of trust, known as the party of the second part in the deed of trust. The mortgage clause of the insurance policies should always be in the name of the acting trustee. Should a trustee be replaced by another trustee, for any reason, see that the previous trustee has satisfied his interest in the insurance policies, by writing across the face of the mortgage clause of the insurance policies, 'My interest as trustee has been satisfied.' Signed by the outgoing trustee or the one who has been replaced by another trustee. After this, have the insurance company attach a new mortgage clause on the insurance polices, bearing the name of the new or substituted trustee."

UNIQUE TILE BENCHES SHOW ADVENTURES OF QUIXOTE

Story of Windmill Knight Set Forth in Color in World's Smallest Park.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. (Copyright, 1926.)

SEVILLE, Spain, April 15.—With each picture skillfully drawn and livened by color, representing a different event, a series of illustrated square tiles, recently kilned in Seville, tells the story of Don Quixote.

More than 250 classic pictures of the Spanish hidalgo of Cervantes are inlaid on angling benches that enclose the smallest park in the world. Glazed to a brilliant hue and curiously fascinating the Quixote tale in tiles is an attractive spot for visitors to the grounds of the 1927 Ibero-American Exposition.

The garden dedicated to the windmill chevalier—and Sancho Panza, as well—forms a small corne rof a semitropical promenade park. In the garden's center are tiny orange and palm trees. Around these the 12-sided seating affair, imprinted with the dramatic pictures, has been built.

The unwitting stranger who absently plants himself to rest his legs soon finds he has chosen too unique a place. He has that embarrassing feeling of sitting on something that belongs to someone. A double row of 5-inch tiles runs along the horizontal seat; the same on the back, and tiles more like large postage stamps run as a border along the top. Two clever reddish brown pottery images of the long-legged knight and the paunchy Sancho are sandwiched between the seats. Through the generosity of some promoter of culture the open cases are packed five shelves high with the works of Cervantes. These are offered freely to any Spanish visitor; provided only that he redeposits the book when he leaves.

COLUMBIA, MO., AMATEURS GIVE 'THE THIRTEENTH CHAIR'

Playmakers, Community Theater Troupe, to Present "Bad Man" Next Month.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 1.—The Playmakers, Columbia's community theater organization, this week presented "The Thirteenth Chair," by Bayard Veiller, as its sixth offering of the season. The principal roles were taken by Miss Marian Bowers of Moberly, Miss Helen Haubert of Keokuk and Henry Depping of Moscow Mills, who is student president at the University of Missouri.

Next month the Playmakers will present "The Bad Man." Other works produced have been "Lilliom," "The Goose Hangs High," "To the Ladies," "Outward Bound" and "The Torch Bearers."

INCREASING DEMAND FOR GOATS FOR GLAND OPERATIONS

Arkansas Breeder Ships 32 Bucks and 16 Does to Hospital in China.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 1.—There are all kinds of demands for pure-bred goats—and one, which has proved a source of steady income for several years to W. F. Reeves, Marshall, Ark., is a little out of the ordinary.

He ships bucks of from three to 10 weeks of age to a hospital association for use in surgical rejuvenation operations performed in China. One shipment alone included 32 bucks and 16 young does.

That is only an incident of a business in which, according to Reeves, the calls for animals far exceed the supply, and will, for years to come. As one of the pioneer successful milch goat ranchers of Arkansas, he tells his story in an article published in the Arkansas Farm and Marketing Bulletin, issued from the Bureau of Mines, by Commissioner W. N. Wilkes.

Milking does are especially in demand, to supply beverages for "old people of weak digestive organs, tuberculars, sickly children and babies.

CONSTANT CURLING AND WAVING DRIES THE LIFE FROM HAIR

Girls just must curl and wave bobbed hair to appear their prettiest. But constant curling and waving burn and dry the luster, vitality and very life from the hair.

To offset these bad effects, just get a 35-cent bottle of delightful, refreshing "Danderine" at any drug store or toilet counter and just see for yourself how quickly it revives dry, brittle, lifeless and fading hair.

"Danderine" is a dependable tonic and will do wonders for any girl's hair. It nourishes, stimulates and strengthens each single hair, bringing back that youthful gleam, glint and vigorous luxuriance. Falling hair stops and dandruff disappears. "Danderine" is pleasant and easy to use.

FARMERS' TAX BURDEN STEADILY INCREASING

Direct Levies in 1924-5 Were 236 Pct. Higher Than in 1909-14, Report Shows.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 1.—While business, and the urban population generally, have benefitted from considerable tax relief in the last few years, the farmer has had to contend with a steadily rising tax burden during a period of greatly reduced income, according to the forthcoming report on the agricultural problem by the National Industrial Conference Board.

Direct and indirect taxes paid by farmers and farm property owners, which in 1913 aggregated approximately $624,000,000, or about 9 per cent of the gross agricultural income, in 1922 had risen 133 per cent, the total amount paid for that year being approximaely $1,436,000,000, or 13 per cent of the total agricultural income. Direct taxes on farm property, which averaged $265,000,000 in 1909-14 and were estimated at $891,000,000 in 1924-25, show an increase of 236 per cent during the 15 years, while the total agricultural income in 1924-25 was only about 100 per cent greater than the 1909-14 average.

The most acute phase of this situation, however, developed during 1920 and 1921, when the total taxes paid on farm property rose from $596,000,000 to $848,000,000 or about 42 per cent, while agricultural income during that time dropped from $16,621,000,000 to $10,313,000,000, a decrease of about 39 per cent.

Federal Tax Relief.

While farm wages have gone down more or less with the decline in agricultural prices, the farmer's tax burden has continuously risen since the decline in agricultural values, and remains on a higher comparative level than any other item of farm expenditures. The reason, therefore, the board's report points out, lies in the combination of the following circumstances: Such tax relief as has occurred since the war has been entirely by way of reduction in Federal taxation, while state and local levies have continued to increase from year to year, and in sufficient measure to offset the Federal reduction in the aggregate tax burden.

As the farmer's income in comparatively few cases rises to the level of being subject to Federal income taxation, which is the chief direct Federal source of revenue, agriculture as a whole has benefitted little from Federal tax reduction.

State and local governments, however, derive most of their revenue from the general property taxes, and in nearly all the important agricultural states the proportion of revenue thus levied is more than 60 per cent.

State Increases Checked.

The farmer's tax burden is accentuated, the board's report points out, by the fact that he cannot quickly adjust his prices so as to absorb this increased charge on his income because agricultural prices are determined by factors over which he has relatively little or no control, as production, which is subject to weather hazards, and by world supply and marketing conditions.

On the other hand, he in addition bears other tax burdens than his own, as the more easily adjusted prices of the products and services of industry, which represent 60 per cent of his total expenditures, frequently cover the taxes imposed on their producers.

That the constant increase in the farmer's tax burden, however, has been checked in some of the principal agricultural states is indicated by the Conference Board's recent report on the cost of government. Slight decreases in the general property tax levies for local government purposes took place in 1924 in Iowa, Minnesota, Montana, North and South Dakota.

In some states the rates have been stationary, and in others where slight increases occurred in the total levy, the gain was wholly in the urban districts.

LITTLE DANGER TO RADIO AERIAL FROM LIGHTNING

Engineers Find There Is No Unusual Attraction in the Equipment.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Radio owners who become uneasy during thunderstorms have little reason to fear, because lightning has not exhibited any special fondness for antennae.

So advise engineers of the Underwriters' Laboratories, where daily war is waged against hazard through the testing of hundreds of devices to determine whether they are safe to use.

"Lightning is liable to strike almost anything," one of them said, "but there is no unusual attraction in radios and their equipment. If lightning should strike an antennae, the lightning arrestor with which most antennae are equipped might prove a safeguard and again it might not. Lightning is hard to check.

"Our interpretation of the provision for arrestors on antennae is that they are placed here more for the drainage of static than for protection from lightning."

In the testing of radios, the laboratory experts are concerned chiefly with power operated or so-called socket receiving sets. Especially rigid are the safety requirements for battery eliminators and charger.

ST. FATIMA TO HAVE DAY

Friday will be St Fatima's Day at Washington University. In honor this patron of the architects a parade will be held at noon, after which there will be burlesque ceremonies. In the afternoon the Architecture School building will be open to the public for an inspection of exhibits of the school's work. The day's celebration will close with a ball on the Hotel Chase roof, attended by members of the university.

About Missouri

By Boyd F Carroll

JEFFERSON CITY.

MISSOURIANS have been protected from a possible loss of approximately $65,000,000 in questionable or worthless investments in the last five years through activities of a State department tucked away in a small office in the State Capitol, designated on the statute books as the State Securities Department, but generally known as the "blue sky" department.

This imposing total represents stocks and other securities of "blue sky" promotions barred from Missouri by the department. Many of them were refused stock-selling permits when scrutiny of their plans, organization methods and balance sheets disclosed questionable or fraudulent elements. Permits of others were revoked when they failed to comply with the law or operated in an unsatisfactory manner.

A considerable number have been driven from the State after attempting to sell securities to investors without first qualifying under the Missouri law.

The Securities Commissioner, F. T. Stockard, declared the operation of the department, under the State "blue sky" law, had saved Missouri investors an amount even greater than the $65,000,000 of outlawed securities, as lack of official supervision would have left the field open for a greater invasion of "blue sky" operators.

Former "Blue Sky" Commissioner B. T. Hurwitz of Kansas City was a nemesis of "fly-by-night" promoters and salesmen of worthless stocks for more than three years, while the department was a part of the State Finance Department. He developed an almost uncanny instinct for interpreting the fables of scheming promoters and ferreting out questionable investment plans. He retired about a year ago to practice law in Kansas City. The Legislature transferred the "blue sky" office from the Finance Department to the Secretary of State's Department, and Stockard, who was placed in charge, has been carrying on the battle with the salesmen of questionable stocks.

School teachers, widows and physicians are most numerous among the victims of "blue sky" swindlers, according to Stockard, and they are the sources of the larger part of the complaints received by the department. The school teachers apparently take representations of stock salesmen at face value, Stockard said, and the widows lose through lack of business experience. Complaints indicate that many physicians, without business experience, invest first and investigate later, he said.

Stockard, a lawyer, admitted that sometimes lawyers and bankers "fall" for swindling schemes, but rarely make formal complaints. "When they are taken in they usually can't afford to 'squeal' about it," Stockard said. "The lawyer is supposed to know the ins and outs of the law, and the banker is supposed to know the worth of investments. They lose prestige if the public learns they have fallen for a swindler's scheme."

He declared storekeepers and business men were more immune as a class to stock swindlers, although many have been led astray by mirages of easy profits in oil, mining stock, aerial navigation, trick inventions and the "what have you" of the resourceful "blue sky" promoter.

"Blue sky" activities have been at a lower ebb than usual in the past year, Stockard said, due to a concentration of the known operators in Florida. Many of these operators are well known to "blue sky" supervisors, through interchange of information between the departments of the different states. With the Florida boom reverberating less noisily—and less profitably—some of the operators are turning to other fields, particularly oil and mining ventures. Stockard said, and a close vigil is being maintained against any invasion of Missouri.

A MOVEMENT to stimulate supervised play and recreation for young people in rural communities has been started by the Kiwanis Club of Jefferson City, through organization of the Cole County Athletic Association, comprising all rural communities in the county.

Each community will be represented in control of the association by a director, chosen from the younger people of that community. Baseball and volley ball teams will be organized in each community and will play a schedule through the summer that will bring each group in contact with all others in the county at least twice. Competition in winter sports also is planned. The Jefferson City Club will award cups to the championship teams.

Objects of the association are to provide more recreation for young people on the farms, to promote more friendly relations among communities in the county, and in turn to bring these communities in closer touch with Jefferson City, the County seat.

SHOVING-OFF PLACE OF THE 49ERS MARKED

Granite Slab Unveiled at Weston Smithy at Independence, Mo.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., May 1.—The old Western Blacksmith shop here, the showing-off place for the wagon trains of the oFrty-niners in their trek to the Pacific Coast, has taken its place in history. A five-foot granite marker has been unveiled in front of the ramshackle building that for 50 years was one of the busiest spots in Independence.

At the dedication Frances and Martha Batterton, twin great-great-granddaughters of Samuel Weston, the original Smith, lifted the purple veil from the marker.

Independence old-timers tell a visitor the blacksmith shop is full of the history of the plains. It is said Weston knew every guide and Indian fighter of any renown and probably had shod the horses of many famous figures of the prairie schooner days.

W. L. Webb, a descendant of one of the pioneers of Independence, painted a vivid picture of the history of the old blacksmith shop in an address at the unveiling ceremonies. According to Webb, the Weston shop was built in 1840 and struggled along until the opening of the Oregon trail in 1844, when the first organized westward movement began. He pictured the lines of covered wagons standing in front of the old shop. In those days when a wagon wheel lost its tire it meant from one to three days' delay until the smith could shrink the iron band around the spokes.

In 1849 a boom struck Independence and made the pioneer blacksmith wealthy, as wealth was figured in those days. The race to the gold deposits in California made business galore for the Weston shop.

ROSE POND IS STILL MECCA OF THE CURIOU

But Hay Instead of Roses Now Grows in Supposed Crater of Extinct Volcano.

By the Associated Press.

EVENING SHADE, Ark., May 1.—Each summer with its crop of tourists, sees a renewed interest in "Rose Pond," near here, which is thought to be the filled in crater of an extinct volcano and is pointed out to all newcomers as a natural curiosity.

"Rose Pond" is about 12 acres in extent. It is literally as "level as a floor." It takes its name from the fact that when white settlers first came here, it was a marshy place, covered thickly with the wild rose that is native to this section One old timer says he has yet to see a more beautiful sight than was Rose Pond in those days, with the early morning dew on the pink and white blossoms.

But the roses have disappeared now. The first owners found it impossible to clear the pond, so thickly did the rose brambles grow and water stood in rock bound courses over the marsh. But Jacob Schales, from Germany, acquired the pond.

Hay meant more than roses to Schales. So with a prodigious amount of labor he cut the brambles and rooted them out of the mud, dug out the rocks and drained the pond.

Wild hay flourished for him and later owners, but such prosaic crops as corn and cotton will not grow in the pond with any degree of success. It is as if the spot resents giving up its ancient wild heritage.

Students of geology say there is no other soil in the State just like that of Rose Pond. It resembles, so it is said, ashes or lava reduced to powder, and mixed with vegetable matter brought in by erosion and water from the slightly higher ground.

LITTLE MORE THAN HALF A CROP OF APPLES IN CALHOUN COUNTY

Jonathan Production About Hardin Is Expected to Be Very Light.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HARDIN, Ill., May 1. — The jonathan apple crop in Calhoun County will be very light this year according to some of the leading orchardists. Lack of moisture in the orchards the past winter, together with two heavy crops in previous years, is believed to have shortened the crop. The unusually cool weather for this time of year is holding back other varieties, but it is thought barring freezing weather later, that the county will harvest between 50 and 60 per cent of a crop.

Peaches, pears, plums and other smaller fruit in the county are looking good, and with favorable weather conditions, a good crop from these varieties will be gathered.

$1640 in Gold Sewed in Clothes.

MAN ASKS POLICE TO HELP HIM FIND HIS PARENTS

Alonzo Taylor of Bloomington, Ill., Says He Was Put in Orphanage Before 1896 Cyclone.

Alonzo Taylor of 1010 West Market street, Bloomington, Ill., has written to Chief of Police Gerk asking the police here to interest themselves in a search for Taylor's parents. He writes:

"I was put in an orphanage in St. Louis by my mother, Mrs. Sarra Taylor, five months before the big cyclone in 1896. My mother and my father, John W. Taylor, who worked for the Wabash railroad, were separated at that time.

"Two weeks afterwards I was taken out of the home by a family at Thomsville, Ill., and was raised by them. I believe my people are in St. Louis still, if alive. The orphanage in which I was placed was a great big building with vines all over the front and big long stone steps."

Policewomen will try and trace the parents.

Voice of Union Labor and Radical Press

The Post-Dispatch prints herewith extracts from editorial or other articles in organs of labor unions and the Communist and Socialist Parties, showing the tendency of thought on public questions among those bodies of citizens.

UNCLE SAM'S BIG CANAL PAYS.
(From Labor, Organ of Rail Unions.)

Occasionally it is possible to place a dyed-in-the-wool reactionary on the witness stand in defense of progressive doctrines.

Such an opportunity developed in the Senate when Senator "Jimmy" Wadsworth of New York was the witness.

Senator King of Utah, who does not believe the Government can handle any business without making a mess of it, was indulging in criticism of the Panama Canal when he was interrupted by Senator Wadsworth, who said:

"I think it a little inaccurate to say that we tax any of the people of the United States for the maintenance of the Panama Canal.

"It may interest the Senator to know that the Panama Canal is paying all of its expenses of every kind and description, plus interest on the amount of the investment, to such an extent that we can say now that it is paying a little over 5 per cent on the investment, net."

Senator Wadsworth should know what he is talking about. The War Department has jurisdiction over the canal and as chairman of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, Senator Wadsworth has access to all the records of the War Department.

His testimony is, therefore, impressive.

"Private enterprise" endeavored to dig the Panama Canal and failed, sacrificing tens of millions in money and hundreds of lives.

The United States Government took over the enterprise and made the Canal Zone a place where white men may live in safety and comfort and opened a ship canal between the Atlantic and the Pacific at a cost of more than $400,000,000. Pessimists declared it was a mad scheme and even its friends hesitated to predict that it would ever become a paying proposition.

The success of the canal does not prove that the Government should immediately rush into the business of managing enterprises of all kinds and descriptions. It does prove, however, that the Coolidge claim that Government ownership and operation is always a failure is silly rot.

THE GOVERNOR'S PLAN.
(From the New Leader, Socialist.)

We agree with The World that Gov. Smith has cleared himself of the charge of Socialism in relation to his plan for hydroelectric power. In fact, there is no reason why his plan should not induce the great power interests to help float his campaign for the presidency. Smith makes a sharp distinction between development and distribution. "The first of these two activities," observed The World, "the Governor looks upon as the proper business for the State. The second he would leave to private industry."

Admirably put! It is as though the Governor should say: "Gentlemen, superpower is the coming great industry. The State should develop it through its own public corporation, having developed it into a big concern and made distribution possible on a great scale, we shall call in private capitalists to enrich themselves through this distribution. The State will retain control, but the rich plums shall go to capitalist investors. Don't be afraid. Capitalism is just as safe in my hands as it would be in the hands of a Republican Governor."

The World asked the Governor to make this point clear and Smith has complied. A Socialist Governor would strive to prevent any plums going to private investors and would have consideration for the thousands of workers employed in the industry. Smith says nothing about the workers. He is concerned with capitalist investments in distribution, the safety of the principle involved in capitalist property, and would retain nominal ownership in superpower merely to avoid long leases to private corporations.

Capitalism is safe in Smith's hands and a trial balloon for the presidency gets some more publicity.

NEGROES TO MAKE EFFORT TO FREE MARCUS GARVEY

Will Meet Today on Behalf of Man Serving Term for Attempt to Defraud Them.

A thousand St. Louis members of the Universal Negro Improvement Association and African Community League are expected to attend the mass meeting to be held at 3 p. m. today at 2602 Pine street for the purpose of getting the organization's founder, Marcus Garvey, out of the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

Garvey is serving five years for using the mails to defraud, the Government having exposed his scheme as a far-flung chimera which victimized ignorant members of his race. Dr. J. J. Peters, described as "an educator," will address Sunday's mass meeting and tell the crowd why Marcus ought to be pardoned by the President.

Talks of Eye Muscle Exercises.

A one-week series of lectures on the care and development of the eyes will be begun tonight at Moolah Temple by Dr. R. A. Richardson, a Kansas City oculist, who says defective vision can be remedied more readily by exercise of the eye muscles than by the use of spectacles.

TROUBLED WITH ITCHY ECZEMA

In Water Blisters, On Hands and Face. Cuticura Heals.

"I was troubled with eczema about six months. It started in little water blisters and soon became large, sore eruptions that itched and burned. I had it on my hands and face. I used other remedies without success. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment which helped me. I purchased more, and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and one and a half boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Tina M. Donahoo, Mary Nebraska Aug 29 1925.

Cuticura Soap to cleanse and purify, Cuticura Ointment to soothe and heal and Cuticura Talcum to powder and sweeten are ideal for daily toilet purposes.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

Old Folks Need a Mild Laxative —Not a "Physic"

Most men and women past fifty must give to the bowels some occasional help else they suffer from constipation. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect a gentle aid to weak bowels.

Is your present laxative, in whatever form, promoting natural bowel "regularity"—or must you purge and "physic" every day or two to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, colds, or sour, gassy stomach

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural, regular bowel movement even for those chronically constipated. It never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just try for yourself.

THIS IS THE THIRD CHAPTER IN "THE STORY OF A NEWSPAPER"

The growing importance of the United States has brought into international prominence the United States Senate. Leaders of the Senate enjoy an authority beyond that of any other deliberative body on earth. These men know the press and its importance. Some of them think the St. Louis Post-Dispatch unique in its devotion to American ideals, and they are saying so on this page.

SKYLINE OF THE NEW ST. LOUIS — Drawn for the Post-Dispatch by C. K. GLEESON

What Three United States Senators Say—

"It makes the cause of the individual the cause of liberty."
—Senator Borah

William E. Borah, chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations and one of the most brilliant men in the history of the Senate, is an admirer of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. He says:

"To say that it is the able and consistent, unpaid and uncompromising champion of the rights of the citizen as guaranteed by the constitution is as high an encomium as can be paid to a newspaper. To this encomium the Post-Dispatch is undeniably entitled. It has been the voice always heard in behalf of free speech, a free press, the right of peaceable assemblage, and all those inestimable rights now too often undervalued and too often challenged. It has maintained with an ability that admits of no superior the great principles of free government.

"This is often a thankless task. Too often those against whom arbitrary measures are invoked are without position or means, and it requires courage to take up the fight. But I have observed that the Post-Dispatch never loses sight of the principle involved, the right that is in jeopardy, and makes the cause of the individual, however obscure, the cause of liberty. It recognizes that precedents established in the most incidental way may become engines of destruction in after times."

Wm E Borah

"It is the Manchester Guardian of America."
—Senator Norris

George W. Norris of Nebraska, whose rugged honesty has made for him a place in the Senate beyond all consideration of party, prizes the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. He says:

"Twenty years in Congress is ample time in which to get acquainted with the newspapers of the country. A Senator soon learns how the more influential newspapers report and comment upon events in Congress. I have grown somewhat pessimistic about them. The news from Washington tends more and more to take its color and tone from the editorial policies of the newspaper in which it appears.

"The St. Louis Post-Dispatch is a refreshing exception to this rule. I have habitually observed that its editorials, instead of setting a pattern for the news reports, have followed them. This is as it should be. It is honest journalism. There is nothing more stimulating than to find a newspaper which, even though it disagrees politically with a public official, will state his views honestly and fully.

"In its defense of speech and opinion, and in its championship of minorities, the Post-Dispatch has earned an enviable place in American journalism. I welcome the opportunity to express my admiration for a great newspaper. It is the Manchester Guardian of America."

G W Norris

"It is contributing to sound views on public questions."
—Senator Walsh

Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, to whose persistence was due the exposure of Secretary Fall and the purifying of government that resulted, esteems the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. He says:

"I am pleased to find an opportunity to express my appreciation of the loyal support uniformly given by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch to the efforts that have been made in both branches of Congress to purify the public service and preserve the high standard of official conduct that is the heritage of the American People.

"The Post-Dispatch was one of the few journals that from the outset of the inquiry realized the malign character of the transactions exposed in the investigation of the lease of the naval oil reserves, taking a positive stand against them long before the sensational features attending them were developed.

"The very graphic and accurate reports made by its able correspondents were supplemented by discriminating and helpful editorial comment quite in contrast with the hostile attitude of the press generally, until outraged public opinion forced a change.

"The Post-Dispatch is contributing materially to the formulation of sound views on public questions."

T J Walsh

ACTIVE MARKET NOW FOR RARE OLD BOOKS

Dealer Advises Looking in Attic for Volumes—Some May Be Valuable.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., May 1.—If you happen to have a first edition of Shakespeare's "Venus and Adonis" in your attic, dust it off a bit, take it to New York and there, at an auction, you can get about $2,000 incash for it.

Such is the advice of M. E. Northwall, Omaha dealer in books, who will leave May 18 for Europe to buy $75,000 worth of books for Omahans and other customers, some of whom live as far west as San Francisco.

Northwall will visit England, Scotland, Belgium and Holland on his quest for books from the beginning of printing to present day manuscripts and from old standard English literature to Shakspeare's follos.

Active Market for Rare Books.

"There is a strong and active market for rare books, just as there is for gilt-edge bonds," Northwall said. "For example, a Gutenberg Bible, the first book ever printed, sold in New York recently for $106,000.

"Book collecting is a fascinating game. Sometimes one unwittingly finds a treasure, and then again, just as unwittingly, one lets it slip through his fingers. I once bought a book for 20 cents for which I have been offered $400. It was 'The Lamp Lighter's Story,' by Charles Dickens. It was printed in 1861 by T. B. Peterson & Brothers, is covered with a 'presentation' binding, and contains 'Hunted Down,' a story which appears in no other form.

Sold Valuable Book for $2.

"On th eother hand, I once picked up a rare first edition of Stevenson for almost nothing, placed it on the shelves and sold it for $2, without realizing its value.

"First editions are the bases for all book values. Later editions get their values for various reasons. I own a first edition of 'Tale of a Tub,' by Jonathan Swift, which ordinarily would be worth about $100. But this one was Swift's own book, and in it are his own corrections and changes, made in red ink for future editions. It is worth about $1500.

"Dust the cobwebs off the old books in your attic and look at the title pages. You may find volumes worth thousands of dollars."

COMMITTEE FORMED TO AID ANTI-EVOLUTION BILL

North Carolinians Working in Concert to Overcome Forces of Modernism.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., May 1.—Selecting a personnel for the Legislature that will insure passage of the Poole "anti-evolution" bill, or a similar measure, is one of the principal ideas behind the plans of the "committee of one hundred" which has been formed here as a statewide organization to direct the fight "to rout the forces of modernism" in North Carolina, according to W. E. Price, of Charlotte, secretary-treasurer of the organization.

Price is himself a candidate for one of the thre epositions on the Mecklenburg County delegation in the lower house of the General Assembly, and states unequivocally that he is running on a platform that will be friendly to the passage of the Poole bill and hostile to the modernistic views which the "committee of one hundred" is organized to fight.

HERON COLONY IN ILLINOIS

Birds of Same Species Found in Florida Lagoons.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Ill., May 1.—Naturalists are interested over the fact that a colony of herons of the same species found in the Florida lagoons has taken up its summer residence on a farm near Paris. The birds number about 50 and have chosen for their abode a grove near a small stream. The owner states that occasional birds have visited his farm for several years past. The birds are building nests and seem perfectly content with their surroundings.

COTTON PLANTING NOW ON

Southeast Missouri Farmers Have Decreased Acreage.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SIKESTON, Mo., May 1.—Farmers in this section have planted most of their corn and are now planting cotton in full force. Some of the early corn is up to a good stand and is now being cultivated. The cotton acreage in Southeast Missouri has been cut 25 per cent this year.

Snakes Hunted for Their Oil.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CISCO, Tex., May 1.—The rattlesnake is doomed. Demand for rattlesnake oil at $100 a gallon has encouraged hill dwellers in this section to seek out the rattlers in their hibernating places, dynamite the dens, and render the oil from the hapless snakes. The product is used in medicine, and since only a small quantity is found in one snake, the industry is profitable only when they can be found in numbers.

SPRING CLEANUP CAMPAIGN BY STATE OF WISCONSIN

Official Crews Visit Towns Collecting and Hauling Away Accumulated Rubbish.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wns., May 1.—Communities of Wisconsin have been invited by the State Board of Health to join in the "community bath" which is under way throughout the State. Spring cleaning of homes and streets has become a custom, the board says.

A fixed program for removing wastes which accumulate in homes during winter is recommended. The work is done by crews paid for by the city or village, under authority of a State law. Householders, advised in advance when the crews will be in their vicinity, place the trash in the streets to await its lections is budgeted and paid from lections is budgeted and paid from the tax funds.

RECIPE TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

You Can Make a Better Gray Hair Remedy Than You Can Buy.

Gray, streaked or faded hair is not only unbecoming, but unnecessary.

Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is easy to use, does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

"Is Diabetes Curable?"

This is the title of a 78-page book recently published, relating the experiences of a score or more of nationally prominent men and women who recovered from diabetes with the Sanborn home treatment.

It is a clinical record showing their desperate condition at the start and the stages by which they completely recovered.

If you believe to the slightest extent that you exhibit symptoms of diabetes or Bright's disease, lose no time in reading this remarkable book. Merely send your name and address to Sanborn Laboratories, Publishers, 319 Y. M. C. A. Gets Pleasant Surprise

"About 6 months ago my father was very sick with his stomach which had been troubling him for several years. Three doctors said he had cancer and one said it was gall stones—all agreed an operation necessary. I got on account of his age I was afraid to risk it. I told a friend about it, who said his wife had been through the same trouble and had been cured by taking MAY'S. So at once bought a bottle for father, and he is now as strong as a bear and can eat more ham and cabbage than any three men." It removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded at Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores, Walgreen Drug Co. and druggists everywhere.

LIP-READING TESTS FOR "HEARING WEEK"

Special Demonstrations Here for the Deaf Beginning Today.

Observance of "Hearing Week," designated to encourage thought on the prevention of deafness and the welfare of the deaf, will begin today under the auspices of the St. Louis League for the Hard of Hearing, in co-operation with the Central Institute for the Deaf, the St. Joseph School for the Deaf, the Board of Education and the Health Department.

Open house will be kept today at the league's headquarters in the Ohio building, Vandeventer avenue and Olive street. Miss Betty Wright, field secretary of the American Federation of Organizations for the Hard of Hearing, will be in charge of an exhibit there which she showed last week at Dallas, Tex., at the American Medical Association convention.

Miss Wright will deliver an address on deafness at Soldan High School at 8 p. m. tomorrow. Representatives of co-operating institutions will make short talks. Tuesday noon there will be a luncheon at Hotel Mayfair and at 4 p. m. at the league's rooms a demonstration in lip-reading will be given by pupils of St. Joseph School for the Deaf. Pupils of Central Institute for the Deaf will give a similar demonstration Wednesday.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday programs will be announced later. Miss Wright's exhibit, showing devices for testing and improving hearing as well as information on the alleviation of deafness will be displayed during the week at the league's rooms.

TO GIVE "THE ROMANTIC AGE"

Will Be Washington U. Feature for Home-Coming Week.

One of the features of the Washington University home-coming, June 5, will be the presentation of A. A. Milne's three-act comedy, "The Romantic Age," by members of the Thyrsus, the university's dramatic club.

A stage will be erected in front of Ridgeley Library on the main quadrangle of the university. The play will be followed by a reception and dance on the quadrangle.

SEARCH OF MANY YEARS COMES TO AN END

Saint Louisan Says He Has Searched for Years for Something that Would Improve His Health but Was Unsuccessful Until He Found the Great Herb Extract Known as Herb Juice.

"It has been a search which has lasted over a period of several years, for something that would relieve me of constipation and a general run down condition, and during these years of searching at times I felt that it was no use because everything I tried seemed to be just about the same, but I continued trying and finally was lucky enough to find the great remedy, Herb Juice, for which I am truly thankful and am glad to make this public statement in praise of the remarkable things it has done for me," said Mr. Mike Bolte, who resides at 3827 St. Louis avenue, St. Louis, Mo., in a recent conversation with the special representative, continuing his remarks of his condition before he was fortunate enough to find the great Herbal remedy known as Herb Juice. Mr. Bolte said: "I have been a sufferer for a long, long time from chronic constipation. It seemed that unless I was continually taking some sort of a strong purgative that my bowels would just simply refuse to act. And from this dreadful constipated condition grew all the other aggragating ailments which accompany this malady. To be brief, I was in a very poor state of health; run down generally; had a very poor appetite, and suffered intensely with pains in my stomach. And, try as I would and did, I never found anything to give me the satisfaction which I have experienced the short time I have been taking your remarkable remedy, Herb Juice. It has entirely relieved me of my constipated condition, something I had given up all hope of being rid of. My bowels now act better than they have in years. My appetite is splendid. I can now eat anything I want and really enjoy it and never suffer any bad after effects from it. I am truly grateful to Herb Juice and will always avail myself of every opportunity to praise this great remedy everywhere I go."

This great laxative medicine is an Herb Extract preparation, known as Herb Juice and is outselling any medicine where it has been introduced. Many are calling daily to see the special demonstrator at Walgreen Drug Company, 514 Washington avenue, giving statements for publication, praising this great remedy that their friends may be induced to try it.

All America Does Homage to Music

National Music Week Beginning Annually the First Sunday in May

THE outgrowth of the many Music Weeks held in numerous cities and towns throughout the country · · National Music Week · · has become a great annual festival in which the entire nation takes part.

THE good citizens of tomorrow are the home boys and home girls of today · · And to keep boys and girls in the home and of the home, there must be facilities within the home for furnishing music.

The general purpose is to foster in a comprehensive way a love for music, and an appreciation of its increasing importance in the life of the community.

In many respects it is a collective movement by organizations having facilities for gathering their members together for public musical events, with the object of broadening and deepening the love for music by the individual.

National Music Week is therefore inseparably concerned with music in the home.

These Organizations Are Cooperating in National Music Week

Churches Theatres Public Libraries Women's Clubs Schools
Music Leagues Motion Picture Houses Music Stores
Music Clubs Music Societies Music Teachers Musicians
Chambers of Commerce American Legion Posts
Public Institutions Industrial Plants Community Service

The ultimate purpose of National Music Week is that parents shall be inspired to give their children the advantages of music during their impressionable years.

A Piano in the home is a necessity in the training and education of children, and an indispensable aid in establishing character during the formative years of young manhood and young womanhood. It is a bond holding the family together in unforgetable fellowship.

Music begins beneficiently with the youngest child, and early develops an understanding of art, refinement of thought, circumspection of action, and preference for rectitude.

As the years pass into the tempermental period of youth, music accentuates home interest, and home entertainment becomes a standard by which many temptations are withstood.

Buy a Piano. Choose one of the standard makes. A store where such are sold will have the service adequate to assist you in the purchase of a Piano best suited for your requirements.

The convenient terms insure an immediate delivery and a satisfactory period of easy payments. If you have an old Piano or a Phonograph you may wish to dispose of, it may be traded in at a fair valuation.

ACTIVITIES OF BOY SCOUT TROOPS

TROOP 85 CLAIMS UNUSUAL RECORDS

Is Largest Scout Unit West of New York and Has Six Members Over 25 Years Old.

Several unusual records belong to Troop 85, which meets in its own gymnasium at 7229 Moller avenue, Maplewood. It is the largest troop west of New York, having 116 registered scouts. The scoutmaster, John H. Bell, who is 66 years old, has been in charge ever since the organization of the troop 11 years ago; and 12 of the scout charter members still belong, although six are over 25 years old.

Scoutmaster Bell says the reasons for the large membership, and its stability, are continuous participation by the scoutmaster, strict discipline at the proper time, and the whole-hearted co-operation and friendship of the parents. The last, he believes, is vital, and he makes it a point not only to know personally the parents of all of his scouts, but to visit them all regularly. There is no parents' auxiliary connected with the troop, but six times a year a parents' night is held, at which time the boys demonstrate various scouting activities, such as knot-tying, first aid, signaling and woodcraft, to the fathers and mothers. As a result, the parents are in complete sympathy and understanding with the work, and stand ready to back the troop at all times.

Personal Friendship Vital.

"Continuous participation by the scoutmaster in games, hikes, tests and other activities is necessary," said Bell. "For the boys should feel that their leader is with them 100 per cent. Personal friendship with every one of his scouts will solve many problems. But at the same time, discipline should be such that when the scoutmaster comes 'off of the floor,' to the head of the troop, the boys will respond promptly. Scouts understand that progress without organization is almost impossible, and organization implies intelligent direction. And that is what our discipline is."

The scouts of Troop 85 are divided into two classes: Active, or regular members, and associate, or scouts over 18, who, by reason of being away at school or work, are unable to attend regularly. There are 92 active scouts and 24 associates. The active members are divided into 11 patrols of seven scouts and a patrol leader. The other officers are a senior patrol leader, Frank Mason; two junior assistant scoutmasters, Robert Crocker and Lloyd Richie, and two assistant scoutmasters, one of whom, Kenneth Lloyd, graduated from the ranks of the troop. The other is Ralph Ranny, physical educational director of Maplewood High School.

Each a Specialist.

Each patrol leader is a specialist in one or two subjects. A scout desiring to pass a test goes to the expert for instruction. When the patrol leader feels that he is qualified, the final examination is given by one of the commissioned officers. The popular group instruction by patrol leaders is not practiced in Troop 85.

The troop's activities are numerous. Their gymnasium is well equipped with rings, Indian clubs and other apparatus. Hikes are taken regularly. An annual summer camp is held on the Big River near Burns' Mill, Mo., and last year more than 40 boys and the scoutmaster spent 10 days there. This year 60 have signified their intention of going.

The outstanding activity of the troop, however, is an annual Easter egg hunt, which has been held for the last six years at Barthold's Grove in Maplewood, for all Maplewood boys under 12 years of age. Last Easter 2400 colored eggs were hidden by the scouts, and 312 more distributed to unsuccessful searchers. The hunt, which is held the day before Easter, has become a recognized community affair in Maplewood, and virtually all of the city's boys participate.

South District.

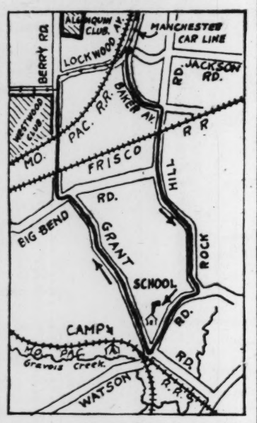
The Eagle patrol of Troop 38 held a memorial tree-planting ceremony at their camping grounds on Cold Water Creek last Sunday afternoon. The Scouts planted 350 trees, 50 of which, weeping willows, were memorials to relatives or friends of troop members. One tree each was planted for the army, navy, marines and nurses. Black walnuts gathered by National Scout Commissioner Dan Beard from a tree above Roosevelt's grave were also planted. Over 200 persons attended the ceremony. Next Friday a first aid program will be given in connection with First Aid Week. All Scouts are invited to the meeting.

Camp 4, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, presented Troop 106 of the Peabody School with a new American flag at their meeting last Wednesday. Maj. Leo Meyer made the presentation, which was witnessed by parents and friends of the troop.

Despite a heavy rain, Troop 131 hiked from Grand boulevard and Arsenal street to the Forest Park Scout camp last Wednesday, and held a weiner roast. Every Scout told a story, and Assistant Scoutmaster Schroeder sang a Girl Scout song. Yesterday the troop visited the Pevely dairy on an educational hike.

Troop 184 hiked to Osage Hills last Sunday for nature study.

Map of Scout Hike



Short afternoon hike, totaling 3½ miles, from the Jackson road and Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves, stop on the Manchester car line, to Gravois Creek. The going trip may be made out Rock Hill road, and the return via Grant and Berry roads. Water may be had from a cistern at the schoolhouse on Rock Hill road.

Many species of birds, snakes and lizards were noted. For a good turn the troop helped get a machine out of a ditch.

Patrol Leader Charles Adleman of the Panther Patrol told the scouts of Troop 160 about the patrol leaders' camp at Irondale, at the meeting of the troop last Monday. The Eagle Patrol is leading in an interpatrol contest with 35 points. Several scouts from Troop 155 visited the last meeting of the troop.

Troop 180 of the Rose Fanning School will act as escort to Gov Baker at the opening of the Associated Bakers of America exhibit at the Coliseum tomorrow night. They will also have charge of the flag-raising, and will carry a large cake, a replica of the State Capitol, to the Governor.

Troop 198 was victorious over 157 in a "Capture the Flag" game held on a hike of the two troops at Windsor Springs a week ago yesterday. Many cooking tests were passed on the hike.

Troop 57 of Battery A took their usual weekly overnight hike to a new cabin which has been given them at Glencoe, Mo. Twenty boys attended, carrying their equipment, and cooking their own meals. Several tests were passed. On the return trip the scouts met one of their trucks at their Yeatman camp, and were brought back to the city in it. This troop now has the use of five cabins, one each at Glencoe, Yeatman, Valley Park, Stonehenge, and one on the Telegraph road. The troop is looking for a few more members.

Headquarters.

Reservations are now being taken for places in the annual fathers' and sons' week-end camp at the Irondale Scout Reservation May 14 to 16. The camp is limited to 150 couples, or 300 in all. The Missouri Pacific is furnishing a special train to leave Friday evening at 5 o'clock, arriving at Irondale at 7, and returning Sunday evening at 4 o'clock, arriving at St. Louis at 6.

More than 200 boys have signed up for the summer camp in the last 10 days, headquarters reports, indicating that capacity of the camp reservations will soon be reached. There will be only seven sections this year, instead of eight as formerly, which will lessen accommoadtions by 300. To reserve a place in a desired section, a scout must deposit a dollar at headquarters, and indicate his preference in writing. The deposit will be refunded in case of inability to attend.

During the week the following scouts assisted at headquarters in mailing literature in connection with the biennial conference to be held at Hot Springs, Ark., this fall: Troop 18, Carl Dobbin, Prewitt Brookes, Robert Brookes, Jack Bauer, Orville Eberts, Donnell Dutton, Howard Eckles, Julian Eckles, Arthur Niblock, John Willingham; Troop 20, Victor Worheide; Troop 34, Arthur Werder, Kenneth Allen; Troop 37, Robert McCaughan; Troop 54, Norvell Brasch; Troop 63, Leonard Buch, Paul Hennerich, Melvin Milligan, Julian Neimeyer, Sam Waymer, Woodruff Marsalek, Edward Kendall Jr.; Troop 83, Bill Rabenburg; Troop 86, Arthur Messner, Wilbert Willert; Troop 150, Walter Risch, John Bowenkamp, Ronal Smith, Leighton Taylor; Troop 156, Stanley Panus; Troop 157, Tharon Johnson; Troop 160, Teddy Turk, Charles Dennis-ton, Francis Ecoff and Ralph Ecoff.

The Sour Owl patrol of the Scoutmasters' Training Course took a hike last Sunday to Centaur, Mo., to look over some land that has been placed at the disposal of the local council for scouting purposes. The morning was spent exploring the country, part of which is on the banks of the Mississippi River, and which was voted to be an ideal place for overnight hikes or summer camps. There are three springs and a large tract of timber land on the north side of a hill, on which are two cabins, in need of repair, but still usable. The area was mapped in the afternoon, the baseline triangularization method being used.

In the evening a council fire was built, around which the patrol discussed methods of promoting interest in tests, merit badges and other scout activities. The suggestion was made and adopted that the Sour Owls be made a permanent organization, meeting once a week for the duration of the training course, and once every two weeks thereafter. A patrol leaders' overnight camp has been planned for May 22 and 23, each member bringing his patrol leaders. The patrol members are also planning a 10-day camp in August for their troops.

Suburban District.

In order to keep in practice in the tenderfoot requirements, the scouts of Troop 3, St. Charles, are to pass them over again as a contest. This troop has changed its meeting night from Monday to Tuesday, so as not to conflict with the scoutmasters' training course, which Scoutmaster L. R. McAdams is attending. Field Executive M. N. Leavitt spoke on the summer camp at the last meeting. Scouts J. H. Willbrand and K. Schiermeier were awarded gold-plated badges for becoming first class scouts during the roundup last winter.

The Eagle patrol of Troop 3, Webster, made a clean sweep of a three months' contest conducted by the troop, ending last Thursday. The patrol leader, George Harris, won the individual achievement contest with 169 points, Scout William Lacey of the patrol won second with 138, and the patrol as a whole won the interpatrol contest with 469 points. Prizes will be awarded next Thursday. By winning the contest Harris automatically became senior patrol leader, so his place as patrol leader was filled by the appointment of Clarence Duenke to the position.

Bernard Gerdelman's Wolf patrol won a first aid contest last meeting.

Troop 9, Webster, has started outdoor meetings, last Thursday going to a nearby wood-lot and playing "Capture the Flag." Fire building by flint and steel, and by friction, was also practiced. The troop sent Senior Patrol Leader William Wolf to the patrol leaders' camp at Irondale last week-end. A large percentage of the scouts have signed up for the Fathers' and Sons' camp on May 14-16.

West District.

Of the 260 boys at the patrol leaders' camp last week end, the West District furnished an even 100. A West District Scout, Donald Compton of Troop 150, and his father were also the first pair to sign up for the Fathers' and Sons' camp May 14-16.

Registrations of the following West District troops are now overdue: 11, 48, 51, 58, 71, 78, 80, 82, 87, 126, 135, 136, 209, 231. Troop 31 is due to register May 1.

Eighteen Scouts and three assistant Scoutmasters of Troop 5 left the West Presbyterian Church, Maple and Maryville avenues, at 3:30 p. m. a week ago Friday to drive to the patrol leaders' camp at Irondale. They arrived at Irondale at 8:30 p. m., having been delayed by rain, engine trouble and one auto leaving the road. The troop stayed in the Ranger Camp, about half a mile from the main camp, making their beds in the dark. Saturday was spent in an inter-patrol contest, and Sunday in going to church and studying nature. The troop won the first place for having the best decorated table at Sunday dinner. They left at 2:30, arriving at St. Louis at 5:45 p. m.

Troop 9 of the Sutter Avenue Presbyterian Church, held an open meeting last Tuesday night, inviting the parents of the boys to be present. Field Executive S. C. Reaves was present, and spoke on Irondale.

C. A. Johnson won the first prize in a bird house contest conducted by Troop 35 of the Cabanne M. E. Church, last week. Scout Johnson was awarded 100 points toward the George N. Fitzhugh Memorial cup, which will be presented to the leading Scout of the troop in June.

Twenty-one scouts of Richmond Heights Troop 1 last Sunday led a parade of the Sunday school from the old building of the Richmond Heights Presbyterian Church, Silverton and Maryland avenues, around the block to the new building next door. Dedication exercises were held in the afternoon, during which the scouts acted as doorkeepers and ushers.

The Flying Eagle patrol of this troop won an inter-patrol contest, closing last week, by 10 points. As all of the patrols were close in the number of points, it was decided that instead of giving a prize to the winning patrol, to have a "feed" for the whole troop. This was given Friday, Troop Committeeman Marshall Stevens furnishing the ice cream, and Mrs. William Sherman, wife of the scoutmaster, the cakes. An investiture ceremony was held, at which Edward Baker became a first-class scout, and Richard Buchroeder and Leslie Miller, second-class.

Scout Edward Kendall of Troop 63 won a nine weeks' achievement and conduct contest which closed Tuesday evening. Points were given both or passing tests and scout conduct away from meetings. Kendall received 580 points, distancing his nearest competitor, Al Reber, by 80. During the contest Kendall, who just became first-class at the last scout circus, passed 14 merit badges. As a prize he receives a trip to Camp Irondale at the troop's expense.

NORTH DISTRICT.

Senior Patrol Leader Charles Cole and Scribe Isador Miller conducted the last meeting of Troop 206 in the absence of Scoutmaster L. W. Penn. A hike for this week-end was planned at the meeting.

A meeting of the deputy commissioners of the North District was held Monday evening to perfect plans for the annual scoutmasters' camp over Decoration day. Two committees, of which Deputy Commissioners W. B. Crusius and Jack N. Deuel were made chairmen, were appointed to complete arrangements and conduct a campaign for a high attendance. The coming week-end camps and the attendance of the North District summer camp also were discussed. It was decided that an effort would be made to bring the advantages of Camp Irondale before the parents of the boys in North District troops.

Troop 19 of the Blair-Howard School, which had a representation of five boys at the patrol leaders' camp last week, took part in a tree-planting ceremony at its meeting last Sunday. Two weeks ago two of the scouts undertook a 50-mile bicycle trip to obtain the merit badge for cycling.

Troop 47 of the Kingshighway Christian Church held a special parents' meeting Wednesday night. A number of demonstrations were given by the troop members, and talks were made on camps and camping.

Bad weather last week prevented the planned outdoor joint meeting of Troops 52 and 207, at which Indian hikes and contests were to have been held. However, an indoor meeting was held at Troop 52 headquarters. Instructor Andy Piloski give a talk and demonstration on fires and cooking, which was followed by games, under the direction of Senior Patrol Leader Windhorst and Charles Kern.

Troop 92 of the Samuel Cupples School held a special Camp Irondale meeting Wednesday night. Field Executive Jack Wright presented pictures of the camp and spoke of its advantages. Seven members of the troop are already signed up for camp.

G. F. Boeckmann, formerly assistant scoutmaster of Troop 64, has signed up to be scoutmaster for the coming year. Mr. Boeckmann has had years of experience in scout work, and is now taking the scoutmasters' training course. Troop 64 meets at the North Presbyterian Church.

At the regular meeting of Troop 103 at the Elmbank M. E. Church Friday night Scoutmaster Miller gave a demonstration of semaphore signaling and rope splicing. An overnight hike was planned for next month.

Field Executive Jack Wright presented Troop 151 of the Jennings Union Sunday school with a free trip to Camp Irondale next summer for one of their members, in behalf of the local council. This award was given because the troop had subscribed 100 per cent to Boy's Life in the recent round-up. The presentation was made last Monday night at a special meeting, at which the parents were present.

Moving pictures and scout demonstrations will be featured at the annual Parents' night of Troop 191, St. Stephen's Evangelical Church, next Wednesday. Field Executive Jack Wright will speak.

Assistant Field Executive William Fanning spoke on "Things a Boy Is Taught in Scouting" at a meeting of Troop 222's Mothers' Club last Tuesday evening. The mothers voted to study the scout handbook and pass some of the tests with their sons. They are also planning an outing for the troop in June. After the meeting the scouts pinned ribbons on their mothers' coats, indicating the rank to which the boy had advanced since the last meeting of the club.

Six scouts of Troop 3, Grace Hill House, Eleventh and Warren streets, have been appointed to challenge any troop in Region of the North District to contests in semaphore and Morse signaling, first aid and knot tying. Answers to the challenge should be sent to Scoutmaster J. P. Simons, 1307 Benton street.

At the last meeting of the troop, Scribe Eugene Lebermann was promoted to senior patrol leader and Harold Goheen was made scribe.

BOY SCOUTS FROM ILLINOIS MAKE TRIP HERE IN AUTOS

Visit Points of Interest and Will See Zoo Before Departing for Home Today.

Fifty Boy Scouts of Marion, county seat of Williamson County, Illinois, visited St. Louis yesterday, having come in an auto caravan furnished by Marion merchants.

Visits were made to the Mayor's office and to the business section of the city, including a trip to the top of the Railway Exchange building. Last night was spent at Jefferson Barracks, where the local council held a council fire for the visitors. Today the scouts will visit the zoo in Forest Park before returning home.

SUBURBAN SCOUT TROOPS DISTRIBUTE PHONE BOOKS

Nearly 7200 Directories Delivered for Net Income of $358.95 for Participating Scouts.

All of the telephone directories of Webster Groves, Kirkwood, Glendale, Brentwood, Overland and Vinita Park were delivered last week by scouts of Suburban District troops. Nearly 7200 books were distributed in this way, the troops being paid 5 cents for each one. The largest number of books delivered was by Troops 3 and 4, Kirkwood, who, working together, distributed 1583. The fastest comparative delivery time was made by Troop 3, Webster, which distributed 480 books in less than four hours. Troops participating were: Kirkwood 3 and 4, 1583 books; Overland 1 and 2, 1453 books; Brentwood 1, 216; Webster Groves 1, 621; 2, 134; 3, 480; 5, 480; 6, 455; 7, 437; 8, 486; 9, 136; 11, 633. Altogether $358.95 was earned by the troops.

Let This "HORSE SENSE" Sink In

The man who said "money is no object" has either disappeared or is now pushing daisies in a marble orchard. Money is an object. To save it is an art. Big Boy Yahlem will show you how to save money—real MONEY—on the purchase of your car. He doesn't care what knd of a car you want. Fords to Packards and over 200 to pick from. Every one a repaint job that has no equal, and they're shined and tuned up to look and run like a million dollars. Don't let a lot of bunk and mush sway you different. Don't even take our word for it. Look 'em over and see for yourself. When Yahlem says they're right, more than 5000 satisfied customers will also holler it in the same breath. So quit bein' kidded and give yourself a square deal and see these late Touring offerings. To meet every pocketbook. And don't forget the famous terms that only Yahlem can give.

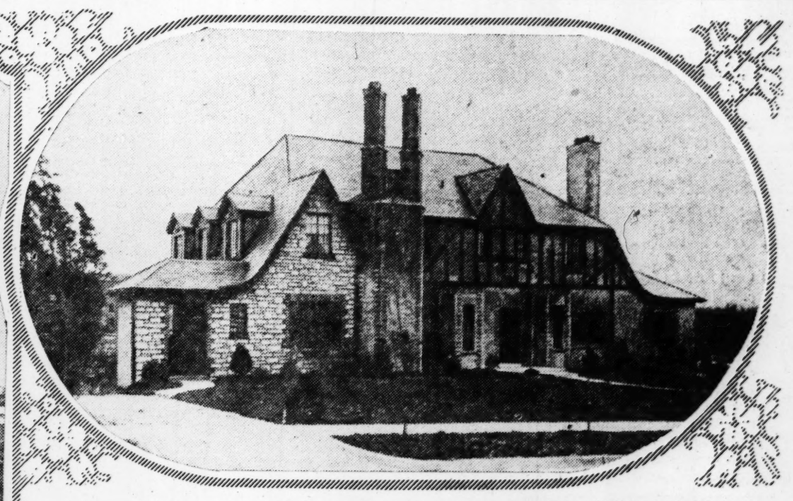
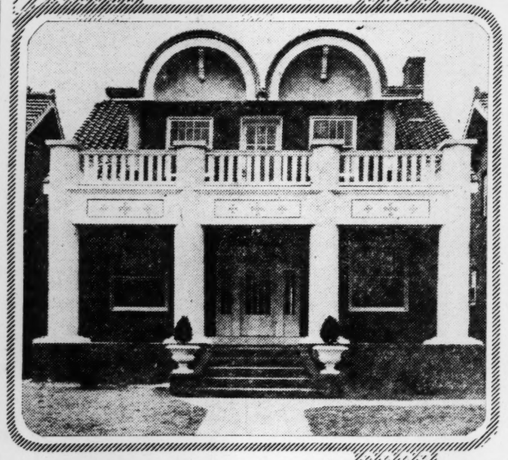
Twin Hotel Apartments, Rectory and New Homes



Duplex residence in Davis Place on Clayton road, purchased by Holbrook Ashton.



The Senate and Congress Apartments being erected by Sam Koplar, Union boulevard and Pershing avenue—Preston J. Bradshaw, architect.

Residence of William Remmert at 2618 Gurney Court, purchased by F. H. Wendell.

Holy Redeemer Rectory, Webster Groves—H. C. Ames, architect.

NEW ADDITION TO COUNTRY CLUB COURT UNDER WAY

emmert Construction Co. Building First Four of 28 Houses to Cost Upward of $500,000.

WILL RANGE FROM $20,000 to $35,000

evelopment on Tract to West and Adjoining Court to Be on Quite a Pretentious Scale.

By Berry Moore.

Plans have been completed for houses of 8, 9 and 10 rooms, to erected on a tract west of and joining Country Club court, and north of Country Club place. new development will form ually an addition to Country court, but will be on a more entious scale.

The houses will be erected by the mmert Construction Co., of ich William Remmert is presi-t, and which has completed 18 ses in Country Club court at a of approximately $500,000, in-ding surface improvements.

Plans for the new houses call an outlay of between $500,000 d $600,000. The houses, with s 80 to 100 by 200 feet, will ge in price from $20,000 to 0,000.

Four Houses Under Way.

The Remmert Construction Co. s already begun construction of ur houses on Polo drive, the first f the 28 to be built. These will sist of 9 and 10 rooms, costing high as $35,000, and susceptible enlargement. One of these will occupied by Remmert, who just sold his home in Gurney rt to F. H. Wendell. Con-cted with glazed tile roofs and lt-up two-car garages and re-te with modern conveniences, y will represent the ultra in ses of this class. There will be baths on each floor and oil rners, as an added feature.

Polo drive extends north from down boulevard through the untry Club place and the area be occupied by the new houses. lo drive enters into the charm this section.

Country Club court, comprises e of the 15 acres under develop-nt by the Remmert concern ad-ning Hanley road. The 18 houses e grouped about a concrete dway, with a central park e. The lots and parkways e provided with shrubs and le trees as a form of embell-ment.

No Vacant Lots Sold.

The company followed the pol-of selling no lots, but con-cted houses in all cases be-e going on the market. Sixteen the houses have been completed are occupied by the owners. same policy will be pursued in new development which will known as the Country Club ad-on.

The success of the Country Club rt was the inspiration for the enterprise, which will com-te the transformation of the 15 es. The two developments will present an investment in excess $1,000,000. The location is a ck and a half north of Wydown levard.

DELUGACH & CO. BUY 26 ACRES HERE

A notable feature of the week as the purchase of 26 acres at the ner of Manchester and Berry ds by Delugach & Company, mphis and Chicago real estate sors, through the Oreon E. & G. Scott Real Estate Co.

The company has opened an office in the Holland building with an organization for the sale of the tract in lots to suit, and is advertising on an extensive scale. A uniform price of $790 has been made for the lots, which are available on terms of $3 down and $3 a week, with taxes paid up to 1927, according to the company's advertisement.

The addition, which is adjacent to Webster Groves, is to be known as Algonquin View, and is one of the comparatively few tracts in this section that have not been put on the market.

The company carries in its advertisement a design of a house that it will finance and build as an additional incentive to lot buyers. The price fixed for the lots involves unusual speculative advantages, aside from the desirability of the property for homesites, according to Delugach.

WILLOW BEACH LOTS TO BE PLACED ON SALE TODAY

Willow Beach will be placed on the market today with a special sale. This is a new subdivision on the Meramec River, only 10 miles from the city limits. It is reached by way of the Gravois and Tesson roads to Meramec Bottom road, thence to the beach.

The tract has 1½ miles of river frontage.

$800,000 APARTMENT PLANNED FOR ENRIGHT AND CLARA

The Henry R. Weisels Co., Inc., announces plans for the erection of an apartment building at the southwest corner of Enright and Clara avenues, eight stories in height. The site was purchased from the Wrape estate, through Chauncey Heath Realty Co.

The new building will have two units of 80 apartments each, and will be connected by a lobby. The building will contain 96 larger apartments, consisting of living room, bedroom, bath, dinette, kitchen and dressing room, and 64 smaller units, which will contain living room, dressing room, bath, dinette and kitchen.

The building will be of reinforced fireproof construction, press brick walls, faced with terra cotta and cut stone trim. It will have electric refrigeration, ventilating system, incinerators, vacuum cleaners and oil-burning boiler. A submerged garage for 120 cars will be provided. Construction will start about July 1. The land, building and equipment will represent an investment of approximately $800,000. The building, which is designed by David R. Harrison, architect, will be owned by the Joynor Realty Co. The cotractor will be the Harrison-Kopman Constructiton Co.

PHARAOH VALLEY TO BE OPENED ABOUT MAY 15

Charles H. Beckers, president of the Valley Park Realty Co., announces that about May 15 the Summer Colony which was created at the suggestion of the Chamber of Commerce and the Mayor of Valley Park, will be opened and be on sale for the general public.

One hundred and eighteen acres along the Meramec is being subdivided into lots 20 feet by 100 feet, and will be sold at popular prices.

At a meeting of the board of directors the name "Pharoah Valley" was chosen. All the streets have Egyptian names and a sphinx head, costing approximately $2000, will be the entrance to Pharoah Valley.

WORK BEING PUSHED ON TWO 16-STORY APARTMENTS ON UNION AND PERSHING

Construction of the Senate and Congress apartments at Union boulevard and Pershing avenue is going forward at top speed. Contracts call for completion by Oct. 1.

The twin structures rising 16 stories will be the loftiest west of Grand boulevard. These buildings are being erected by Koplar Brothers. Preston J. Bradshaw is architect.

Rentals of the Senate apartments will range from $295 to $650 a month, and of the Congress from $95 to $325 a month, with an added charge for furnished suites.

Interest has been augmented in the Senate and Congress with the completion of the Embassy, which was erected by Koplar Brothers.

The exterior of the Senate and Congress will combine a massive dignity with a sense of proportion. The lower three stories will be faced with a light tan matt glazed terra cotta, the upper stories with a light gray brick and terra cotta.

The two structures, while entirely separate, will be connected on the lower floor by an imposing loggia.

The builders have placed on the rear garden and grass plot.

The corner structure, known as the Congress Hotel, will be given over to the kitchenette type of apartment for small families.

The building will contain 154 apartments of four, five, six and seven room efficiency. All above the four-room efficiency size, will have two baths. The rooms will be large. The kitchen alcoves will be equipped with mechanical refrigeration.

Apartments on the 15th and 16th floor will have two and three bedrooms with baths. The living rooms in these apartments are designed in various styles of period architecture. On these floors will be two-story studio apartments.

On the sixteenth floor will be a a ballroom of Georgian design with a marble floor and walls treated with marble pilasters and ornamenatal plaster. The ceiling in this ballroom will have a dome in the center with concealed and colored lights. From the ballroom one may enter an open promenade. The walls of the promenade will be of sufficient height so children may play safely.

The ground floor of the Congress Hotel will be occupied by a large lobby, dining room, banquet room, and kitchen from which meals can be served to tenants in their rooms. Facing the Pershing avenue front on this ground floor will be space for shops.

In the basement will be a garage.

The Senate Hotel, which is south of the Congress, is a structure of the same height, with a spacious lobby entrance on the ground floor treated with Travertine walls, marble floor and a highly ornamental plaster ceiling. This lobby gives access to large apartments on either side.

The upper floors of the Senate each will contain two large apartments of seven and eight rooms. The living room, dining room, sunroom and reception hall are finished in various styles of architecture, with paneled walls and beamed ceilings. The bedrooms will have paneled walls and ornamental cornices. Maids' rooms and baths are provided, each apartment having two baths with tiled floors, built-in shower stalls. The apartments are finished throughout with hardwood floors, except in the kitchens and service portions, where linotile floors are provided.

The fifteenth and sixteenth floors of this building, like those in the Congress, will be occupied by studio apartments with two-story living rooms and additional bedrooms and baths on the upper stories overlooking the living rooms.

NEW SOUTH SIDE BRANCH FOR WAGNER-GRANT-BELL

The Wagner-Grant Bell Realty Co., through E. W. Grant, secretary and treasurer, announces the opening of a new South Side branch in the Melba Theater building at Grand boulevard and Gravois avenue. The new office will have a separate sales organization under the direction of Fray Sparks, who is familiar with the real estate conditions in South St. Louis.

Although the branch will do a general real estate business throughout the city, it expects to devote most of the time to South Side real estate.

With the opening of the new office, the officers of the Wagner-Grant-Bell Realty Co. believe that their company will be in a position to offer real estate service not only in certain sections of the city, but of a national scope as far as St. Louis is concerned. The two offices will work in conjunction with each other.

$500,000 LOAN ON UNION ELECTRIC BLDG.

Made to Paul Brown Investment Co., Owner, by New York Life.

A $500,000 loan, on the Union Electric building at Twelfth boulevard and Locust street has been made to the Paul Brown Investment Co. owner of the building, by the New York Life Insurance Co. The loan, which replaces another loan was negotiated through the Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co., St. Louis loan correspondents of the New York Life. The rate of interest is 5 per cent.

The building is to be remodeled and occupied exclusively by the Union Electric Light & Power Co., which holds it under a 42-year lease. The space where the principal reconstruction is under way is in the part of the building which was formerly the Shubert-Jefferson Theater. This was vacated last November by the Shuberts, after the growth of the electric company's business had made it necessary that it should add to its office and wareroom space.

A total of $800,000 will be expended by the Union Electric Company for alterations. The entire ground floor of the building is to be used for display and sales rooms. The upper floor rooms, created in the space lately occupied by the theater, will be used for offices.

The Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co. reports a satisfactory volume of business. Loans consummated since the first of the year amount to more than $2,100,000. The firm also reports a good sales month, the sales in April having compromised 19 pieces of property, including residences, flats, apartments and vacant property, for a total of $440,989.

ALBERT WENZLICK COMPANY REPORTS BUNGALOW SALES

O. H. Jones, salesmanager of the Albert Wenzlick Real Estate Co., reports the following sales for the week:

1152 Sutter avenue, cottage, to Frank Schiavo for a client; 2166 Esther avenue, bungalow, for Harry C. Vollmar to Charles H. Claywell; 6211 West Park, bungalow, to W. H. Hahn for P. Edward Schanaur; 1971 Semple avenue, single flat, to A. M. Keltz for a client of the Haffner Real Estate Co.; 5163 Esther avenue, bungalow, to T. D. Liles for H. C. Vollmar; 1000 to 1014 Walnut street and 105 South Tenth street, business and tenement property, to William Krual for a client of the Frank J. Frick Real Estate Co.; 2617 Indiana avenue, single flat, for H. F. Hronicek to a client of Doerflinger Realty Co.

HOME OF LATE J. J. BUTLER SOLD TO DODSON SCHOOL

The residence at 3711 West Pine boulevard, formerly the home of the late James J. Butler, theater proprietor and one time Congressman, has been sold to Hugh Burns for the Dodson School, which is now occupying the property. The sale was made by the Charles J. Flynn Real Estate Co. Burns, the purchaser, is a client of H. W. Fulenwider.

WARM WEATHER HELPS SALES AT PAGEWOOD

The Ben Altheimer & Brother Real Estate Co. reports renewed interest in Pagewood with the advent of warm weather. An encouraging number of lots were sold during the week and plans for many new houses were disclosed.

While sale of the property has been retarded by adverse weather conditions, interest on the part of both home builders and investors has been notably manifest. Notwithstanding the fact that the addition has been on the market only a comparatively short time, approximately half of it has been sold.

CHALFONTE APARTMENTS SOLD FOR $200,000

Perles & Stone, in the Central National Bank Building, announce the sale of the Chalfonte apartments at 5568 Pershing avenue, for Claude E. Vrooman at a price of $200,000, to Edwin Edelman.

The Chalfonte is a recently constructed fireproof building containing 24 efficiency apartments. This building is leased throughout, the rental being about $28,000 a year.

FAMOUS BARR CO. BUYS BUS TERMINAL SITE

The Famous-Barr Co. has purchased a quarter of a block, with buildings, at the southwest corner of Sirth and Walnut streets, which gives it ownership of three-quarters of this block, Martin & Breitt handled the transaction. The property has 115 feet on Sixth street.

The Famous-Barr Co. already owned the west half of this block, which is improved with a modern three-story garage. For the last three years this garage has been used jointly by the department store's customers and the bus lines entering St. Louis. Because of the demands on this garage, the Famous-Barr Co. decided to purchase the property at Sixth and Walnut streets for conversion into a modern bus line terminal for 32 bus lines now entering St. Louis.

The building will contain a waiting room and will have all modern concessions to accommodate the customers of the bus lines.

This property is bounded by Sixth and Seventh streets, Walnut and Elm streets. It was sold for the account of the Elare Realty Co.

GRADING WORK STARTS IN CARONDELET PARK TERRACE

The Christian Brinkop Real Estate Co. announces that the Smith-Cunliff Co. has started grading in Carondelet Park Terrace, a subdivision on the south side of Loughborough avenue, at the west end of Carondelet Park. All improvements, including streets, sewers, gas, water, electricity and sidewalks, will be completed in about 90 days.

During the first week that the subdivision was on the market 16 lots were sold. There are 65 lots remaining. Bungalows will be constructed.

An Explanation to Readers and Advertisers

Owing to an unprecedented increase in the number of Real Estate and "Want" advertisements, it was necessary for the Post-Dispatch today to omit several columns of real estate news.

$100.00 IN CASH FOR A NAME

E. H. Smith Realty Co. will pay this amount in a contest now beginning and closing May 13th, 1926, for a new and appropriate name for the property near the Meramec River at Crescent, Deicke, St. Louis County, recently obtained by the Company for development. Use your imagination when you visit the spot and look it over with a view of offering a suitable name. Take into consideration the river, the picturesque hills, the location and the possibilities for a summer colony, in suggesting a name. Very attractive cottages will be built, a number of which are under construction.

Only one name can be accepted, which will win the capital prize, but the next four in line will receive other prizes in the order in which they are accepted.

JUDGES

Judges in the contest will be E. H. Smith, J. A. Goodwin, J. Vangelos, W. T. Mars.

RULES OF CONTEST

Each contestant may suggest only one name. He must visit the property and describe same. He may give the reasons that convince him that it is an appropriate selection and offer suggestions for the development of the property, although this is not necessary. If more than one suggest the name selected, then each of such contestants shall get $100. Mail name offered to Contest Manager, E. H. Smith Realty Co., 6825 Delmar Av. No member or employe of this firm or their families may participate.

Property may be reached by way of Valley Park, then over the Antire road to Lewis road at Crescent, or on the Priest R. R. to Crescent.

BELLERIVE ACRES

2 Most Attractive Homes Below Cost

There are very few unsold lots in this most attractive subdivision. This property is located on the Natural Bridge Road and overlooks the beautiful Bellerive Club and golf links; all improvements are made. These most desirable lots are from 90 feet to 250 feet frontage by 200 feet to 400 feet deep, some heavily wooded, and are priced from $3000 to $6000. Come out this afternoon.

Sunset Terrace

Is on the Market

This answers the many calls and questions of intelligent and conservative buyers.

For those who are not acquainted with the queen of high-class subdivisions in St. Louis County—

Sunset Terrace is located on the Denny Road and Robyn Avenue, which is practically adjoining Sunset Hill Country Club on the north or two miles south of Kirkwood on the Denny Road.

You may take your choice of level or rolling locations with large native trees. Practically all of the property is overlooking its permanent neighbor, Sunset Inn. This subdivision is laid out in one to seven acre tracts and can be divided, as restrictions are sensible.

Prices $10.00 per foot and up, or can be bought on acreage basis.

Water, electricity and hard macadam roads are being installed.

$500.00 to $2,500,000.00

For thirty-seven years we have been lending money on property in this vicinity.

We have learned the business. We know how much we can lend safely—the proper rate of interest—the fees a borrower ought to pay and where to find the investor who will buy the mortgage.

We do not regard the lending of money as a favor to the borrower, but as a business transaction of advantage to both parties.

We shall be glad to have your application if you wish to borrow money in any sum on first mortgage real estate in St. Louis City or County.

The Wonderful Stories of "OZ"

by L. Frank Baum

The Ork

TROT WATCHED Cap'n Bill cast the fish line a second time, and a third. She decided that either there were no fishes in the pool or they would not bite the crab bait. But Cap'n Bill was an old fisherman and not easily discouraged. When the crab got away he put another on the hook. When the crabs were all gone he climbed up the rocks and found some more.

Meantime Trot tired of watching him and lay down upon the sands, where she fell fast asleep. During the next two hours her clothing dried completely, as did that of the old sailor. They were both so used to salt water that there was no danger of taking cold.

Finally the little girl was awakened by a splash beside her and a grunt of satisfaction from Cap'n Bill. She opened her eyes to find that the Cap'n had landed a silver-scaled fish weighing about two pounds. This cheered her considerably and she hurried to scrape together a heap of seaweed, while Cap'n Bill cut up the fish with his jackknife and got it ready for cooking.

They had cooked the fish with seaweed before. Cap'n Bill wrapped his fish in some of the weed and dipped it in the water to dampen it. Then he lighted a fire and set fire to Trot's heap, which speedily burned down to a glowing bed of ashes. Then they laid the wrapped fish on the ashes, covered it with more seaweed, and allowed this to catch fire and burn to embers. After feeding the fire with seaweed for some time, the sailor finally decided that their supper was ready, so he scattered the ashes and drew out the bits of fish, still encased in their smoking wrappings. When these wrappings were removed, the fish was found thoroughly cooked, and both Trot and Cap'n Bill ate of it freely. It had a slight flavor of seaweed and would have been better with a sprinkling of salt.

The soft glow which until now had lighted the cavern, began to grow dim, but there was a great quantity of seaweed in the place, so after they had eaten their fish they kept the fire alive for a time by giving it a handful of fuel now and then.

From an inner pocket the sailor drew a small flask of battered metal and, unscrewing the cap, handed it to Trot. She took but one swallow of the water, although she wanted more, and she noticed that Cap'n Bill merely wet his lips with it.

"S'pose," said she, staring at the glowing seaweed fire and speaking slowly, "that we can catch all the fish we need; how 'bout the drinking water, Cap'n?"

He moved uneasily but did not reply. Both of them were thinking about the dark blue hole, but while Trot had little fear of it, the old man could not overcome his dislike to enter the place. He knew that Trot was right, though. To remain in the cavern, where they now were, could only result in slow but sure death.

It was night time up on the earth's surface, so the little girl became drowsy and soon fell asleep. After a time the old sailor slumbered on the sands beside her. It was very still and nothing disturbed them for hours. When at last they awoke the cavern was light again.

They had divided one of the biscuits and were munching it for breakfast when they were startled by a sudden splash in the pool. Looking toward it the saw emerging from the water the most curious creature either of them had ever beheld. It wasn't a fish, Trot decided, nor was it a beast. It had wings, though, and queer wings they were; shaped like an inverted chopping-bowl and covered with tough skin instead of feathers. It had four legs—much like the legs of a stork, only double the number—and its head was shaped a good deal like that of a poll parrot, with a beak that curved downward in front and upward at the edges, and was half bill and half mouth. But to call it a bird was out of the question, because it had no feathers whatever, except a crest of wavy plumes of a scarlet color on the very top of its head. The strange creature must have weighed as much as Cap'n Bill, and as it floundered and struggled to get out of the water to the sandy beach it was so big and unusual that both Trot and her companion stared at it in wonder—in wonder that was not unmixed with fear.

The eyes that regarded them, as the creature stood dripping before them, were bright and mild in expression, and the queer addition to their party made no attempt to attack them and seemed quite as surprised by the meeting as they were.

"I wonder," whispered Trot, "what it is?"

"Who, me?" exclaimed the creature in a shrill, high-pitched voice. "Why, I'm an Ork."

"Oh!" said the girl. "But what is an Ork?"

"I am," he repeated, a little proudly, as he shook the water from his funny wings; "and if ever an Ork was glad to be out of the water and on dry land again, you can be mighty sure that I'm that especial, individual Ork!"

"Have you been in the water long?" inquired Cap'n Bill, thinking it only polite to show an interest in the strange creature.

"Why, this last ducking was about ten minutes, I believe, and that's about nine minutes and sixty seconds too long for comfort," was the reply. "But last night I was in an awful pickle, I assure you. The whirlpool caught me, and—"

"Oh, were you in the whirlpool, too?" asked Trot, eagerly.

He gave her a glance that was somewhat reproachful.

"I believe I was mentioning the fact, young lady, when your desire to talk interrupted me," said the Ork. "I am not usually careless in my actions, but that whirlpool was so busy yesterday that I thought I'd see what mischief it was up to. So I flew a little too near it and the suction of the air drew me down into the depths of the ocean. Water and I are natural enemies, and it would have conquered me this time had not a bevy of pretty mermaids come to my assistance and dragged me away from the whirling water and far up into a cavern, where they deserted me."

"Why, that's about the same thing that happened to us," cried Trot. "Was your cavern like this one?"

"I haven't examined this one yet," answered the

DIRECTIONS

Cut along border and fold in half along dotted lines (.....). Starting with picture No. 1, by making one fold from the bottom up, where the dotted lines guides show, you can make a new picture. Make another fold from the bottom up and a third picture appears. Then return to No. 1 and fold from the top down, in the same manner, which will give you two more pictures. Last, returning to picture No. 1, make one fold from the bottom and one fold from the top and you will get a surprise.

Ork; "but if they happen to be alike, I shudder at our fate, for the other one was a prison, with no outlet except by means of the water. I stayed there all night, however, and this morning I plunged into the pool, as far down as I could go, and then swam as hard and as far as I could. The rocks scraped my back, now and then, and I barely escaped the clutches of an ugly sea monster; but by and by I came to the surface to catch my breath, and found myself here. That's the whole story, and as I see you have something to eat, I entreat you to give me a share of it. The truth is, I'm half starved."

With these words the Ork squatted down beside them. Very reluctantly Cap'n Bill drew another biscuit from his pocket and held it out. The Ork promptly seized it in one of its front claws and began to nibble the biscuit in much the same manner a parrot would have done.

"We haven't much grub," said the sailor-man, "but we're willin' to share it with a comrade in distress."

"That's right," returned the Ork, cocking its head sidewise in a cheerful manner, and then for a few minutes there was silence while they all ate of the biscuits. After a while Trot said:

"I've never seen or heard of an Ork before. Are there many of you?"

"We are rather few and exclusive, I believe," was the reply. "In the country where I was born we are the absolute rulers of all living things, from ants to elephants."

"What country is that?" asked Cap'n Bill.

"Orkland."

"Where does it lie?"

"I don't know exactly. You see, I have a restless nature, for some reason, while all the rest of my race are quiet and contented Orks and seldom stray far from home. From childhood days I loved to fly long distances away, although father warned me that I would get into trouble by doing.

"'It's a big world, Flipper, my son,' he would say, 'and I've heard that in parts of it live two-legged creatures called Men, who war upon other living things and would have little mercy for even an Ork.'"

Betty picked up her basket of lunch and started out the door with a frown on her face.

"Well, of all things," laughed a merry voice, and there on the step sat a wee little elfin smiling at her. "What's the trouble on this lovely day, I'd like to know?"

"Oh, I never have anything nice for my lunch," replied Betty. "All the other girls have nice lunches with cakes and candy and everything."

The wee elfin shook his head sadly.

ered over the vineyard were crowds of little d girls each with a basket, laughing and chatting, singing and telling stories as they filled their baskets with the juicy grapes.

Betty watched them standing by the side of a little black-eyed girl just about her own size.

"Do you like to gather grapes?" she asked the wee French girl. "Do you live near here?"

"Just far enough away, that I must bring my lunch each day," replied the little French girl. "That just makes me think, it's lunch time now, will you join me, you and Gocomeback?"

This pleased Betty very much, so she and Gocomeback sat down among the grape vines beside the little girl and waited for her to open her lunch basket. Betty's eyes almost popped out of her head when she saw what the little girl had to eat, a great big loaf of the coarsest, blackest bread she had ever seen.

She tasted it but couldn't eat it, it was so heavy and bitter.

"I'm sorry you don't like it," said the little French girl. "I hardly know what white bread is. My people are not fortunate enough to have much. Now some folks have meat on Sundays, but if we get meat once a year we are doing well. I suppose you have it all the time?"

Betty opened up her lunch basket and shared her dainty lunch with her little French cousin and they laughed and chatted until the little girl had to go to work again. Then Gocomeback and Betty hurried back to America.

"I'm settled," Betty laughed. "I'll never complain about my lunches again."

After that when her lunch didn't just suit her, Betty always thought about the day she had lunch with the little French girl.

Washakie, the One Good Indian

By FRANK A. SECORD

OLD CHIEF WASHAKIE of the Shoshones enjoyed the distinction, during his long and useful life, of being the greatest original American. Washakie died not so many years ago at his old home on the reservation in Northern Wyoming.

From boyhood and up to his death this Indian was never hostile or unfriendly in any way towards the whites—something that cannot be said of any other Indian chief in Western history. In his younger days Washakie was a magnificent specimen of manhood, always kind and gentle, but firm and persistent. He was never known to break his word.

Chief Washakie was a great friend of Gen. John C. Fremont and other noted pathfinders; but history will never be able to chronicle the hundreds of great, unselfish deeds of this friend of the white man.

In the early days, at a time when the Shoshones as a tribe were disposed to war against the whites, by almost superhuman efforts Washakie won the greater portion of his tribe over to peace and, without the aid of troops, conducted them to Ft. Bridger, Wyo. Those who remained hostile joined the wicked Bannocks and, after a long struggle, were almost wiped out by the white troops.

Chief Washakie sent out a grim warning in these words to the rebel Indians:

"Washakie loves his people. He will take them home and promises them protection. Washakie's tongue does not lie. Those who return not with Washakie will never return."

And he kept his word. One of his own sons remained out with the rebels and was slain for his refusal to come in.

After that time the very name of the Shoshone chief struck terror to Indians of all tribes when they were bent upon mischief. It is related that during the early days of Western civilization's struggle, when it meant nothing less than death for a small party of whites to be overtaken by unfriendly Indians, Chief Washakie could, single-handed, conduct through the very camps of the enemy, one white man or a dozen without being molested.

Years ago Gen. Lander, a great admirer of Washakie, sent the Indian a magnificent horse and saddle. The old chief received the gift in silence, and, after a hasty examination of the prize, turned upon his heel and slowly entered the agency building. Soon after he was seen standing at a window, looking out upon the caps of the distant mountains, while he thrummed nervously upon a pane. Those who knew him best were filled with wonder at his strange conduct, he having uttered no word.

Twilight came. Still the tall, splendid form of the old chief was seen at the window, while his gaze remained riveted upon the peaks of the range, now bathed in a glory of sunset color.

"What does Washakie say to the white father for the fine pony and saddle?" the agent at the reservation inquired.

No reply.

"Has Washakie forgotten his friend? Has he no thanks for the gift?" again spoke the agent.

The old Indian turned now to answer, and his eyes were filled with tears. "Tell the white father," slowly murmured the chief, "that Washakie never forgets. Tell him that when the Frenchman gives thanks he has plenty of tongue but no heart. When Washakie gives thanks he has plenty heart but no tongue."

And then he sat down and wept.

From Montana to Kansas, from Utah to Nebraska, there is scarcely a district that Washakie's feet did not tread in service for the whites. He fought more than 150 battles against hostile tribes.

Chief Washakie was a great favorite of President Grant.

Another story of the Shoshone chief which history does not record generally is as follows:

During Gen. Fremont's journey across the plains in the early days, Washakie looked after the safety of the expedition for many weeks. While he was absent from his people with Gen. Fremont, runners brought the information that several young men of the tribe were on the warpath and refused to come back. Washakie sent back to the younger men a number of bullets in a buckskin pouch. The number of bullets was equal to the number of young men. They did not tarry long on the warpath after receiving the tokens which meant that Washakie would send them each a bullet in another way.

His gaze remained riveted among the peaks of the range, now bathed in the glory of sunset color.

One morning when the Fremont party was camped in the Jackson Hole country in Wyoming, news was received that Flying Elk, a very restless and wicked Indian, was planning an attack upon the party and an ambush was feared. However, Washakie only smiled at Gen. Fremont's fears and told this story:

"Once, many years ago, some Indians from far to the east became lost in the big canyons of the Colorado River, at a spot where the stream ran very swift and powerful over a bed strewn with boulders and many smaller jagged rocks. The river made much noise as it ran rushing on to the sea. The wisest man among the Indians—a man of the medicine lodges—listened a long time to the noise made by the water and finally, gathering his people around him, announced that the water told, in its babble, of a land of plenty somewhere on its course.

"It was decided to follow the stream. The medicine man was to listen to the song it sang and thus find out more about the land of plenty.

"Many days the wanderers traveled through awful deserts where nothing but cactus grew. Starvation was at the heels of the lost Indians, like a great wolf seeking to devour them.

"The river grew wider and wider still, until it was found that the party was approaching its mouth.

"Louder grew the voice of the stream as it flowed, but still there was nothing but barren land and stretches of cactus and weeds on every side.

"At last the people came to the sea. There, even to where the salt and fresh waters met, the Colorado kept up its babble.

"Discouraged and disgusted, the Indians retraced their steps, the medicine man announcing that the tale of plenty which the river told was one of a country in the other direction.

"Well, for days and days, and weeks and weeks, the travelers journeyed, living upon only fish. They grew weak and yet more weary. Some held a council and decided to tell the medicine man, who was the cause of all their ills, that unless he soon led them out of the desert country to a land where food could be found, they would put him to death. The matter became very serious, but the wise man smiled and said: 'Wait. I cannot mistake the story of the swift water!'

The Biggest Sum Ever Awarded in Such a Suit in Ohio Was Given Mrs. W. Herbert Oskamp the Other Day When She Won Her Case Against the Parents of Her Husband. It Is an Unusual Story of a Family Feud That This Court Action Reveals.

By HARRY R. BURKE
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

CINCINNATI.—"They are charged," said the Court, "with having killed the love of a man for his wife; with having destroyed a home; with having broken asunder the holy communion of a man and his wife. There are few offenses greater than this. . . . One hundred thousand dollars is none too much to punish their infamy and to compensate this woman—widowed before her husband's death—for the heartaches, the mental torture and the poverty of the past three years and the years to come."—From the decision of Judge Robert S. Marx in denying a new trial to defendants in the suit of Louise G. Oskamp vs. W. S. P. Oskamp, Adele Werk Oskamp, Adele Oskamp Ryan and Edward Gordon Oskamp, her father-in-law, mother-in-law, sister-in-law and brother-in-law, who had conspired, she charged, to alienate the affections of her dying husband, W. Herbert Oskamp.

But $100,000 was too much, the Court of Appeals here held at its March session this year, and because there was little proof of the part of Adele Oskamp Ryan in what Judge Marx termed a plot, the verdict was reduced to $75,000, still the largest ever tendered in the State of Ohio in such a suit.

And on April 5 William S. P. Oskamp and his co-defendants paid over to the cast-out daughter-in-law $75,000 with interest—$79,500 in all—in settlement for her claim. The Oskamp family troubles, which had kept the courts of Cincinnati in a turmoil for four years, were at an end.

* * * * * *

The girls of her set envied Louise Grimm when she married Herbert Oskamp on January 15, 1913. "Lucky girl," they said. The god of love had smiled on her. Oskamp's father was wealthy—immensely so—directing head of several corporations into which his sons and nephews had been taken to learn and carry on the business. William S. P. Oskamp, the father, had made his way from small beginnings in the jewelry business. Now he possessed a fine home in the exclusive district of Westwood. He was a patron of the arts. Private concerts by notable artists were familiar entertainments for his guests. On the other hand, there were in Cincinnati, as monuments to his boundless energy, the Oskamp-Nolting Company, manufacturing jewelers, the Oskamp Jewelry Company, retail jewelers and importers, the Oskamp Ignition Company, a factor in the automobile trade, and the Werk Realty Company. The old man's will was indomitable. He had a keen, shrewd business sense. He was efficient and methodical . . . so methodical that under his guidance the whole family kept copies of the family correspondence. Today W. S. P. Oskamp has retired from active direction of his companies' affairs. But he has not retired from active direction of his family. The man is a patriarch, after a fashion—whose wish and word are law.

And Herbert, at his marriage, was secretary-treasurer of the Oskamp Jewelry Company. A fine, upstanding young man, and very much in love.

THERE were happy days of anticipation. Friends of the Oskamps showered the young bride-elect with presents. Plate services, silver and gold. The Grimm home was like a jeweler's window before the wedding. The bride-to-be could never guess that she must go to court to win possession of those gifts before the end.

And so they were married. . . . Herbert, while in his father's employ, had no great sum to live on. His salary was small. It may have been that the elder Oskamp sought to test out his son's mettle. So the young folks moved into a little bungalow at 118 West McMillan street, Cincinnati, after their honeymoon. Louise kept house and had no maid. She made her own dresses. She even made her husband's shirts. But they were happy. Who wouldn't be happy at 21 with a home and lots of love?

And, by their economies, they were getting ahead. They paid $1000 down on a little two family house on Burnett avenue and moved there, renting the second flat to Mrs. Eleanor Basch, a sister of Louise Oskamp. And they were very happy.

Later, after the father had presented the loving young folks with a handsome $20,000 home across from his own, at 2358 Harrison avenue, in the exclusive district of Westwood, Herbert was wont to say: "The mistake of my life was when I moved from our happy little home."

"Mrs. Oskamp would sit in the swing on the porch," said Morris Levy, a neighbor, testifying at the trial of the alienation suit, "and Mr. Oskamp would sit at her feet, playing a ukulele and singing to her, and his head would be in her lap."

One witness told the Court that Herbert Oskamp's devotion made it "tough on as other husbands."

Then came the day when Herbert's father gave them their handsome new home. "I certainly hate to leave this little flat," Herbert had said as the truck drove off with their belongings.

Yet life in the new home was happy. The elder Oskamp placed an automobile at his daughter-in-law's disposal. The young folks continued happy. Then Herbert Oskamp became ill. He was paralyzed. At Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, physicians told him he would never recover. There began a change in the Oskamp family's relation to their daughter Louise.

"They appear to have been actuated," said Judge Marx in reviewing the case, "by a desire not only to deprive Louise of her husband but of her inheritance in case of his death. . . . There can be no doubt that his affections have been alienated. There is nothing in her behavior before or during marriage to explain her husband's hatred for Louise."

Their father has taken other Oskamp children to Europe for special treatment when they were ill. He, himself, has said that Herbert, facing the knowledge of death, appealed to him. "I have only you as the one hope of my life," Herbert told him, his father testified. "You took my mother and brothers to Europe to cure them. For God's sake take me. If I have to live another year like I've been living I'll end it all."

AND so it was arranged that Herbert should go to Germany for treatment by specialists. Louise wanted to go, too. "Herbert told me his father didn't want any women along," testified Bernard Lambers, a printer, at the trial. The wife pleaded. She would pay her own expenses. The elder Oskamp was obdurate. Unmoved.

On April 15, 1922, after tender farewells at the train, the husband left. But before his going Louise Oskamp had spoken her suspicions:

"If anything happens to you," she had said, "your family will take every dollar from me."

Herbert made a will, leaving everything to his wife. He had some stock kept with the will in his safety deposit box at the Oskamp Jewelry Company. He had arranged that his wife was to draw $50 a week to maintain herself while he was in Europe.

"Well, if you feel that way about it," he had said in answer, she testified, "why don't you go down to the safety deposit box and see how things are yourself?"

Some days later Louise did. She found the will was missing, and the stock, also which he had held in the Oskamp-Nolting Company. And so she, fearful, took the other papers there and removed them elsewhere for safe-keeping.

EVIDENTLY what she had done was learned by her husband's brother, Gordon. He wrote to his father thus, according to the letter read in court: "I'll see Louise in the morning and get the keys to the store or break her neck. Herbert should have had more sense than to give them to her."

Gordon had a conversation with Louise later, when she called to get her allowance. "Gordon said there was nothing coming to Louise," her sister, Mrs. Basch, who had been present, testified, "because Herbert was out of the business." The wife was told to see the bookkeeper, who informed her that Herbert's father, W. S. P. Oskamp, had written from Europe ordering that payments to her cease. Louise appealed to Gordon.

"Get out of here or I will break your neck."

"Don't you dare touch me."

"Well, you get out of here or I'll break your neck and throw you down the stairs."

That was the conversation between them, as Mrs. Basch reported it in court.

Louise had written her husband when she took the things from his safety deposit box.

"GORDON is the cause of the present trouble," she said. ". . . I went down to the store to get the things which belonged to me, and I removed to a safe place things that belong to you, to be given to you on your return. When I saw the will was gone which you had made out to me and your stock in the Oskamp-Nolting Company and your third interest in Talcott I only did what was right to protect you until you come home. . . .

"There is something rotten somewhere and I am getting a black eye for it. I am heart-broken over this cruel treatment, which I do not deserve. You know in your heart I am good and true and I am no thief and liar. I am simply being crucified."

And again she wrote: "I wish you were here to help me fight these cowards who are starving my life out. . . . Are you going to let me be treated like this—I, the woman you love and who loves you? I am being deceived by somebody and I want you to find out who that somebody is. I am in great need of your comfort and support."

And Herbert's answer, as read in court, was this:

"My father promptly informed me of your looting my box, but kept all information from me, as he did news of sickness or troubles of any kind, for fear it would take away my chance of getting well. Why did you go to that box? . . . This is a violation of confidence and honesty and a disgrace to my father, my brothers and the firm. Our married life has been a failure, so, therefore, let's live the rest of our lives in peace and let each other carry out their own plans for the future."

That wasn't like the Herbert Oskamp she had married. For years, when they were apart he had written her. The Court heard those letters read:

"The little girl who has made my life worth living, my sweetheart today, tomorrow and forever."

Thus the tone of the letters, this last being written five months before Herbert Oskamp left for Europe. Even from across the water he had written her tenderly.

But there was worse to follow the letter. The newspapers of Cincinnati carried an announcement that Herbert Oskamp would no longer be responsible for his wife's debts.

THE CHECK, with principal and part interest

Detectives were employed by the Werk Realty Company, of which W. S. P. Oskamp was president, to watch the wife. That was a fruitless task. In what the detectives found "there is not one scintilla of evidence," the Court said, "to cast the slightest blemish or suspicion upon the good character, the wifely loyalty, faithfulness and devotion" of Louise Oskamp. It found, too, that the evidence showed letters from Louise had been kept from her husband, and that she was permitted to get but few from him.

WHAT was the purpose? Judge Marx's decision more than hints. It points out that after the doctors at Baltimore had pronounced Herbert incurable he had been persuaded to transfer his Oskamp-Nolting stock so that it ultimately reached his father, that his preferred stock in the Oskamp company had been transferred to the family two days before he sailed for Europe; that the family had kept a strict account of every cent it spent on Herbert, "even to the postage on his letters"—seemingly, the Court suggests, with a view to presenting a bill for everything against his estate in case he died.

When Herbert came back from Europe in October, 1923, he and his father went across to his home and found it locked. Robert Kuehling, the Oskamp chauffeur, told the Court what followed: "They went to get some clothes," he said. "William Oskamp called to me and asked me to help them. We found the house was locked and Herbert Oskamp laughed at this. They wanted to break a window and get in. Instead, I showed them how a window could be opened without breaking it. We got in a cellar window. The kitchen door was locked. They told me to break it, and I lunged against it and it gave way."

That was the homecoming. After getting his clothes Herbert returned to his father's house. It was from that visit his wife first knew that he was home. She went across to see him. "The elder Mrs. Oskamp," Louise testified, "called me a liar and a thief and ordered me from her home."

MRS. W. HERBERT OSKAMP, recipient of the $75,000.

W. HERBERT OSKAMP, the husband.

She saw him on the street, accompanied by a nurse. She spoke to him and was repuffed. There was a threat to call an officer.

October 26 was Herbert Oskamp's birthday. His wife determined to see him by a last effort. Repulsed at the front door, she stole about the house and entered at the rear, finally reaching her husband's room.

"He stretched out his arms the minute he saw me," she testified, "crying: 'Oh, Baby, how did you get in here?'" They kissed and she believed the way was paved to reconciliation, but her husband's father knocked upon the door, which she had locked, and then broke it in.

Followed a scene. Louise was ordered out of the house and her husband's father and mother speeded her going. "They kicked me on my limbs and struck me about the shoulders," she testified, and physicians and Judge Stanley Roettinger, who had seen her bruises, corroborated her testimony. She was in a physician's care from a nervous breakdown afterward.

STILL she did not ask divorce. Louise Grimm Oskamp was a Catholic and she still loved her husband. But she sought to estop his parents' interference and she brought suit for $100,000 against the father, mother, brother and sister of her husband, for alienation of Herbert's affections.

Herbert himself filed suit for divorce. Not until later did she submit a cross-bill, having first to reckon with her church.

Her troubles were not over yet. While absent from her home, according to witnesses, she was locked out of it. She got a policeman to raise the window and entered. Water, gas and electricity had been shut off in her absence. She got an injunction to restrain interference with her occupancy of the house her father-in-law had given her husband and her.

Alimony of $150 a month had been decreed the wife when the husband asked divorce. Herbert allowed it to fall into arrears. In need of money, the wife sought court relief. Herbert was bedfast. He had nothing, his attorneys represented. Later, though, he sold some stocks and paid her. His divorce case dragged because he could not come to court, physicians said.

At last the suit against his father, mother, brother and sister was called. There were dramatic climaxes. The wife broke down and was led weeping from the room when witnesses told of her struggles in the early days and of how her husband had loved her. Herbert Oskamp was brought into court in a wheel chair, in bathrobe and pajamas.

"I got along with every woman I ever met except this one," he said. He told the Court that his affections began to wane six months after his marriage. He said he had not meant the loving letters he had written her through nine years of their marriage. He declared that when his wife entered the safety deposit vault he was through with her.

He told the Court that Louise was extravagant; that she liked night life; that she had upon occasion taken too much liquor and made a scene; that she had a bad temper and had threatened to kill him; that she always "had a chip on her shoulder." He spoke of her as a "dirty dog"; and when his lawyer questioned him, asking if he had stretched his arms out to her when she entered his father's home upon his birthday, he cried out in court:

"She knows that is a dirty lie. If God strikes her dead this minute, she knows that is a lie."

Others testified, too. A maid told the Court she once had seen Mrs. Oskamp holding the hand of a man who visited their home; that once the wife conveyed some liquor from the home; that a male friend honked his automobile horn when he passed her house while her husband was in Europe.

But the jury listened—six men and a woman—to the testimony in the court and brought in a decree of $100,000 damages.

HERBERT OSKAMP'S appearance in court as a witness for his father made it clear that he could come as a witness for himself. The divorce action was tried. The wife was given a half interest in the home his father had given them, as alimony.

And then the Oskamps asked for a new trial of the alienation suit, declaring that the jury showed passion and prejudice.

"The jury," said Judge Marx, "had ample evidence upon which to find the defendants had acted in bad faith and from malicious motives. . . .

"The infatuation between Herbert Oskamp and his wife was characterized by a mature pure love which continued from the marriage altar all through their married life. She was devoted, loyal, economical, loving. She did substantially all the housework and cooking. She nursed Herbert through contagious and serious illness. She gave her youth, her charm, her life without stint to the husband she loved.

"The jury is also entitled to consider the humiliation and shame she has undergone because of unjust imputations against her character . . . there is not one scintilla of evidence to cast the slightest blemish or suspicion against her good character, wifely loyalty, faithfulness or devotion."

Louise Oskamp had been vindicated entirely. Yet the Court of Appeals could not find that the sister-in-law had a major part in the effort to rob her of her husband's love. It upheld the verdict in all else. It ordered that it be reduced by one-fourth or that the case be tried again. Louise Oskamp wanted no more litigation.

And so, on April 5, from William S. P. Oskamp, his wife and son, there came a check. Louise Oskamp has money now, but still is widowed of her husband.

MUSIC WEEK IS HERE

We'll Have Harmony If We Have to Fight For It

By W. A. BYRNES

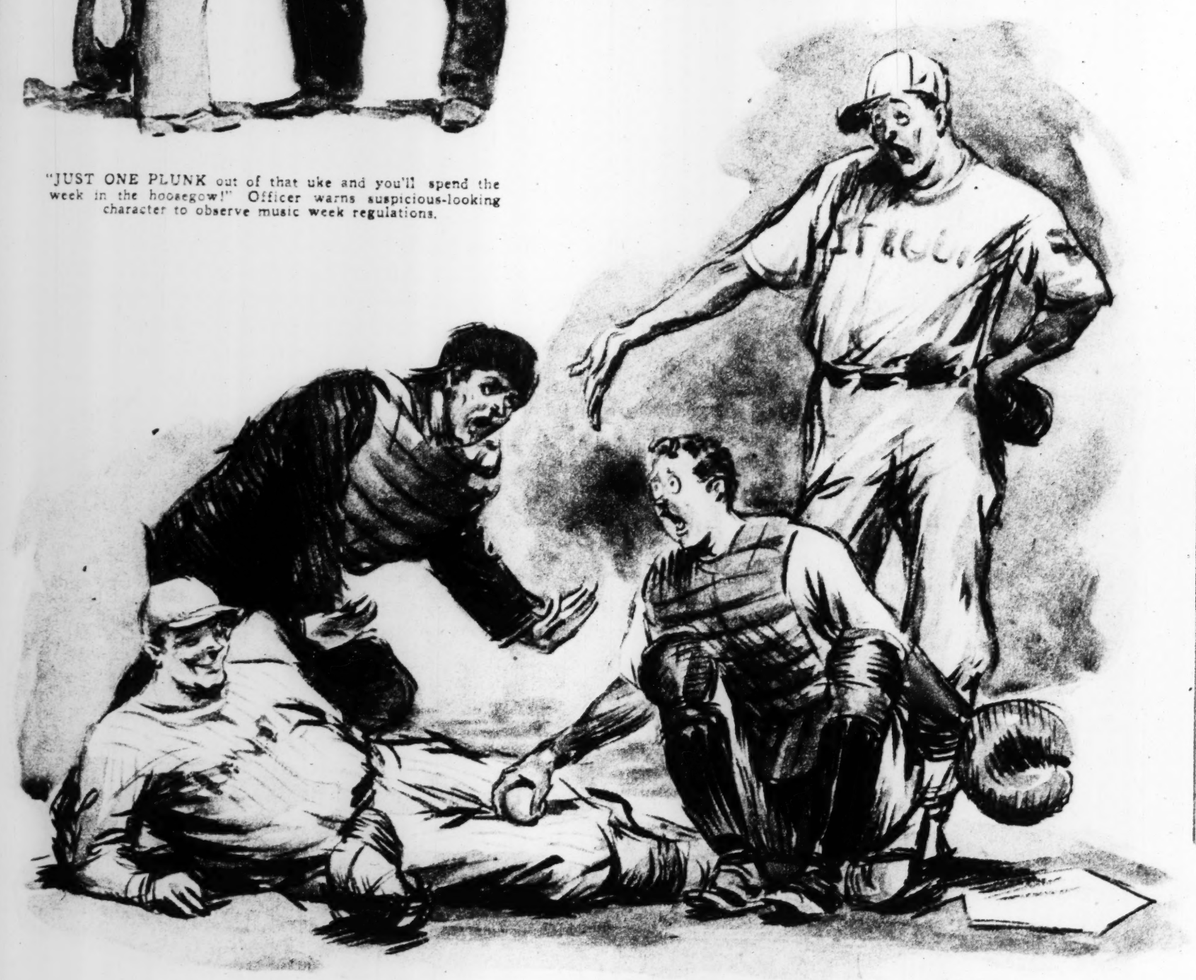
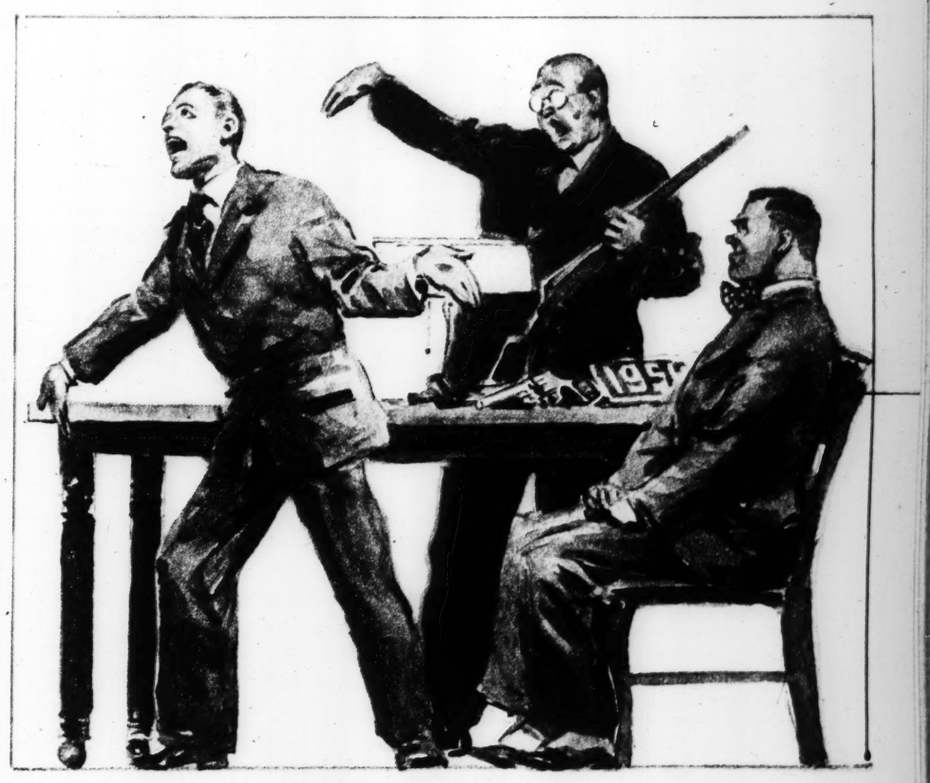
"JUST ONE PLUNK out of that uke and you'll spend the week in the hoosegow!" Officer warns suspicious-looking character to observe music week regulations.

"AH! NOW THERE'S REAL MUSIC!" Mercenary cafeteria proprietor goes into rhapsodies over a solo on his cash register. To him the sweetest notes in the world are those produced by the U. S. Mint.

RAT - - - tat-tat-tat-tat - - um-tat-tat. The riveter tries out a few new rhythms, a la jazz trap-drummer, with the pneumatic hammer.



UMP SINGS. "For he's safe, for he's safe at home," while first base interpolates, "Poor Jesse, he's blind as a bat."
A little more close harmony on the close decisions might help.



ATTORNEY FOR DEFENSE SINGS, "For he's only an innocent boy." The prosecutor's refrain is, "He will be gone for a long, long time." The jury is 11 to 1, for life terms for both warblers. The other juror holds out for hanging.

IT'S ALWAYS MUSIC WEEK for the whistling office boy. He's given up trying to educate the other members of the office force as to music appreciation. "Good music goes over their heads," he says.

THE SHRILL SHRIEK of the traffic cop's whistle might be replaced by the mellow tones of the clarinet.

"THE DRY GUILLOTINE"

France's Bleak Penal Colony in French Guiana Is Sent 340 More Unfortunates. An Account of the Embarkation and a Description of the Merciless Tropic Prison.

By GUY FORSHEY
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

THREE HUNDRED AND FORTY more miserable men have taken their last passage from France to the "dry guillotine" of Devil's Island. Bound for the hated shores of French Guiana, the last of the old convict ships, La Martiniere, steamed out of the harbor of La Rochelle a few days ago, her dungeons filled. In a little while she will return empty, her white cargo delivered, and France may meditate upon the brand of mercy with which it tempers justice.

For in sparing the "extreme penalty," blindly philanthropic French courts sent these criminals to a doom immeasurably worse than death. The erstwhile shackled passengers of La Martiniere have before them an existence filled only with disease, cruelty and bitter toil. As human beings they are done for. They will endure awhile as caged animals and then, when they have starved and sweltered until all that lives in them is dead, their worn-out bodies will become the food of sharks.

Graphic are the reports of that tragic embarkation at La Rochelle. It was sunset, and a poignant silence reigned when the vessel cast off with its cargo. All day long it had lain at anchor far out in the harbor, its prow pointed southward, its one-time somber sides glistening with new and gaudy paint.

Strange must have been the whim that inspired its color scheme. Flaming bars of red and yellow mingled with stripes of black and white to produce a weird effect of cubist painting or war-time camouflage. It was as if some phantom craft of the middle ages had appropriately come back to join in a project so uncivilized. To all its dungeons ran steam pipes from throbbing engines. Just let there be a hint of rioting in the holds! Live steam released through those sinister conveyors would wreak more torture than a hundred guards with branding irons. Once housed in that hull the toughest of Paris apaches would hold his peace until he should march out between bayonets to his destiny on Devil's Island.

MUTINY? No danger! Not even a chance. What chance would shackled convicts have against ten thousand pounds of hissing steam? And what of individual hotheads? They, too, were provided for. Was there not the stateroom de luxe which would be just the thing for irreconcilables? With feet thrust into stocks wide apart the culprit would squat half erect until ready to cry "enough." Possibly an ordinary man could stand it half an hour, but the toughest of desperadoes would collapse after an hour in the stateroom de luxe. Such was the boast of the Captain of La Martiniere.

An unusually capacious barge had been towed to La Rochelle from Rochefort to transport the motley crew from St. Martin's Penitentiary to the waiting ship, and about 4 o'clock in the afternoon the loading began. Sharp commands were heard and a battalion of helmeted soldiers, with bayonets shining, fell into opposite lines along an avenue which led from the prison gate to the wharf. Throngs of spectators, curious to see so large a group of outlaws, pressed close behind the troops. A few relatives, there to get a last look at familiar faces, fastened their eyes on the runway; then the prison door swung open and the herd emerged.

Like cattle in the brief respite between crowded stock car and slaughter pen, they trotted out in half bewilderment. They ventured this way and that with hesitating steps. They seemed dazzled by the brightness of the sky and the green of the trees. In the lead one observed three men walking somewhat apart from the others. Heavy handcuffs proclaimed that they were dangerous offenders. One, a dark-haired and boisterous fellow, was a former escaped convict who, having been "turned up" by his accomplices for a crime committed together, had sworn that he would have their blood in prison or out of it. (The cat-o'-nine-tails will soon tame him on Devil's Island.) There was another in that group who had declared, in his hatred of all the human kind, that he would kill the first man who fell under his hand the moment the fetters dropped from his wrists. (He, too, will have other things to think about when some burly Arab guard sets him to work under a tropical sun in the streets of Cayenne.)

One man, the French observer's account narrated, stood out conspicuously in the dejected multitude. A guard explained that he was Gabriel Mourey, the butler who robbed Albert R. Shattuck, the New York banker, of $90,000 of jewelry after locking the family in the wine cellar. He was first sentenced to death and probably would now be sleeping his last sleep in some potter's field had not his late employer appealed for his life. As it is, he is on his way to a life term in the colony. He will probably regret the pardon.

TATTOOED hands and arms and faces were everywhere. There were weazened faces with glasses which one immediately classified by rapid gaze as swindlers and forgers. Over there is a nice little fellow wearing a woolen blouse and a felt hat. It is Captain Brochard, one of the long-termers condemned for half a dozen swindles. An elegant and much-painted young woman rushes to bid him farewell. They part after a long embrace.

Still those tattooed faces pass. Weird marks, some of them, with mottoes blasphemous or revolutionary. Notice that burly, smirking fellow with the black mark encircling his throat. What is that legend written above? "Executioner," it enjoins, "when cutting, follow the dotted line." From a doomed man whose death sentence has been commuted this grim bit of humor comes. How proudly he flaunts it at his captors. That bravado will not endure long on scorching Devil's Island!

THE embarkation lasted half an hour. The prisoners trod the footbridge with clumsy feet, rendered heavy with the coarse galoshes. As soon as they reached the deck, gasping under the weight of their bags, a guard with three stripes on his sleeve, with a heavy black beard and flashing eyes that warned the convicts against all bold attempts, pushed them along one by one. A dumfounded Negro was the last to board the heavily laden barge and then a cart carrying six invalids emptied its contents and was drawn away. The craft was packed, not another man could have been shoved in.

Slowly the tug's engine begins to labor and the barge is drawn out toward the open sea where La Martiniere is waiting. Heavily armed guards follow the craft in speedy launches and dart close about its sides. All the way to the ship they hover in the prisoners' wake and during the transfer of cargo keep circling about. Soon the loading is completed. Smoke rises from the funnels of La Martiniere. She is lifting anchor. The convicts are looking their last upon the shores of France. From the depths of La Martiniere a moan is heard. Faintly it comes at first; then it grows into a groan and finally swells into a roar . . . "Mort aux vaches," it thunders . . . . "Death to the dirty bulls." It ends in one long-drawn blood-curdling yell.

Thus did the departing exiles of France salute their homeland in farewell.

THE PRISON CAMPS.

Captain Dreyfus. And at the left—Gabriel Mourey.

CONCERNING the port to which they sailed, civilization knows but little that is pleasant. Reports of escaped convicts and occasional travelers have invariably been reports of horror. For 72 years France has maintained this penal colony in French Guiana, three islands a short distance off the coast having been set apart as the prison proper. The name, Devil's Island, properly belongs to only one of them, the group being officially designated as the "Isles of Safety," but since the time of the renowned Dreyfus case the entire colony has been popularly identified by the more sinister and fitting appellation. The individual Devil's Island constitutes the prison dungeon. It is rocky, barren and blazes in the equatorial sunshine. It was on this spot that Captain Dreyfus spent five miserable years after his conviction on a "framed" charge of treason in 1894. When finally he was liberated in 1899, after a court fight that engaged the attention of the entire world, he was the sort of physical and mental wreck that only Devil's Island can produce.

Originally, it seems, the French plan of making the Guiana province a dumping ground for miscreants had two purposes in view: It was to get rid of a large prison population in France and at the same time to give what was then one of the richest of French colonies a new supply of labor to replace that which was lost when the African slaves, the first colonists imported, took to the bush and reverted to their savage state. It was provided that after prisoners had completed their terms they should receive land grants on the mainland and thus start life anew on virgin soil. The plan still holds, in theory at least, but it has been a dismal failure.

In the first place, convicts, as a rule, are not fitted with the moral stamina essential for pioneering in a new and rigorous field. Frenchmen were not physically equipped to endure the climate of the jungles. In the first year 1400 died of disease and cruelty.

In the second place, the land grants conferred by the falsely magnanimous Government were next to worthless. Unlike the rich and productive Guiana of Holland and the well-kept adjacent province of Great Britain, the French possession is a low-lying expanse of insect-ridden marsh and pestilential swamp. Sick and dying, the deportees found their lot as freemen worse than their plight as convicts. They joined the rabble in the streets of Cayenne and became part of the begging and scavenging horde, so vile and repulsive that world travelers came to shun French Guiana as a plague spot.

IN THE third place, the penal system which placed in the hands of Negro keepers and military guards, 4000 miles away, the fate of helpless convicts was foredoomed to failure. The French soldiers sent to Guiana to herd a crew of criminals came to consider the assignment as a punishment to themselves. They resented it and proceeded to "take it out" on their unfortunate charges. Cruelty ran unrestrained. It became advantageous to the guards to get rid of convicts as fast as possible. Fewer prisoners meant fewer hours spent in the hot sunshine forcing the last drop of energy from sweltering laborers. There was little intervention when the convicts, caged together like vicious animals, chose to settle their personal disputes in their own way. Many a feud has been settled in the darkness of the night by a stab up through a canvas bed or by a duel within a ring of convict spectators. Since the guards preferred a dead prisoner to a live one, they did not care to lose their sleep and perhaps risk their lives by interfering in these quarrels. Morning would find a corpse and evidence of a deadly struggle, but not a single man who was awakened by the encounter. The body would be dragged out to the water's edge and thrown to the sharks which haunt the shores.

Under such a plan of administration graft was bound to exist. Dead prisoners became a source of profit to their erstwhile guardians. They didn't have to be fed. The names of dead men and escaped men (very few of the latter) were kept on the books as long as possible to bring a large allowance of ration money. The longer the list, the larger the melon to be cut and distributed among the keepers. Rations for the survivors were cut down to the barest living fare.

Before setting out for eight hours' labor in the streets of Cayenne, the convict receives as his breakfast a cup of coffee. For his midday meal he gets a plate of thin soup, a small piece of meat (usually condemned beef), a vegetable and half a pound of bread. His evening meal is still more scanty except for a glass of a mixture that passes for milk. He is supposed to get an allowance of tobacco and wine and reading matter. He gets neither unless they come from friends outside. He is supposed to have comfortable clothing and facilities for bathing. Those few who have seen the Three Sad Isles and returned to tell the tale declare he doesn't have them. Devil's Island convicts are unspeakably filthy and ill-clothed. Not until they become trusties can they have shoes. When they contract leprosy, as many of them do, they are bundled off to another lonely island and left there to their own salvation, a daily boat depositing rations on the dreaded shore.

Such, then, is the destination to which La Martiniere transports her cargo. Whatever differences may now exist among those 340 men as individuals, the common level is not far off—the level of beasts. "Give us a month and you cannot tell a man of education from the scum," is the standing boast of the wardens on Devil's Island.

NOW and then, if luck is right, one may escape, as Eddie Guerin did in 1904, but the odds are savagely against it. To get away from dozing guards some sultry afternoon might not constitute a problem unreasonably grave, but eluding guards does not mean escape. The fugitive must cross mile after mile of trackless jungle to reach Paramaribo, in Dutch Guiana, or to reach Venezuela, farther northwest. Then he must avoid capture for reward and find transportation money to get him to other shores.

It has never been made quite clear how the feat was accomplished by Guerin, the American crook sentenced from Paris for robbery in 1901. He said he won the affections of his keeper's wife to gain passage through the gates and then crossed 200 miles of jungle on foot, reaching Venezuela. Others said he bribed his guards with funds sent from outside. Anyway, he was one of the few to break the historic tradition that no man escapes from Devil's Island. If they do not leave their bones on jungle trails or become the prey of sharks in the lagoons, most of those who try it are gathered up and hustled back by the bounty-grabbing natives for $3 a head or shot down like hunted animals. Some, finding hardship insufferable, commit suicide; others, hard pressed by hunger, return voluntarily to get the scanty prison fare. For the most part, they are one-way trails, those paths that lead to French Guiana.

Hardly probable is it that the world will ever know the individual fates of those 340 travelers on La Martiniere. By this time, no doubt, they are wielding picks in the sewer trenches of Cayenne, jeered by the Negro inhabitants, who, accustomed as long as they can remember to seeing white men abused and beaten, feel a vast superiority over the white race. Hunger and disease and the sun's furious rays soon will begin their deadly work and then will come the inevitable end. The strongest will break and the weakest will die.

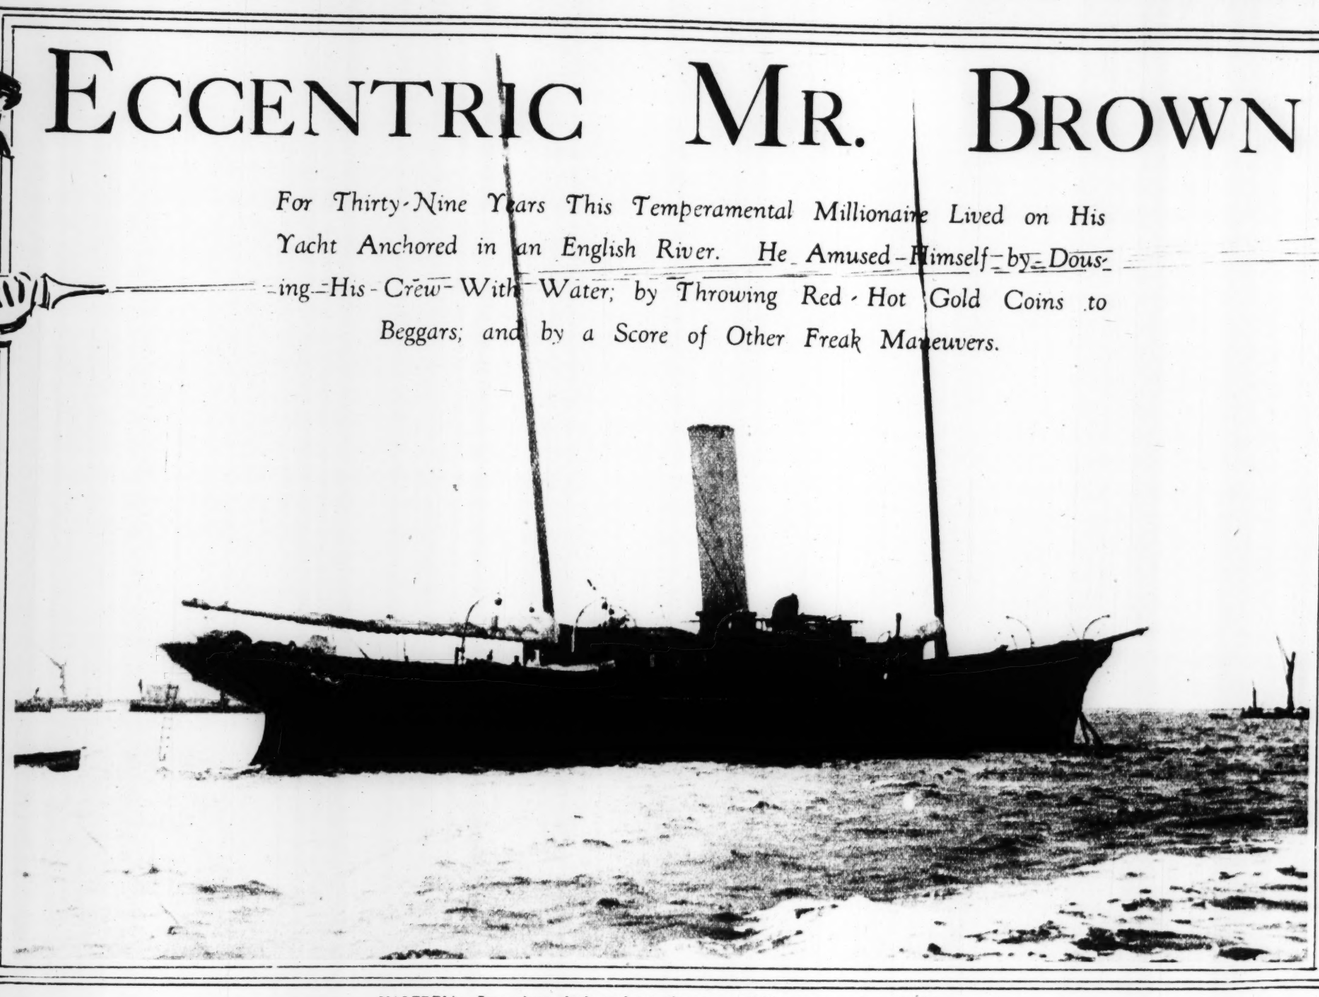
ECCENTRIC MR. BROWN

For Thirty-Nine Years This Temperamental Millionaire Lived on His Yacht Anchored in an English River. He Amused Himself by Dousing His Crew With Water; by Throwing Red-Hot Gold Coins to Beggars; and by a Score of Other Freak Maneuvers.



VALFREIA—Brown's yacht-houseboat, the scene of his many queer activities.

Special to the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine.

BRIGHTLINGSEA, England.—McEvers Bayard Brown of New York was a batty old codger who did a great deal of good in the world and enjoyed being mildly crazy better than any man the people of this small fishing village ever heard of. For 39 years he lived on his yacht, the Valfreia, anchored 200 yards from shore in the River Colne, which runs prettily to the east coast of Britain through the County of Essex.

He never put to sea for fear a strong wind would blow him back to New York. He maintained a crew of from 10 to 43 men, because he liked to play pranks on sailors. He was a recluse for the reason that some woman might dress in man's clothes and make love to him. If there were any more sensible explanations of the life he lived they were his secret. However, no one has ventured to assert that McEvers Bayard Brown was a sensible man. He was a charmingly silly coot, whose eccentricities kept him happy and the world interested. Brightlingsea genuinely mourns his passing.

When he died the other day it was recalled that Brown had been a person of some consequence in New York about 1894. He was a lawyer then and had offices at 32 Nassau street, with his cousins, William Bayard Cutting and Robert Fulton Cutting. His name was listed in the last issue of the New York social register, giving residence address as the Union Club. He was also listed as a member of the Knickerbocker, Riding—South Side Sportsmen's and Jekyl Island clubs.

NOW that he is dead the conventional attempts are made to rationalize his sudden departure from New York and his hermitage in England. There is talk of an unfortunate love affair which drove him into exile. There are rumors that Brown fled to escape commitment to an insane asylum; or that he left America to escape taxes. Any of them might be true enough, but folks who knew him here are of the opinion Brown left America because it occurred to him that leaving America would be a good idea. No one in Brightlingsea tries to explain Brown or Brown's ideas. There are some men who can't be explained. Brown was one of them.

It sufficeth for the purposes of this chronicle to state that Brown left America on board his yacht Tofrida; that he sold this yacht and bought the palatial Valfreia, for $200,000, from Sir William Pearse; that he dropped anchor off Brightlingsea—and there was Brown. And there Brown stayed. How and why and wherefore do not matter at all. It would be an insult to Brown's memory to write a logical, consistent story of his life. Brown was never logical or consistent.

He had a great deal of money—folks estimate that he gave away a million dollars, but Brightlingsea may be exaggerating—and he looked like King Edward. These two facts were sufficient to endear him to the town. During all his years on the Valfreia Brown never lacked for callers. He never lacked a crew, either, though his crews changed frequently and he was obliged to pay out about $4000 a month to keep the Valfreia uselessly manned. People called on Brown because he had a habit of giving money to beggars, and crews worked for Brown because he paid well.

Life aboard the Valfreia was a dippy round of this and that, for Brown, as has been said, was a dippy bird. His secretaries told weird tales of Brown's personal habits. The first secretary Brown had was an American, the only American he ever employed after coming to Brightlingsea. Brown detested his countrymen. This American secretary possessed a mustache which was the pride of his life. Brown objected to the mustache. No one can gainsay that there are some mustaches which are objectionable.

Taking exception to his secretary's mustache, Brown bided his time until one evening after dinner the secretary fell asleep. The poor fellow awoke to find Brown busily engaged in cutting off the mustache. There was a terrific struggle. Breaking Brown's grip on the remnant of his mustache the secretary drew a revolver and fired several shots. They went wild and Brown drew his revolver and fired several shots. His aim was better and one of the bullets clipped off the rest of the secretary's mustache. Satisfied, Brown became peaceable and offered to increase the secretary's pay if he would remain. But the secretary resigned.

HIS next secretary was an Italian artist. They went ashore to attend an art exhibit in Brightlingsea one day and disagreed violently about a picture. Brown asserted that the picture looked better upside down. He persisted in turning it upside down, despite remonstrances of the exhibitors and the secretary. In a huff, Brown left and returned to the Valfreia alone. He went at once to his cabin and drew a bucket of hot water. Then he crept to the rail, while his astonished crew looked on, and lay in wait for the secretary. Presently the unsuspecting wight climbed up the side and Brown doused him with the water.

They renewed their quarrel in the cabin that night. The secretary hit Brown on the nose with a nut. Brown grabbed a poker. The secretary stood him off with oranges, pelting his employer on the face and body. Brown retreated to the deck, vowing vengeance. That night the wily recluse loaded a squirtgun with water. He waited until his secretary was asleep and then shot him in the ear with a cold stream. Thereafter, for two weeks, Brown ambushed his secretary with the squirtgun, until the poor fellow, loath to give up such a well-paying position, was forced to resign.

Brown could hire no more secretaries.

HOWEVER, there was still the crew. For 39 years he amused himself by making life alternately miserable and happy for his hirelings. His favorite game was to play hide-and-seek with the stodgy British sailors on his payroll. Armed with a squirtgun, he would hide himself behind stanchions or near portholes or down hatchways. Then, when a sailor happened within range, Brown would turn loose a stream of icy water. He was fond of lying in a deck chair, carefully concealed, while he picked off man after man with the squirtgun.

He had a raging prejudice against second engineers. Although the Valfreia never put to sea, Brown always kept a complete engineering staff. Their duties consisted chiefly of running a donkey engine to furnish electricity for the yacht's lighting system. Once Brown took a second engineer out with him on a duck-shooting expedition in a steam launch. While the fellow was leaning over to adjust something on the boiler, Brown crept up behind him and broke a gunstock over his head. The man spent six weeks in a hospital; his expenses were paid by Brown, and when he recovered his employer made him a present of 50 pounds.

Another prank of his was to invite the crew to drink ale with him. After the mugs had been passed around, and while the sailors were looking in their cups, Brown would pick up a cudgel and start cracking heads.

He had two parrots and a monkey, Jacko. He paid a sailor 5 pounds a month extra to feed the parrots and another sailor received extra wages for taking care of Jacko. He taught the monkey to squirt water with his mouth and encouraged him to douse any visitor that happened near.

There were near-mutinies and wholesale walkouts of the yacht's crews time and again, but Brown never promised to treat his men any better. He lured new crews with high wages and promises of light work. On several occasions Brown fired all of his crew but four men and spent months in seclusion. He had a library of 1200 books on the yacht and subscribed to many newspapers. Each day a barber came out from Brightlingsea to shave Brown and, when necessary, to trim his hair.

"Sure you won't cut my throat?" the eccentric master of the Valfreia would ask. Always the same question.

"Oh, no, sir," said the barber.

"Why won't you?"

"My knuckles are too stiff," the barber learned to reply.

Brown, thinking this an excellent reason, would be satisfied until the next time.

Once the barber made so bold as to lecture Brown on his benefactions.

"You give your money away foolishly," he said. "You give to anyone who begs. Most of these people don't need the money and use it for drinking and carousing."

"Yes, I suppose they do," chuckled Brown.

It pleased Brown to call one of his officers before him now and then and address him in this wise:

"You've tried my patience long enough. Don't deny it. You must go ashore and get a good beating from your wife. Don't come back until you've been soundly thrashed."

He would hand the officer a generous expense allowance and order him off the yacht. The lucky man would spend Brown's money pleasantly in London or some other town and come back when it was gone. Brown generally greeted him like this:

"Why were you gone so long?"

"My wife beat me, sir, and I've been in the hospital."

"Ho-ho-ho," Brown would roar, "so she beat you! How many times did she hit you?"

"Twenty."

"Not enough; not enough, by Jove!" Brown said, most likely. Then he would seize a cudgel and try to add a few more blows.

HOW BROWN'S SECRETARY LOST HIS MUSTACHE

One Hair-Razing Tale of the Sea

As long as they could keep out of Brown's way his crews liked life on the Valfreia. She is a magnificent yacht of 735 tons. Of steel throughout, with decks of Indian teakwood, she could make 16 knots in her prime. Under Brown's command she depreciated, becoming waterlogged with barnacles, and it is doubtful if she is now seaworthy. He saw to it, however, that his crew kept her painted, that the American flag flew from the stern, and that the sumptuous furnishings of cabins and saloon were kept clean.

Such were Brown's relations with his crew. His relations with the villagers of Brightlingsea were even more bizarre.

ONCE a month for 39 years a messenger from a London bank visited Brown with a bag full of gold and banknotes. Villagers of the coast for miles around, knowing Brown, shamelessly sponged on him. Six boatmen did a thriving business rowing beggars out to the yacht.

"Hi, Mr. Brown! Any money today?"

Usually Brown would answer any hail, and his bearded face would peep from behind a piece of superstructure, while he furtively studied his callers. They would come—sometimes dozens of them—to swarm around the yacht's black sides and beseech Brown for donations.

And the tales they told! There were more dead children, to be buried only if Brown were generous, than were ever born in Essex. Cows died mysteriously by the hundreds, leaving their owners without support. Pigs had weird accidents, great aunts needed hospital attention, mortgages were foreclosed by the score, bills were there without number which just "'ad to be paid, please sir, Mr. Brown. Hand if ye'll only 'elp us this time, sir"—— Brightlingsea was shameless about it. Everybody begged money from Brown. He was considered public property, to be mulcted any way that seemed feasible.

"'E'll throw 'is money in the ocean if we don't ask for it," was Brightlingsea's opinion. "Wot's the 'arm, if 'e don't want 'is money? Might just as well give it to us."

It was considered entirely proper to ask Mr. Brown for money. The best people in town did it.

But Brown—as with his crew—had to have his joke on the beggars.

"Any money for me, today, Mr. Brown?" some chap in a rowboat would call out.

"Yes; just a minute," Brown would reply.

HE'D have his cook heat some gold coins on the stove. Then he'd pitch a panful of the coins into the beggar's boat. Many a grinning mendicant was fooled and burned his fingers trying to pick up Brown's largess.

After a while beggars got onto this trick of Brown's and started wearing gloves. So Brown, intent on having his joke, would hold a pan of hot water behind his back as he dropped hot gold over the rail. If a beggar sought to pick up the money with gloved hands Brown would douse him with the water.

Sometimes, on warm afternoons, the fancy struck Brown to do a little target practice. He would wrap lumps of coal in banknotes and try to hit the swarm of beggars with them. When he missed the money would sink, and small boys dived for it. If Brown saw that his parasites were gaining too much money too easily he'd change missiles. A shower of cabbages, eggs, beets and other truck would fall on the hard-working beggars.

Occasionally through the years Brown would venture ashore. At such times a crowd of hopeful villagers would follow him. You never could tell when Brown would get generous and start throwing money away. Once he saw a homely woman standing in the crowd.

"I'll give you 5 pounds to get out of sight," he offered.

She accepted, and with a banknote clutched in her hand hurried away.

On another occasion Brown chanced to notice the belfry of the village church.

"WHY is it I never hear church bells ringing on Sunday morning?" he inquired.

"We 'aven't no bells, Mr. Brown."

The master of the Valfreia wrote his check for 1000 pounds on the spot and the church at Brightlingsea has the finest chimes in Essex.

One Christmas Eve he gave 500 pounds to be distributed among the poor in a borough of Colchester, some distance from Brightlingsea.

Tourists who happened along the Essex coast soon learned of Brown and tried to visit him. But they never got closer than the sides of the yacht. In 1913 the British Government decided Brown ought to pay taxes and sued him. He lost the suit and was obliged to declare an estate of 50,000 pounds.

During the war Brown moved up the river about five miles, at the request of the British Admiralty, the mouth of the Colne having been mined.

His only personal visitors were a woman, who said she was his cousin, and Lord Paget, the English sportsman. Lord Paget told friends that Brown entertained him at dinner on the Valfreia and talked brilliantly for a while. Then his demeanor changed, and, according to the nobleman:

"He talked so wildly that I was very much perturbed."

Two newspaper correspondents managed to get aboard the yacht for an interview. They reported that Brown had hailed them in this manner:

"Any accusations to make against me? Any penalties?"

"None."

"Do you bring me any warning?"

"No."

THE newspaper men were allowed to come aboard. Brown received them in a slouchy pepper-and-salt tweed suit and yachting cap. He was bearded and stout, and both observers noticed his resemblance to King Edward.

"You are not women?" he asked.

"No."

"Are these your real names on your cards?"

"Yes."

Brown talked incoherently then of two women and "one named Clementine." He asked repeatedly if his interviewers were making signals.

Once he noticed that the visitors had removed their hats. He took his cap off for an instant, but clapped it back on his head.

"Only liars take off their hats," he exclaimed.

When questioned about America or New York he refused to answer and finally flew into a rage, ordering his visitors to leave.

"He was very eccentric," the reporter wrote.

Eccentric? McEvers Bayard Brown was as batty as a loon, say the people of Brightlingsea. But he seemed to enjoy being crazy. And he had the endearing habit of giving money away. Brown was a very nice man.

The TRUTH about BEAUTIFYING

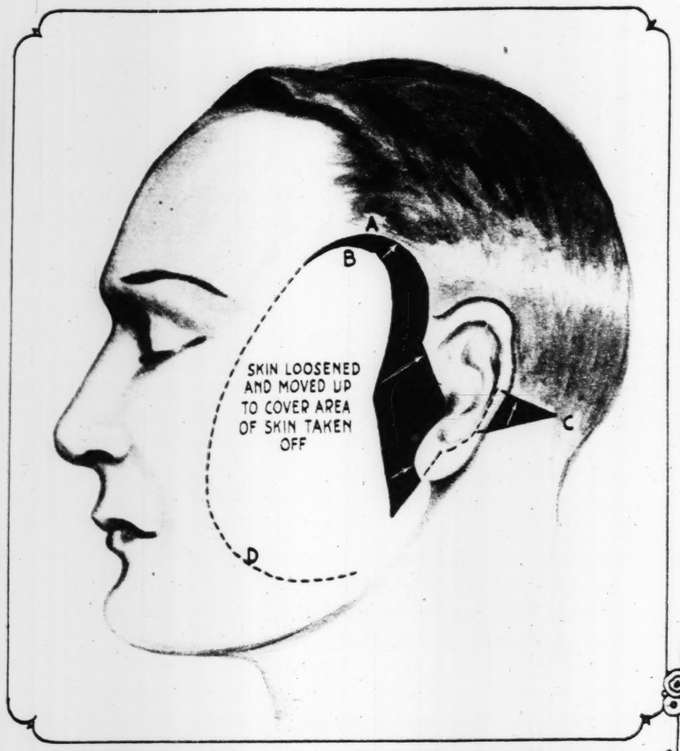
By FREDERICK H. BRENNAN
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff



A FACIAL LIFT. Diagram shows how an incision is made at the hairline A, running down and through the ear to the point C. The loose skin which causes wrinkles is cut off along line B, the shaded area representing slack skin taken out between the incisions A and B. Then the line B is drawn back to the line A and the triangle at C is closed; line B is stitched to line A, the long sides of triangle C are sewed together and the lift is completed. The area of skin proscribed by dotted line D is mined underneath, cut loose from the flesh of the cheek, so the wrinkles can be stretched out.

A Nationally Known Plastic Surgeon Tells THE FACTS About Face-Lifting, Removal of Scars and Wrinkles, Reconstruction of Noses and Other Operations Now Widely Practiced in "Cosmetic Surgery." Graphically He Points a Warning to the Seeker for Artificial Beauty.

THE DUCHESS OF RUTLAND, recently sued for $1000 by a Chicago cosmetic surgeon. She is the mother of Lady Diana Manners.

"MY DEAR," says the beauty specialist, as she burns a lady's hair with her marceling machine, "you really ought to have a lift. It takes wrinkles out like magic. It really does, you know."

"Honey," says the lady's friend, as she absently trumps a partner's ace, "you should see the scrumptious lift Mamie got. She looks pos-i-tive-ly twenty years younger."

"Well, sweetheart," says the lady's husband, with heavy-handed humor, "we're getting old. Yessir, we're getting old. Let's see—how long have we been married?"

And then he sings a snatch of "Silver Threads Among the Gold" or "Going Down the Valley." And that settles it.

The lady hunts up a plastic surgeon.

• • • • • • •

Youth! New faces for old. It is a shining lure. The relationship between most people and their faces is never very friendly. Some people are dubious about their faces, some are downright bored with their faces, and some, alas, are disgusted. The person is very conceited, indeed, who can look at the same face every day for years without becoming a little tired of it.

Now, if every woman or man who went searching for facial beauty found it, there would be nothing sinister in plastic surgery. If wrinkles, crow's-feet and pouches always disappeared, magically; if noses were always turned to the Greek ideal; if harelips, scars, cysts and other blemishes always vanished under the plastic surgeon's knife—there would be no need to sound a warning.

Similarly, if every medico who held himself to be a plastic surgeon was an able operator who made no promises which he could not fulfill, the student of cosmetic surgery might say to the gullible participants in this great rush for Beauty: "Bless you, my children." If there were no exaggerations, if all doctors told their prospective patients the truth, and if there wasn't such wholesale misunderstanding on the part of the public as to the reasonable limits of plastic surgery—sound medical men would not be viewing with alarm this flair for improvement on the work of Nature.

THE situation, however, is not thus encouraging. A fake cult of Beauty has fastened itself on the public. Vain women, misled by the advice of ex-manicurists, turned masseurs, fall into the hands of charlatans—many of them ex-barbers or veterinarians transformed into so-called "plastic surgeons." They entrust their faces to these bunglers, and every mistake made by the incompetents is tragic. Hundreds of women have been disfigured for life by facial operations badly done and undertaken, in most instances, because the operators assured their patients of perfect results.

In the light of these facts it is pertinent, therefore, to inquire of a legitimate practitioner of plastic surgery as to the proper limits of the art. What can be done and what cannot be done? What can a reputable surgeon of high operative ability promise the patients who come to him for cosmetic corrections? What results can be guaranteed from the various operations? What are the consequences of failure? What are the penalties of bungling by quacks?

The writer put these and other questions to a man of international repute in plastic surgery, an operator of the highest order, who stands among the leaders, if not first in his branch of the profession. For ethical reasons he declined the use of his name, but the writer can vouch that he speaks with authority.

"To begin with," he said, "the best medical practice discourages operations for correction of slight facial defects. These defects are usually so magnified in the patient's mind that the change afforded by an operation would not satisfy her. Moreover, the class of patients who find small blemishes justification for surgical treatment are not the sort with whom a reputable surgeon can deal. I have numerous women callers of this sort. Generally they are surreptitious about it. They don't want their husbands to know. They also want a guarantee of perfect results!

"They are the restless, dissatisfied, neurotic women who fall easy victims to quacks. Usually their ignorance of plastic surgery is total. To my office come numerous letters asking: 'Do you peel? If so, how much do you charge?' The writers evidently have been told by beauty parlor workers or by friends that there is some method of peeling the face so as to give a new complexion. If there is such a method I have never heard of it.

"Legitimate plastic surgery does not lightly take within its province the correction of minor flaws. It should be remembered that no surgery of the face produces perfect results. The most that any honest surgeon should promise a patient is improvement—to make the bad features less noticeable rather than positively beautiful. The more minute the defect, the smaller the improvement, and there are a great many cases which are not worth either the surgeon's time or the patient's money and suffering. In this category I would place such blemishes as tiny scars, superfluous hairs, small wrinkles, freckles, slightly crooked noses. These are trivial defects and best let alone.

"The application of plastic surgery, however, is very broad and is becoming more tolerant, until it is left with the conscience of the surgeon as to what cases are remedial and what are not. But the true field for this work lies with aggravated defects; facial deformities due to accidents and diseases. These I hold to be the proper province for the plastic surgeon. Take the patient whose deformity is a curse to herself or himself and an object of disgust to friends. Such a patient is a real sufferer, handicapped in the battle for bread, a monstrosity at whom the public stares, a prey to self-hatred.

"Between the extremes of minor blemishes and ghastly deformities there are hundreds of cases which must be decided on their merits. For instance, a woman comes to me whose face is badly wrinkled. Let us say that she is a business woman to whom an appearance of youth is a definite economic asset. She wants me to lift her face. She is miserable; old age is a real tragedy to her. I explain that an operation will remove her wrinkles, but will by no means make her a girl again. If she understands just how much improvement can be had, I usually take the case. If I can make her happy and better able to face the world I consider the ethical question answered.

"THUS, no hard and fast lines can be drawn between patients who appeal to the plastic surgeon. He must judge each case on its individual merits and decide if the best interests of the patient can be served by a cosmetic operation. Many operations are undertaken for psychological reasons more than the physical results expected. I recall an instance of a boy with a hare-lip who came to my notice. This boy had allowed his mind to dwell on his deformity until he suffered from an inferiority complex. He was turned against the world by the belief that the world was laughing or staring at him. He became a petty thief. I think an operation to correct his deformity would do wonders for him. He might regain his self-respect.

"Persons who feel that they must resort to surgery to correct facial defects should lay their case before a reputable surgeon, and abide by his decision. The great trouble is in teaching the public the reasonable limitations of plastic surgery, so that persons will not be misled by advertising charlatans into hoping for too much.

"Let us consider now a few of the common cases to which plastic surgery is applicable.

WRINKLES:

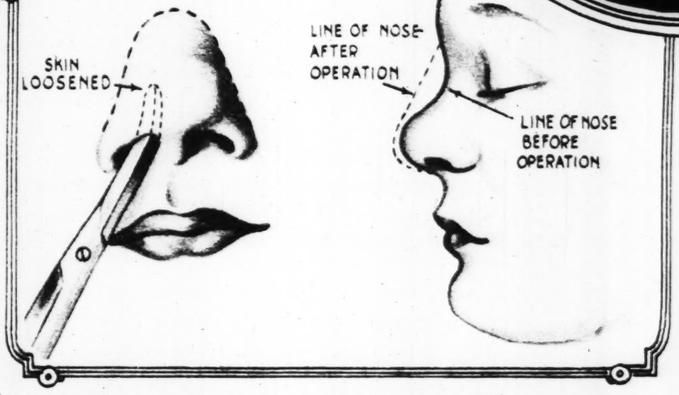
"NEARLY all so-called face lifting is undertaken to correct wrinkles. In general, if you have a thin face, badly wrinkled, an operation will greatly improve the condition. Persons whose faces are fat do not undergo such operations successfully. From my observations a facial lift on a fleshy person never lasts. The weight of the flesh in a person's cheeks, if she is fat, will stretch the skin after the operation until the folds return almost as bad as ever.

"The nearest to a permanent operation for correction of wrinkles is the one with a long hairline incision, beginning over the forehead and running down through the forepart of the ear to a point behind the ear and under the scalp. When the incision is made the operator undermines the skin of the face, cutting it loose from the flesh. He then cuts off enough of the skin from the forehead to take up whatever looseness there is. Then a triangular patch is cut from behind the ear sufficient to take up the slack from the cheeks and jaw. In this manner the skin is stretched and sewed together tightly enough to remove the wrinkles.

"If done properly this operation permits full play of the facial muscles and the expression is normal. The danger is in having an inexperienced surgeon or an ignorant bungler attempt the work. I know of a woman whose skin was stretched so tight across her forehead that she appeared to be unable to close her eyes. Some doctors will not attempt the proper operation at all, but will inject paraffine oils under the skin to puff it out and thus smooth the wrinkles. Several of my patients were thus victimized. Their faces turned purple. Their eyes puffed. Facial tumors developed. A number of operations have corrected the mistakes somewhat.

SCARS:

"THERE is no way of absolutely removing scars. Many patients are misled by self-styled plastic surgeons into permitting incisions to be made in their faces on the promise that resultant scars will be eradicated completely. It can't be done. Incisions for facial lifts should always be made above the hair line, so the scar will not show. By recutting and then resewing very carefully a scar can be made less noticeable. Individuals differ in their ability to heal scars. That is, one person's skin will heal better than another's. I have had patients whose scars healed until they were almost imperceptible; others heal with red welts. These welts can be improved by stripping off the surface and grafting skin on them, or by re-suturing, but people should be wary as to how they permit a surgeon to cut into their faces.



AN OPERATION to correct pug nose. The skin on the bridge of the nose is cut loose from the supporting cartilage with scissors inserted from the nostril and a straight piece of cartilage is then laid along the bridge of the nose, lifting the skin into a straight line. The nose then takes the profile outline as shown in the second drawing by the dotted line.

NOSES:

"WITH noses plastic surgery has been very successful. That is, a first-rate surgeon can change the shape of the nose and greatly improve its appearance. Hooked noses can be made aquiline, snubbed noses can be made perfectly straight. The length and breadth of noses can be changed. By cutting inside the nose it can be separated from the face and brought forward at new angles; it can be made more prominent or less prominent. But here, again, is a dangerous branch of surgery.

"I know of a young girl who had no nose at all. She sat all day in a darkened room with a bandage over her face. Her family, desperate to have her take some part in life, brought her to me. I made for her what I thought was a very good-looking nose. But when the operation was finished she went back to her room and put the bandage over her face again. Mentally, she was still without a nose. People idealize their faces. They imagine an absurd transformation which they expect to take place; when it doesn't they are bitterly disappointed. Before anyone ventures to have his nose reshaped, he should make very sure that the new shape will fit his face and be a real improvement. It is an operation not to be entered into lightly. Many over-zealous self-beautifiers are going about today with noses that no more fit them than a chicken's beak would fit a horse.

COMPLEXIONS:

"THERE is much misinformation on the subject. People talk about 'peeling' and 'skin grafts,' 'ultra-violet ray treatments' and so on. I have heard it said that a Chinese was changed into a white man by a plastic surgeon. I can't believe it.

"As a matter of fact there is no way to give a person the skin of a different race. White skin has been grafted on a Negro, but the graft changed color eventually and became black. The Chinese mentioned may be white for a while, but his white skin will repigmentize itself and turn yellow. The plastic surgeon can help people with very bad complexions; that is to say, patients who have birthmarks or deep burns, by grafting skin to their faces from other parts of the body. But even then, the results are far from perfect. The skin of a person's face is a different color from that on any other part of his body. The skin of the abdomen, for instance, when grafted to the face shows yellowish. It does not match.

POUCHES:

"WITH these the able plastic surgeon can do a great deal. For pouches under the eyes there is a comparatively simple operation. An incision is made along the lower lid, close to the lash, and the skin peeled back. Then a small crescent-shaped section of fat can be cut out. A strip of the skin is then sliced off to take up whatever slack there is and the lower lid is then stitched to the lash. Of course, if the surgeon gets his measurement wrong and takes up too much slack the lash will pull down away from the eye. It is a delicate operation and must be done by a skillful man.

"Dewlaps under the chin are remedied by making a cut cross-ways just below the point. The skin is then undermined with scissors (separated from the flesh) and fat removed. A section of skin is then snipped off to take up slack and the incision sewed. Incisions made cross-wise on the neck heal with very slight scars; indeed, if this operation is done well there should be no perceptible scar at all.

"As to cysts (growths on the face) they can be cut out and the scars made inconspicuous if the incision is made in the line of a natural crease.

CONTOURS:

"NEXT let us consider the changing of facial contours. Men come to me with jaws too long or too short; women with chins too prominent or not prominent enough. These are serious defects and can be remedied. I recall one woman who suffered all her life because she had a receding chin. Her husband was satisfied, but she wasn't. So he had a little windfall of money and decided to give her a new chin as a present. She came to me. Her chin was noticeably off-angle and fat. I cut a pouch of fat from it and built the chin out by grafting cartilage. She went away perfectly happy. In these operations, it must be remembered, the possibilities of success are measured by the talent of the operator. People who contemplate such improvements in their faces should go to a surgeon of talent.

"The surgeon who attempts to change facial contours is dabbling in human sculpture. If he is incompetent the result will be tragedy for the patient. If he is just ordinarily competent his work will be commonplace and a disappointment. Only a brilliant operator who is something of an artist should attempt to remodel features.

TAKING OFF FAT:

"THIS class of work has had considerable publicity recently. Fat removal in limited areas is a simple operation, entirely feasible. Women with large hips, protruding abdomens or pendulous breasts can be reduced by surgery. I say reduced. You can't make them sylphlike. Fat deposits of a gross nature are usually to be found just beneath the skin. They are not involved with muscles or nerves and the surgeon has merely to incise the skin, cut out the underlying fat, cut off enough skin to take up the slack and sew up the wound. The operations are not especially serious or exhausting. Of course, if infection develops you are in a pretty bad fix. There is always that chance.

"Now all the foregoing discussion of operations deals with the improvement of conditions that are already pretty good. That is, patients who visit plastic surgeons to have such operations performed could get along without them. They are, in strict medical verbiage, unnecessary. They occupy but a small part of the ethical plastic surgeon's time.

"The sum total of cosmetic surgery, I should say, is a great deal less than miraculous. If you are old and wrinkled you can't be made young again. You can be made not so old and not so wrinkled. If you have serious facial defects they can be made not so serious. Improvement, not correction, is the lesson which the public should remember so far as mere 'beautifying' operations are concerned. And improvement will be more certain in the hands of a competent operator.

"WHERE plastic surgery has a sure field and is of inestimable benefit is in the aggravated cases. The plastic surgeon takes men and women who have been rendered hideous by cancerous growths on the face and tries to make them fit to be seen in public. It takes men with jaws shot away in war, or with faces terribly burned in industrial accidents, and builds new faces. The results are far from perfect; in most instances crude, but such vast improvements on the original wreckage that both patient and surgeon are gratified.

"Plastic surgery has restored hundreds of men and women to a respected place in business or professions. In this office we have had school teachers so deformed, facially, that they were either discharged or in danger of being discharged by school boards because of their depressive effect on children. We have made a number of them more acceptable to their employers.

"Summing it all up, I cannot stress too strongly the importance of selecting the right doctor to do cosmetic work. Many patients who consult reputable surgeons are discouraged by a truthful statement of the long and arduous task ahead, and they go to other men, who make encouraging promises, which, alas, too often are never fulfilled."

"The Hungarian Sheik"

From St. Louis Eastward the Course of Sanford Shonbrunn Took Its Fascinating Way. He Was (or Is) a Charmer. Women Didn't Resist Him. And Now He Has Been Trapped by Detective Kalman, "The Hungarian Sherlock Holmes."

By ARTHUR H. STRAWN

Special to the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

SANFORD SHONBRUNN was a devil with the ladies. And, to give the devil his due, it must be confessed that he had taking ways. That much, at least, should be said of a man who, when arrested, has in his trunk 21 assorted letters addressing him as "My Dear Husband." But Sanford Shonbrunn, with his attractive personality and glib tongue, didn't stop at capturing women's hearts. He also insisted on absconding with their bank accounts. And that is why, after enjoying a freedom in matrimony which would put to shame a Turk, Mr. Shonbrunn is now languishing in the Fairfield County Jail at Bridgeport, Connecticut, charged with bigamy and grand larceny.

"The Hungarian Sheik" is the name by which Shonbrunn is most generally known in the East, although he is also known to have used at least a half-dozen aliases. Born in Hungary himself, he specialized in Hungarian women. The social position of his victims disturbed him not at all. One was a domestic, one a cook, one a nursemaid and another was a prosperous and elderly widow, who owned a dance hall. Aside from the inferences to be drawn from the 21 letters, there are seven cases on record against Shonbrunn. In only four of these did he marry the woman, for in the other three instances, after promising marriage, he was able to get their money and depart without having to trouble himself with the formality of a ceremony. After the wedding he would linger with his bride just long enough to lay his hands on her savings, and then he would vanish to parts unknown. In one case he didn't get any money, but that didn't prevent his following his invariable procedure. His motto was always, "Love 'em and leave 'em!"

ST. LOUIS remembers Shonbrunn as Louis F. Schiller, who, last summer, roomed at 1047 McCausland avenue. He was neat, dapper of dress and smooth of tongue, and described himself as an efficiency expert. And he proved it, too, by courting, marrying and swindling a woman of her lifetime savings of $1400 within six weeks.

For three weeks "The Hungarian Sheik" roomed at the home of Mrs. Helen Boiz. One day he confided to her that he would like to get married and mentioned that he preferred a woman with some money. Mrs. Boiz then introduced him to Mrs. Olga Schwabel, a widow, of 2923A Sidney street. Schiller went through the routine of courting and proposing and obtaining a license. Then, says Mrs. Schwabel, he began "talking money." She became suspicious and called off the engagement.

But Schiller was a man with his heart set on matrimony, and he was not to be deterred by the shrewd widow's rebuff. Like the veteran campaigner he was, he acknowledged defeat in that quarter and set off in another direction. Shortly after the unfortunate affair with the Widow Schwabel, Schiller, the efficiency expert, was a guest at a house party on Nashville avenue. His bride-to-be, who was housekeeper at the home of O. T. Hodges, 935 Skinker road, was among the guests. They were introduced.

Schiller was a fast worker. He mentioned something about love at first sight and how people in their thirties should marry and settle down. And Schiller had a way of saying things that left no doubt about his sincerity. Thirty-eight years old, 5 feet 4 inches in height, weight 150 pounds, and bald, is the unimpressive way the police describe him; but there is no telling in what romantic light he appeared on that early June night last year as he discoursed so fluently to his 35-year-old listener. He asked permission to call on her, and did call, and soon proposed marriage. They were married at Clayton, June 16.

Three days after the wedding Schiller convinced his bride that they should have a home of their own. She then drew out the $1400 savings from the Tower Grove Bank and turned over the sum to him. Part of it was to be used to make a payment on a home and the balance to establish an office for him in the Arcade Building. He was an efficiency expert and also dealt in surgical instruments, he told her. That night Schiller called on his wife at her place of employment. The following night he failed to call. She inquired at his rooming house and learned that he had packed his grip that morning and departed for parts unknown. She also learned that no payment had been made on a home and that no office was to be opened in the Arcade Building or any other place. He had disappeared, and so had her $1400.

The skill and facility with which Shonbrunn engineered his adventures in St. Louis would hurriedly lead one to the conclusion that he was no example of the unpracticed amateur. And such a conclusion finds ample basis in fact, for a number of experiences are known to have preceded the St. Louis affair.

SHONBRUNN came to this country about 14 years ago from Miskolc, Hungary, where he was born. He brought a wife and two children with him. He was a graduate of the Franz Josef Institute of Engineering in Budapest. He could also speak six languages. How he employed his educational advantages after coming to America is not known. According to present records, he first emerged from obscurity two years ago. Then he made his first formal appearance in his present role of sheik.

One afternoon in the summer of 1924, Miss Margaret Fisher of East Eightieth street, New York City, was walking with a friend on the boardwalk at Atlantic City. Miss Fisher had been in this country about four years, and she was conversing in Hungarian. A well-dressed man who had been listening to the conversation interrupted the young women.

"Ah, you, too, are Hungarian!" he said, in the Magyar tongue, showing evident delight at having encountered people of his own race.

"You will pardon me," he went on, "but I am alone in this country, and it delights me to meet people from my own beloved Hungary. It is such a pleasure." The little group chatted gayly. He was such a witty fellow! Both young women soon found themselves laughing heartily at his clever sallies. So well dressed! So nice looking! No doubt he was a gentleman. In reply to a question, Miss Fisher told him her name.

"Well, isn't that odd," he replied, smilingly. "My name is Fisher, too!" And thereupon they became very friendly. She invited him to visit her aunt, with whom she was stopping at Atlantic City. He was delighted. He called on her frequently. He was in love with her and made no attempt to conceal it. He proposed marriage and was immediately accepted, but since this took place in Atlantic City it does not seem particularly unusual.

The young woman, now a "Mrs.," accompanied by her husband, who had told her he was an engineer, moved to Philadelphia to take up a permanent residence. They rented several rooms. Mr. "Fisher" then informed his wife that he had an important obligation to meet immediately and asked her to allow him temporary use of the $300 which she had. He was going to sell a valuable piece of property and would give her the money then. But Mrs. Fisher, being of a domestic turn of mind, refused to part with the money.

"I'm going to use this to buy furnishings for the flat," she informed him. And, good fellow that he was, he simply shrugged his shoulders.

However, Mr. Fisher failed to come home to his wife the next night. And when a week passed without a word from her spouse Mrs. Fisher was beside herself with worry. And then, one afternoon while walking on Broad street, what does she see but her husband, walking arm in arm with another woman! She immediately upbraided him and demanded an explanation. He was vague. An argument followed, Mrs. Fisher began to scream and all three were taken to the police station. This suited the young bride perfectly. Maybe if a police officer or a Magistrate would talk to her husband he wouldn't go about any more with other women and leave her to worry at home.

But, to her complete astonishment, the other woman convinced the police that she was Mrs. Shonbrunn, that the man she had been walking with was Mr. Shonbrunn, her husband and the father of her two children. This Mrs. Fisher, she told the police, was either an impostor or a lunatic. Mr. and Mrs. Shonbrunn were immediately released and Mrs. Fisher narrowly escaped being held for observation! And thus ended the romance of the Atlantic City boardwalk.

MR. SHONBRUNN'S next appearance was in New York City. It seems that in December of 1924 Miss Katy Faher, having been employed as a cook for 17 years, and finding herself fast approaching the age of 40, came to the commendable conclusion that if she was to do any more cooking it ought to be for a husband. And following a European custom, she set forth her intentions in an advertisement in the Amerikai Magyar Nepszava, the Hungarian daily. Her bold little notice declared that she would like to meet an "educated gentleman with matrimonial intentions," and added that among her own qualifications was the fact that she had "a few dollars." To be exact, Katy Faher had $8888.60 in the Immigrants' Savings Bank, which she had accumulated over a period of 17 years of drudgery and self-denial.

On December 4, two days after her advertisement had been published, Katy Faher received a letter from Waterford, New York, a town near Albany. The writer described himself as an engineer, 38 years old, in America four years and unmarried. Miss Faher was asked to write about herself in greater detail. The letter was signed Joseph Horvath. Miss Faher, pleased at having attracted so promising a prospect as an engineer, described herself with reasonable self-indulgence, and remarked that she "had a couple of dollars" which might serve as a dowry. Three days later she received a telephone call from Joseph Horvath. He said he happened to be in New York on business and would like to see her that evening. They met by appointment. They had a very pleasant chat, during which he learned just how much money she had in the bank.

SANFORD SHONBRUNN, heart-breaker. ("The Hungarian Sheik.")

A week later he saw her again and informed her that he had given up his engineering work at Waterford to devote himself to building on property he owned in New Jersey. When she visited him at his rooms in New York he opened two large valises that were filled with blueprints and sketches and told her they were the plans for the buildings going up on his property.

"The hardest part of it," he confided to her, "is financing the work. But I have only one more payment to make to get the garages up, and then the property is all mine. Then I can sell them. I expect to make a little fortune."

Katy Faher was impressed, and when Joseph Horvath proposed she accepted him, promising him that she would do all she could to help him with his building projects.

THE marriage was set for January 6, and early that morning Horvath called for his bride in a taxicab. As they approached the city hall they passed the Immigrants' Savings Bank, and Horvath had the driver stop.

"I tell you what, Katy," he said, "it may take us a long time in the city hall and the bank will be closed. Let's draw out the money now."

Katy agreed and they entered the bank. The bank teller paid out the $8888.60. Horvath picked up the money.

"I'd better take this, dear," he said, putting all the bills in his pocket. "It's too much for a woman to be carrying around. You take the change." And he gave her the 60 cents!

As they left the bank it suddenly occurred to him to ask his bride if she had had breakfast. She blushingly confessed that she had been too nervous and excited to eat. But he insisted that she take at least a cup of tea, and they entered a nearby cafeteria. He brought her the tea and then returned to the counter for his own food. Two minutes later she glanced toward the counter. Horvath had disappeared! Katy suddenly realized that she had been fleeced. Police were called, but it was too late. The swindler was not to be found.

Two months later, in March of 1925, one Leo Barna came into the life of Mrs. Julia Kish of South Norwalk, Connecticut. Mrs. Kish was a plump widow in her late forties. She lived in the Hungarian section of South Norwalk with her two daughters, and near her comfortable bungalow was Kish Hall. That section of South Norwalk is known as "Whistleville," because the many trains passing near there whistle long and fervently as they dash by. In Kish Hall "Whistleville" holds its dances and entertainments, to the profit of the Widow Kish and her two daughters, so that Mrs. Kish has become rather prosperous and an owner of properties.

LEO BARNA met Mrs. Kish. He was an engineer, he told her, and to prove it opened a suitcase and extracted numerous blueprints and sketches. He was afraid Mrs. Kish might not understand them, but he knew that the two daughters, who had been to school, would, so he explained the plans to them. The daughters understood perfectly. Those things there were pistons. That was a dynamo, and this thing here was a differential, like you have on an automobile, only a little different. Mr. Barna made it all so clear. Taken altogether, the drawings represented a great machine which Mr. Barna had just invented. He expected to make a fortune from it, because it was a device for extracting power from the ground and in time would make electricity, gas and steam completely obsolete. Just about that time Leo Barna received a letter from a big firm of patent attorneys in Washington. The letter simply acknowledged the receipt of $1 from Mr. Barna in connection with an invention which he wanted them to have patented. The letter said that the attorneys were looking into the matter and would communicate with him later. Barna showed the letter to Mrs. Kish and her two daughters. There was no doubt at all, then, that Leo—as they had come to call him—was a great inventor.

Leo, it so happens, was not only an extraordinary inventor. He was also a keen judge of feminine psychology. He promptly proposed to the Widow Kish. And Mrs. Kish, weary of her widowhood and probably reasoning that in addition to her dance hall it might be nice to have a comparatively young and attractive genius for a husband, accepted him. The couple were forthwith united by the Rev. Gabriel Dokus, pastor of the Reformed Hungarian Church. And Mr. Leo Barna took up residence at the home of the erstwhile Widow Kish.

He confided to his wife, two days after the wedding, that, although his invention was a wonder, he needed some money to have it patented. His wife promptly put a mortgage on one of her flats and turned over the $800 to the genius she had married. Next day Barna informed his wife that although he was very fond of "Whistleville," he felt that since they were going to be wealthy soon, they ought to live in a more imposing neighborhood. He announced that he had decided to devote that day to an inspection of property in South Norwalk to see if he could find anything good enough for them to build on. Mr. Barna did not come back that night. Nor the next night. Nor the next. And soon all "Whistleville" knew that the Widow Kish had been swindled.

Mrs. Barna didn't relish the particular kind of widowhood that had been imposed upon her, but she didn't abandon herself to useless grieving. She was furious at having been swindled, for, as she told the writer in a recent interview, "I don't like no man should make a damfool from me." And no one could blame her.

THEN an inspiration came to Mrs. Barna. She possessed a picture of her errant husband. She had copies of it made and one of these copies she gave to Nick Heltay, an actor in a Hungarian troupe.

"Nick, you travel around a lot," she said to her friend, "and you see many Hungarians. Maybe you'll come across that rascal. Take the picture, and if you find him have him arrested." Nick took the picture and agreed to do what he could, although he didn't put much faith in the plan. Mrs. Barna went back to her business affairs, Nick went on the road, and time passed.

Then followed the visit of a certain efficiency expert called Louis Schiller to St. Louis last summer. And that was followed, last October, by a romance in New York, in which a George Santos advertised in a Hungarian paper for a wife. As a result, he met a pretty Hungarian nursemaid, fell in love with her, proposed and was accepted. Just before the marriage he borrowed her $700 savings to complete some building on property he owned in New Jersey. She kissed him good-by when he took the train to visit his property. And that was the last she saw of him and her $700.

By that time a year had passed since Mrs. Barna had given Nick Heltay, the actor, Leo Barna's photograph. And then, one day last March, when Nick was walking along the street in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, whom does he see but Mr. Leo Barna! Nick followed him to his rooming house, but he was afraid to keep on his trail, because he had met Barna at the Kish home in South Norwalk, and was afraid he might be recognized. Nick then communicated with Bela Kalman, known in New York as "The Hungarian Sherlock Holmes." And Kalman, who had had two other complaints from women who had been swindled by a "marriage faker," hastened to Bethlehem.

He contrived to meet Barna, who was known in Bethlehem as Eugene Simons. Detective Kalman and Eugene Simons became good friends. And then Simons confided to his friend that he was going to get married the next day! He wanted to know if Kalman would act as best man. His bride was to be Marian Fonagy, who owned a Hungarian restaurant on East Fourth street. He had met her the night before, he said, and after taking her to a dance had proposed and was accepted. He had the license and was going on his honeymoon to French Lick Springs. Simons informed his friend Kalman that his bride was going to give him a dowry of $2000. Kalman agreed to act as best man. And then he went out of the house and sent a telegram.

NEXT morning Simons put on his best suit of clothes and, accompanied by Kalman, sallied forth to meet his bride. But the meeting didn't take place, because instead of finding Marian Fonagy at the rendezvous he found the former Widow Kish, looking for all the world like a storm about to break. He greeted her with effusive endearments, but his "Darling Julia" was colder than ice, and the "gentleman of many marriages" was promptly arrested and put on a train for Connecticut.

And although Sanford Shonbrunn, as he is known at the Fairfield County Jail, was a man of no known vices, who applied himself assiduously to his business, and who did all his courting while walking in parks or on sidewalks (and in picture shows only when it rained); who never wasted his money on expensive gifts of jewelry or candy or flowers—this model man, with a pronounced genius for invention, after all owes his downfall to women. But this much must be said for him: He succeeded where many other husbands have failed. Out of marriage he made a paying proposition. And to any young man who itches to emulate his late career, Mr. Sanford Shonbrunn has only one bit of advice: "Beware of widows!"

The Klondyke Would Never Recognize This Goggled Crew Roaring Across the Desert in High-Powered Automobiles to the West's Latest Strike of Pay Dirt. The Story of the Booming Town of Gold Dust, California.

John and Edward Herkelrath, cousins, who made the discovery.

By A. L. WOOLDRIDGE
Special Post-Dispatch Correspondent

KRAMER, California.—For thirty years Edward Herkelrath and his cousin John toiled over the Rocky Mountain range and into the Mojave Desert north of San Bernardino, California, searching for gold. It was there, somewhere, they were positive. After the spring rains had shifted the light sands, little flakes of the yellow metal could be found where the water had eddied and occasionally a piece of quartz came into view.

On the side of the range a few miles away were three of the most famous mines in America—the Yellow Aster, producing gold; the California Rand, producing silver, and the Atolia, which has yielded the greatest amount of tungsten of any mine in the world.

"I know dog-goned well," Edward Herkelrath said, "that all the quartz in this Mojave ain't in them three mines. There's more of it and I'm goin' t' find it!"

So he and John prospected along, year after year. Edward's wife came out occasionally and encouraged him in his search. But most of the time the two men plodded their way alone with their burros, sweltering in the blistering heat by day and rolling up in blankets at night, with only the star-lit firmament over their heads. It was a lonely, care-free existence. Once in a while they found metal—prospects which seemed to offer possibilities. But never in the paying quantities of which they dreamed. Occasionally, one of the two would go to San Bernardino and file mining claims to preserve the rights to their inconsequential finds. Then they would plod on again, panning, digging, searching. They built themselves a shack as a base of operations and called it "home." And the years were passing.

The brothers did most of their prospecting in what is known as Victor Valley, 27 miles north of Adelanto and in the rolling hills surrounding this little town of Kramer, a tank station on the Santa Fe, midway between Barstow and Mojave. Here, 29 years ago, A. Bercham, a miner, sank the first shaft ever put down in the district, and took out about $65,000 in gold. But he suddenly quit, abandoned the hole and went over to the vicinity of Randsburg, where, with two others, he located the famous Yellow Aster. He made millions. The little shaft near Kramer was forgotten. Its yield was too small to bother with.

MANY, many times Edward and John Herkelrath passed that little claim far out on the desert. Part of the old windlass which had been used to lift the buckets of ore still stood there. The old dump pile had baked in the sun till it took on the colorings of the surrounding soil and much of it was covered with a coating of sand. Everyone believed the mine had petered out. Why else, the "desert rats" argued, would Bercham have abandoned it? So they passed it by.

A few months ago, while filing some claims in San Bernardino, Edward Herkelrath discovered, much to his surprise, that the 160 acres where Bercham sank his 70-foot shaft was deeded property and not Government land. He learned that the title was in the name of Mrs. Charity B. Kelly and that she lived in the very same town he then was in. He hunted her up and bought it for a nominal sum.

"We've got 160 acres of ground now," he said to John, "and we're goin' to get somethin' out of it."

Their shack was pitched on their own land and with renewed interest they went to work. They uncovered a fairly rich vein of ore. All their own! Then they found another mining shaft, not sunk very deep, which apparently had suddenly been abandoned. At the bottom three holes had been drilled for dynamite charges, but explosives never had been placed in the holes.

"Let's shoot 'em," one of the cousins said, "and see what we get."

Four bits' worth of dynamite was carefully tamped into the holes. A fuse was inserted and ignited and the men withdrew to a safe distance to await results. There came a dull, muffled rumble and pieces of stone belched from the mouth of the mine. When the gases had cleared they clambered inside. At the bottom was a jumble. The dynamite charges had been accurately placed and tons of stone and earth were loosened.

The men filled a bucket and returned to the surface. Anxiously they began examining the stone. A streak of green here, a cluster of brown there, some crystallic formations as well. And then——

Edward Herkelrath stopped! He looked closer. A tiny piece of yellow sparkled in the sun. Then another, and another. He hastily picked up a second piece. Again the glistening; again "the thrill that comes once in a lifetime!"

"Gold!" he shouted.

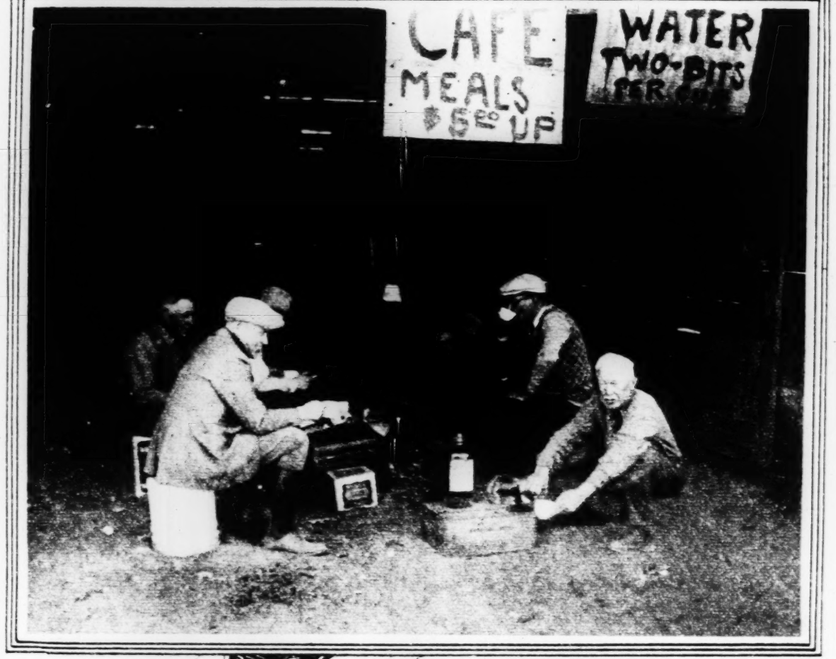
"Gold!" echoed John.

They pawed over the pieces in the bucket and everywhere was gold! Their long search appeared to be ended.

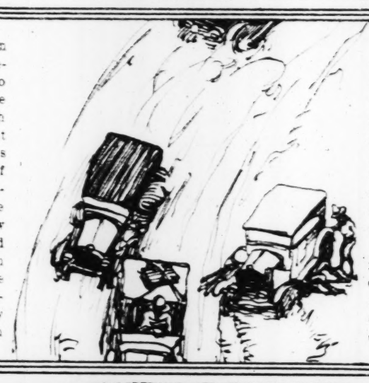
THAT was January 18, last. The discovery was kept secret. No one was told of the find. But, somehow, such things always "leak out." And news of the discovery of gold spreads like wildfire. Before John Herkelrath and Edward Herkelrath were able to get material to their mine for properly exploring the vein, other prospectors suddenly started coming in. An item appeared in a Los Angeles newspaper telling of the discovery and man's irrepressible lust for gold began asserting itself. The influx started.

Probably at no time in the history of the world has such a strange stampede been seen as that which has occurred and is still in progress on the Mojave Desert of California. The '49ers who harked to the golden lure crossed the plains behind yokes of oxen and teams of mules. The rush to the Yukon was accomplished on snowshoes and behind teams of malemutes. The trek into Nevada when Goldfield and Tonopah came into existence was made principally with burros over almost unbeaten trails. But the trek to Kramer, on the Mojave, is in motor cars. Flivvers of the vintage of 1911, cut-down Fords, stripped trucks, roadsters, touring cars, coupes and expensive limousines are in a mad rush to the new field. The 27-mile stretch of sandy road between Adelanto and the Herkelrath claim rapidly degenerated into a hopeless shamble and machines big and small have attempted to plow their way across the desert. Many are out there now, abandoned, with broken wheels or broken springs or sunk into sand up to the hubs. The cry of their owners is—"On to the gold field any way we can!"

Word was passed along the line that W. M. Miller and his partner, in less than five hours, had uncovered rich ore in a claim adjoining the Herkelraths. Then came the story that C. J. Whitlock, proprietor of Summit Inn, on the Victorville highway, above Cajon Pass, had sunk a shaft 26 feet and found ore running $400 a ton. These were followed by other similar reports and served to madden the cavalcade of men struggling to get into the field. Just as it was in the Yukon, it was "every man for himself," with no help offered or sought. During the first Sunday in April approximately 10,000 gold seekers arrived in the field and 2000 motor cars were checked up by Mrs. Muriel Lyons, secretary of the Adelanto Chamber of Commerce, on the single road through there alone. Thousands of others went into the desert by way of Randsburg and Mojave. Clouds of flying sand told of the wild race.



Gold Dust's first cafe. Rough, but expensive.



The prospectors are out there now, feverishly scraping the ground and staking out claims, and the field has taken on the aspect of mining camps when gold was discovered on Sutter Creek three-quarters of a century ago. Only there is no creek, no water! The entire supply for drinking purposes is hauled in and is being sold for 25 cents a cup. Enough to fill a radiator costs $15.

From a lonely waste strewn with rocks and sand, this particular spot on the Mojave has been transformed into a feverish mining camp, with thousands of gold seekers staking out claims. Within ten days after news of the discovery was made public, every foot of ground for a distance of ten miles in each direction from the Herkelrath shaft had been filed upon. Professional "locators" who had maps and charts of the terrain set up business and began reaping a harvest from the tenderfeet.

Saturday, April 3, a delegation of mining engineers from Los Angeles, headed by A. G. Keating, president and founder of the Big Jim Mining Company, arrived. They went directly to the Herkelrath shaft and asked permission to make an investigation. There were Edward L. Haff, United States Mineral Surveyor; Arthur J. Bandy, vice president and general manager of the Hovey-Bandy Company, and J. Parker Thompson, a very widely known mining man. Hundreds of spectators stood around the mouth of the shaft while the engineers were making their inspection, realizing that in all probability the future of the camp rested on whether or not the engineers would approve the property. When Keating climbed down the shaft he extended his hand to Edward Herkelrath and said:

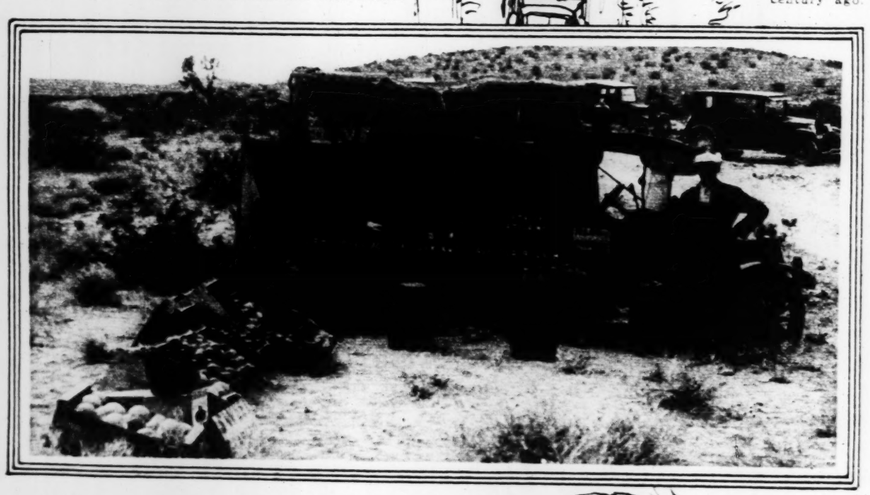
Keating immediately began negotiating for the property and obtained an option at a figure reported to be well over $1,000,000. Before the engineers departed they christened the camp "Gold Dust" and it will bear this name when a postoffice is established.

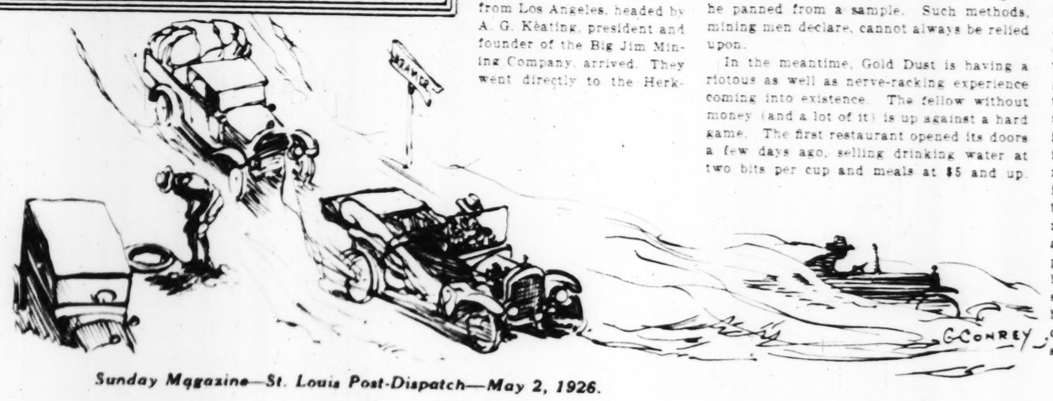
JUST how valuable the "pay dirt" is no one definitely knows. Some of it is directly under the sagebrush roots and ranges down to a depth the extent of which cannot be estimated. Men who have made gold mining a life study prophesy that the new camp will be the biggest thing since Goldfield, which had its boom early in 1900. The ore is of a yellow-brownish color and is known as porphyry, mixed with some rhyolite and some pegmatite intrusions. A tenderfoot would say that it had the appearance of hard clay. It is very easily broken up and the gold is in very small flakes. Very few nuggets have been found. Practically every miner at the diggings will tell how he is uncovering ore that will run all the way from $500 to $3000 a ton. Mining engineers, however, point out that such statements, while perhaps made in absolute good faith, are not accurate. The price a ton of ore is worth can be determined only by assay, and there has been very little assay work done thus far at Gold Dust.

To assay ore costs money and, in addition, takes time. A prospector uncovers some ore on his claim, pans a little of it out, it appears to "run color," and he then announces it is worth so many dollars per ton, basing his estimate on the amount of gold he panned from a sample. Such methods, mining men declare, cannot always be relied upon.

In the meantime, Gold Dust is having a riotous as well as nerve-racking experience coming into existence. The fellow without money (and a lot of it) is up against a hard game. The first restaurant opened its doors a few days ago, selling drinking water at two bits per cup and meals at $5 and up.



THE first grocery store to arrive at Gold Dust. The goods shown in the photograph sold for $5000.



The restaurant is little more than a lean-to which protects the customers from the sun and wind. Patrons sit on boxes or on the ground and get their food on paper plates. The first grocery store rolled in a few days ago on wheels. At the prices the proprietor is charging, he possibly carried a $5000 stock. On a Ford!

SCARCELY had the rush begun before gamblers and bootleggers were coming in. By the light of lanterns in the evening now, the dice games start and men, flushed with the excitement of gold, play big stakes. Sheriff Walter Shay of San Bernardino County has appointed a special deputy to represent him in the field, and, while there are plenty of six-guns in sight, thus far there has been little trouble. Some reports of claim jumping have trickled in, but the law of the desert seems to prevail and most every man knows it behooves him to keep his hands off of the other fellow's property.

The Herkelrath cousins have been forced to rope off the ground immediately about the mouth of their shaft. So many persons wanted "samples," not only to preserve as souvenirs, but to find what kind of dirt the Herkelraths are working in, that their presence became a nuisance.

There are but few tents as yet and but three shacks in the field. Most everyone is sleeping in his motor car until he can get supplies from town. Kramer is seven miles away. George McCarthy and W. S. Hefler, hotel men from Santa Monica, have announced their intention of erecting "Hotel Gold Dust" immediately, but they admit that the caravansary at first will be a very rough affair, equipped with cots. The population of the place is now thoroughly cosmopolitan. There are tenderfeet—flocks of them. There are "sourdoughs" who have hunted gold all the way from the land beyond Chilcoot Pass to Tonopah and there are men of means waiting to take options on or buy outright any good strikes which develop. About the only really contented men in all the field are the Herkelraths.

"Just say for me," said Edward, "I am not going to sell any stock, don't need any money for development and have enough of my own to carry on activities here. I can get all the money I want out of this shaft."

By his side stood his wife, bronzed somewhat from her stay in the desert, and smiling in happiness.

"The money won't change me a particle," she said. "No matter how much we get I will always love the desert, and, regardless of what fine houses I may have in the city, I will always have a cabin in these parts. I don't expect to go in for society and we will not put on any fancy airs. We will always be just as we are today."

JOHN HERKELRATH, however, appears to be a little more liberal in his plans. He is 56 years old, unmarried, and admits he is receiving a bale of "mash notes" from women.

"I don't know," he says, "if everything turns out right, but what I'll get married."

He seems to feel that a man who has put in nearly a third of a century in the lonely spaces is entitled to a mate when he has acquired substantial comforts.

"Who," Edward Herkelrath was asked, "was the man talking to you so long this morning just beyond the shaft?"

"A fellow trying to sell me a $14,000 automobile," he replied. "I told him that for the present, at least, I'd stick to the tin lizzie."

Motor cars are still pouring into the new gold field at the rate of about 250 a day. Many of the occupants are sightseers, but a lot of them come prepared to pitch camp and start digging. All want to get as close to the Herkelrath shaft as possible, but all ground within sight of the claim has been taken. More stores on wheels are expected to arrive forthwith and traders begin seeking profits. The thing which is commanding greatest attention, however, is the announcement that three dance halls will be in operation just as soon as material for building them can be brought in from the railroad. Then Gold Dust will blossom into a real mining town. The townsite is expected to be laid out on the Herkelrath land, but Edward is firm in his stand that there shall be no saloons. Which means that bootleggers will supply the alcoholic needs of the camp. At 25 cents a drink—the same price as water!

A Familiar Symphony

"GIT off my lawn!"

The distant voice of a nature lover penetrated the stillness of the night. It was the same voice which had penetrated the stillness of the morning.

"Git off my lawn!" it requested again. "You and your number thirteen dogs! Do you think I planted three tons of bluegrass seed to cultivate a carpet to your front door? Git off my lawn, I tell you, or I'll come down there and bury you under it."

"Papa's coming," deduced the Giffly children. "That's Mr. O'Laughlin bawling him out for tramping across his terrace."

There was a rapid-fire exchange of compliments—followed by the noise of a stumbling body, a crash, and then a soliloquy in Sanscrit. Little Minerva rushed to the window and threw the curtains aside.

"Mamma!" she called. "There's a pack-horse coming up the front steps."

"That ain't no pack-horse," corrected little Montgomery. "That's the old man. He's been buying a few things for the household. Here comes the scourge of the bargain counters."

"There goes the eggs!" remarked Minerva, as another crash was heard. "I hope he saved one for my breakfast."

"BOOH! Eggs never make a noise like that," said Montgomery. "Them's phonograph records. One! Two! Three! That finishes 'em!" he groaned. "I guess we'll have to listen to that banana song a couple of million more times."

"Don't worry," advised Minerva. "Pop usually anticipates this calamity and buys the same selections in sheet music."

Throwing the door open, Mrs. Giffly observed that her husband had been attempting to open it with the key to his cigar cabinet.

"Come in, Hobart," she greeted. "The children are in the mood for a good fairy story."

"Don't irritate me. I just killed a conductor," puffed Hobart, as he dived for the aftermath of the evening meal. "Look what's here," he continued, "reminiscence of chicken and shadow of asparagus." It was a cold reception, but a colder supper.

"Did you throttle that conductor, or knife him?" demanded little Montgomery, as his father helped himself to the reminiscence.

"Why, some trolley-car admiral tried to tell me my transfer was no good—me, with my arms full of bundles—so I gave him one in the eye. You see, I had been carrying this transfer in my teeth because my arms were occupied, and I accidentally punched a hole in it. I bit the transfer two hours early. I explained the case to the fathead, but he wouldn't believe me, so I argued for six blocks and then popped him. I hope I didn't kill him," concluded Hobart, "because I have never killed a conductor in my life and I wouldn't want to start now."

"THAT-A-BOY, pop," said little Montgomery. "You intrigue me. Sounds like Gulliver's travels."

"Let me have your shopping list, and we'll take an inventory," ordered Gertie. "Now, then, where's my hat?"

"There," said Hobart, pointing with his fork.

"That isn't a hat," said Gertie, "that's a lampshade."

"Clout him, maw," urged little Montgomery. "Look, there's only one eye to blacken this evening, as somebody else has frescoed the other one. Where'd you get it, pop?"

"I got it with the silk stockings," replied Hobart. "I left the shop by a revolving door, through which some other guy took a notion to come in."

"I see you have a question mark after the words 'silk stockings,'" observed Gertie. "What was the matter? Didn't you know the size?"

"Sure, I knew the size, all right. I was just wondering what became of them."

"Soak him, maw," begged Montgomery. "If that ain't an overt act I never heard of one. He sounds like Baron Munchausen."

DELIVER IN THE REAR

By Elwood D. Ullman Jr.

"Anyhow," said Hobart, "I've got this department store attacking down to a science. After I got a pound of smelts for tomorrow's breakfast I crossed the street to Grogan's for your hosiery. There is a crowd of women milling around the counter. What do I do? I don't mix with them—not me—I just loiters around the edge of the crowd, because they throw more stockings over their heads than they buy. I crawls around on my hands and knees until I finds a pair, and then I gets up waving a $2 bill. That's all there was to it. I chose two pink ones, but when I got outside I discovered they didn't match. I guess one of them faded when it was exposed to the sunlight.

"Don't get angry," he continued. "I lost them, so it doesn't make any difference."

The father nursed his feet. "I got spiked in the hoof when one of those bargain-counter Amazons attacked me for gypping her out of her place. Maybe you think a French heel doesn't make an impression. I would rather try to steal second base on Hans Wagner."

"Why the shoelace tied around your finger?" asked Gertie.

"Oh, that was a reminder to buy a pair of shoelaces," said Hobart, "only I forgot it at the time."

"Look-a-here," broke in little Montgomery, who was examining the cargo. "He calls this three pounds of beets, and there's only two little ones here, or I'm a porpoise."

"What's a beet?" asked Minerva.

"A beet," answered Montgomery, "is a reinforced plum with whiskers."

"The bag leaked or there would have been more of them," explained Hobart. "I would walk down the street and every once in a while—bloomp!—there went a beet. It was impossible for me to stop the avalanche, as I would have dropped everything else. I wish Mr. Burbank had invented a beet that came ready-boiled.

"Had a tough time with the street cars. The first six passed me up, while the motorman yelled after me to hail a dray-wagon. Reminded me of that time last winter when I had to ride home on a rotary snowplow.

"With my knowledge of jiu-jitsu, I finally fought my way aboard a street car. She started with a lurch, and I was ricocheted down the aisle. I made a flying leap for a strap and caught it with the tips of my fingers, and I was swinging up and down and sideswiping people in the chin when the conductor approached and told me they didn't allow trapeze performers to practice during the rush hour.

"FINALLY, I collapsed into a vacant seat, which I won by a fifth of a second. A disappointed woman stood over me and reached for a hatpin and I thought I was a goner, so I shut my eyes and commenced to mumble over the city ordinances. The guy next to me was a cross-word puzzle fanatic, and he would put down a word and shake his fountain pen over my lap and put down another word and shake the pen again. I was powerless to move, so I told him in a polite voice I had a pencil he was welcome to use if he would reach in my inside pocket. However, he refused, and the woman in the aisle laughed harshly and said she hoped he drowned me.

"You should have thrown a beet at her," suggested little Montgomery.

"Summing everything up," said Gertie, "I find that the only thing you brought home intact was the waffle iron."

There came an ominous ring at the door. Silence descended over the household. Gertie gasped and Hobart assumed a martyred expression like that of Daniel when they served him to the lions.

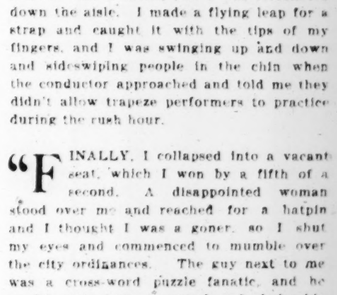
"Cheese it, pop," whispered little Montgomery, "that's probably a bull coming to pinch you for bumping off that conductor."

"A Giffly, my son, never runs away," said Hobart rising. "He walks away calmly."

A red-jerseyed man entered the room and exhibited a tiny package between the thumb and forefinger of his left hand. "Grogan's Department Store," he announced. "Here are your shoestrings, sir. You forgot 'em."

And so ended Mr. Giffly's punitive expedition.

It is impossible to get men to do two things—wash dishes and run errands. There was only one successful errand boy in history—a chap named Mercury—but our mythology states he had such big ears he could fly like an airplane.



Brown: "Look here Jones, this is the fifth time I have had to ask you for the sovereign I lent you!"

Jones: "But, my dear fellow—think how many times I had to ask you for it!"—

LEAP FROG

BY Walter Trumbull

Life Already Was Complex Enough for "Apple," Nine Years Old and Never Still a Minute. Then Cranky Aunt Etta Came to Visit, and So Did Uncle George, a Stranger From the West. Naturally, a Series of Disasters Ensued.

THERE was as yet in the bright lexicon of James Appleton Martin no such word as "vocabulary." Had there been he would have asserted that as applied to grown persons it contained but two words. One of them was "Don't." The other "Stop."

Apple—thus to distinguish him from his father, who was also James Appleton Martin—would have told you that in the nine years of his life he had heard them a million times. This very Sunday morning had added considerably to the total. For example there was the matter of the goldfish. The goldfish were inclosed in a bowl where they spent most of their time either hiding under some tangled green stuff or sticking their noses against the glass and working their mouths in a manner that corresponded to making faces. Apple knew that this in itself was reprehensible. Giving the matter his attention, it gradually developed that the bowl could be turned into a very fair race-course—about two thousand laps to the mile—and with the aid of a war relic in the shape of a knitting-needle, the fish could be induced to proceed around it at exciting speed. Unfortunately, just as one contestant seemed on the point of turning the sprint into a steeplechase by hurdling some green sprigs, the reform party arrived in the person of Apple's mother.

Apple gave himself over to reflection. Since coming to this house in the country, Sunday had usually been a most enjoyable day. On other days his father left early for the city and returned, tired, just in time for dinner. Sundays he was home and, moreover, was willing to take walks or read aloud or play games. Things were cheery. But this Sunday, although outside the sun beat down glitteringly, was wrapped in an atmosphere of gloom. Aunt Etta was coming.

HAVING spent one full minute in absolute repose, Apple turned sideways and extended a leg. There was a book on the couch and after considerable effort he worked the toe of his shoe under it. Aimlessly he raised the book and lowered it. This was a queer world of little understanding. Withdrawing his support from the book, he pushed it from him with a flirt of his ankle. There was no animus behind the push. It was merely a gesture of protest against things in general, but the couch was covered with chintz, a slippery and unreliable material. Thus even a gentle push was adequate to achieve results. The book slid far enough to touch a small, uncovered work-basket.

In the nature of inanimate objects such as pies, cakes, ash-receivers or any container filled with small articles, there is a quirk which prevents them, when attracted by gravity, from falling right side up. The basket was no exception. With deliberation it performed a half-circle in the air and deposited upon the floor thimble, scissors, pins, needles and various spools, which rolled hastily in all directions. Of the three persons in the room only one remained seated. The others rose so rapidly that it might almost be said that they jumped from their chairs. They spoke in chorus. "Appleton!"

"It seems as if I simply couldn't keep this house picked up," complained Mrs. Martin.

Apple looked at her in honest amazement. Picked up, indeed! Since the letter announcing Aunt Etta's visit he felt that the picking-up process had passed all limits. A fellow got into trouble if he laid anything down for a minute. Yes, Aunt Etta undoubtedly was responsible for this picking up, although with the telegram stating that Uncle George also was on the way to visit them it was intensified.

HERE was an unknown menace. Apple had never seen his Uncle George. But when a swimmer is out over his head the actual depth of the water makes little difference. Uncle George couldn't add much to Aunt Etta. To be exact, he was a great-uncle, just as Aunt Etta was a great-aunt—relationships were involved as fractions.

Apple forsook the couch. It seemed best to get into another atmosphere.

Being careful not to hit any of the furniture on the way out, he went into the hall, where he paused for a moment. Against the door lay a spool of heavy thread, which had evaded the recent search-party. Gathering it up with the intention of returning it to the basket, Apple decided against that course and added it to the collection in his pocket. Then he made his way to the porch and sat down on the steps. It was one of the first hot, still days of the season, and through the open windows of the living room came the sound of voices. Apple craned an ear.

"Apple just must behave this time," he heard his mother say. "I don't know what's the matter. Every time Aunt Etta comes he seems possessed."

"He'll behave or I'll know the reason why," asserted Mr. Martin.

"You remember last time, Jim, when he spilled the ink on her, she threatened to leave."

"She's always threatening to leave or to change her will, Amy," his father continued in a voice that was somewhat halting. "You mustn't think that I don't appreciate what your aunt does for us. I do—but I always wish I could make enough so it didn't matter. I'd like to give you everything in the world. I work as hard as I know how."

His father's tone made Apple feel queer inside. Maybe it made his mother feel that way, too, for she answered quickly, "Oh, Jim, don't you see that's just it? I have all I want, but I can't bear to have you work so hard and come home all tired and worn. And there's Apple."

THERE was an instant of silence. So that was it! Aunt Etta was good to his mother and mysteriously had it in her power to keep his father from working so hard, and he had almost ruined everything. He never had meant to, but that didn't seem to make any difference. Apple's heart was like lead. Nevertheless, he listened when the conversation was resumed.

"It wouldn't be so bad if it wasn't for your Uncle George. Why in the world," almost wailed Mrs. Martin, "did they have to pick the same time to visit us?"

"I couldn't help it," said Mr. Martin defensively. "He had a row with my grandfather and left home before I was born—but, after all, I'm the only near relative he has left. I couldn't wire him not to come."

"Of course you couldn't. But you know Aunt Etta. And goodness knows what your Uncle George is like!"

"I'm sury I don't. I never saw him. He used to write father once in a coon's age from the West somewhere. Looks as if he'd been forty years making enough to pay his fare back. We sure had trouble enough without adding some old chap who likely wears a cowboy hat and hair pants. He and your Aunt Etta will mix like alcohol and Mr. Volstead."

"That's just it. It's what I'm afraid of."

"Well," said Mr. Martin, "I suppose it's about time to start for the station."

Apple's spirits rose a little. Going first to the garage, he inspected some tin cans of varying sizes, scrupulously covered with shingles or irregularly shaped pieces of glass. The garter snake appeared to be doing well, and so did the field-mouse. Apple spent some time over the can containing the snake-worms. It was half full, and when stirred to action the worms wriggled in fascinating and intricate designs. Then, emerging from the shed and half circling it, he came to the main exhibit.

This was a frog, a large and fine specimen of the breed. To Apple his value was increased by the elaborate preparations made for his health and comfort. A plot of ground, perhaps four feet square, had been fenced with wire screening and boards. This barrier rose to a height above a small boy's waist, for the leaping powers of frogs are known to the most uneducated.

Within the inclosure was everything the heart of a frog could ask. The swimming pool (an agate-ware wash-basin) was sunk flush with the ground and contained half a brick, intended to serve as easy-chair or diving platform.

In spite of all its advantages, the frog seemed morose. True, he was using the swimming-pool, but not in any gay or sprightly manner. Motionless as the brick, the web-footed tenant sprawled on the side of the basin with only solemn eyes under bulging brows and a nose-tip above water. Thus, while the frog could hardly be expected to sense that Aunt Etta was on the way, it was evident that the general depression emanating from the house had cast its shadow afar. Just then he was hailed from a window by his mother.

"If you are going to stay out in that sun, you'd better get your cap," she called. "It's too hot to go around bareheaded."

APPLE didn't think it was hot, but here was an idea—perhaps that was the trouble with the frog. Leaning over the pen, Apple removed the occupant. Now there were convulsive signs of life, but he did his best to stifle them in wrappings of his handkerchief and tucked the uneasy bundle inside his linen coat. Thus in all safety the party penetrated the interior and came to Apple's room.

These were not his regular quarters on the second floor, as those had been requisitioned for Uncle George, but a room on the floor above. The move had been too speedy to admit of the transfer of many valuable and interesting objects, but he had managed to salvage a collection of boxes. In one of the boxes Apple sequestered the frog. A second hazardous but successful expedition yielded a small lump of ice, which was placed in a soup-dish. With the peace of spirit of one who closes the door upon a good deed, Apple descended to the living-room. His timing was practically perfect. The visitors were arriving.

Usually, when Aunt Etta landed, Apple was the rearmost of the reception committee, but now he was there at the foot of the stairs before Mr. Martin had brought the car to a full stop. His aunt, sitting stiffly, as was her custom, shared the front seat with his father, but for her Apple had scarcely a glance. The person he desired to see was Uncle George. Large, smooth-faced, gray-haired, Uncle George wore neither a wide-brimmed hat nor hair pants. The waist of his light suit was not encircled by a cartridge belt, and there appeared to be no lasso concealed about him.

A hearty voice sounded as the passenger in the rear seat clambered out briskly.

"Hello, son! I'm your Uncle George. Come here and let's get a look at you."

"Appleton, where are your manners?" broke in Aunt Etta impatiently. "You haven't kissed me."

Uncle George looked sharply at his fellow visitor as Apple with a hasty peck at an offered cheek repaired this omission. Mrs. Martin came hurrying to welcome her guests.

They went into the house. Mrs. Martin showed Aunt Etta to her room and Mr. Martin carried up her belongings. Uncle George set his bag in the hall and, followed by Apple, turned into the living-room.

"Well, old-scout," he said, seating himself, "what's on your mind?"

HE could not have used a happier expression. There was something on Apple's mind and, thus encouraged, he proceeded to get it off. In his earnestness he leaned against the arm of his uncle's chair. "Were you ever a cowboy?" he inquired.

Uncle George was a man of quick understanding. "Sure. I was a cowboy. The first job I had out yonder was punching cows."

Apple was relieved. In spite of his clothes Uncle George was a real Westerner.

"Does your aunt visit you often?"

"Yes," replied Apple, speaking as he felt, "pretty often." Then, as if an explanation was required, he added in a burst of confidence, "She's good to my mother—and father has to work so hard."

This appeared to be a little involved, but Uncle George asked no further questions. Instead he put his hand into his pocket and drew out something that glittered.

"As I understand it," he said, "uncles are always supposed to bring their nephews presents, so we may as well start in right. See how much you can buy with this."

Apple, finding himself holding a gold piece, was overwhelmed. "Oh, thank you," he stammered.

At this moment Mrs. Martin and Aunt Etta and Mr. Martin entered together. It was Aunt Etta who spoke.

"You'd better not let Appleton play with that. He'll lose it."

"That's his lookout," replied Uncle George somewhat shortly. "It belongs to him."

What threatened to be an instant of uncomfortable silence was broken by the announcement of luncheon.

As the meal started conversation was resumed. A journey from Massachusetts was far from comfortable. Several faults might be found with it. Aunt Etta found them all. Inspired by her conversation and the food—for Frieda could cook—she thawed, and when spaghe appeared was positi ly cheery.

Apple, too, fav spaghetti, but it hard to get on to fork. Squirming wriggling from plate, it evaded ture. Warmly em rassed and feeling all eyes must be cused on his efforts, sought to relieve the situation by offering his first contribution to the conversation.

"It's just like my can of angleworms."

Shades of Italy! Aunt Etta, who had rolled a streamer of spaghetti and was seeking to get it to her mouth, dropped her fork, turned a gentle shade of green and made queer noises in her throat.

"Appleton! Leave the table," commanded Mr. Martin.

Apple sought his old refuge on the front steps. Voices from the living room finally brought the information that luncheon was over, but something in their quality hinted that even now all was not well. No straining of the ears was necessary, for the voices were raised—and they were those of Uncle George and Aunt Etta. Aunt Et ta's voice was shriller, but Uncle George's was louder. Now and then could be heard fragmentary remarks from the Martins. These, soothing in quality, were more or less like the lullaby sung in the midst of a barrage. Then came Aunt Etta's voice, razor-edged. "I do not think, sir, I care to continue the discussion. Amy, I shall go to my room."

Consternation held Apple rigid. He knew that inflection. Not only was Aunt Etta very angry, but she was mad at Uncle George. If Aunt Etta left, Uncle George would be blamed. It was even possible that Uncle George himself would be sent away. This must be. Something must be done—quickly. But what? Panic gave way to relief. Perhaps he could square Uncle George. While most of the village stores were closed on Sunday, the drug-store would be open.

It was a warm, dusty Apple who returned about a half-hour later to find Mr. Martin and Uncle George sitting on the porch. They had been there ever since he left and, while they had exchanged views on many topics, it might be noted that they never once had referred to the absent ladies. It was Apple who brought them into the conversation.

Glad to find that both his father and uncle eyed him kindly, he hastened to call their attention to a parcel he was carrying. "It's a present for Aunt Etta," he said. "Wait, I'll show you."

Carefully unwrapping the paper he brought to light a bottle. It was a rather ordinary bottle, but it had a saucy dress. That was what caught Apple's eye. Labeled in crimson letters was the promise:

"No Mosquito Will Bite You."

"There was a mosquito in my room just last night," explained Apple eagerly, "but the man says if you rub this on they won't come near you. Of course it was your money," he added gratefully, "and I got mother a pencil with her name on it." A hint of shyness crept into his voice. "I got some presents for you and father, too."

FROM a pocket he produced cigars and extended them, one to each of his listeners. They were short, pudgy cigars, a little dusty looking and very black, but Uncle George reacted for his enthusiastically.

"Just exactly what I've been wishing for! I certainly do thank you," he said. Then, as he looked into Apple's glowing face, "But didn't you buy anything for yourself?"

"Not yet. Now I'll take Aunt Etta's present to her." Crumpling the paper hurriedly about the bottle he dashed into the house.

"I hope she appreciates it," said his father, adding, as he noticed that his companion had produced a match, "you don't have to smoke that terrible cigar."

"Nothing for himself, eh? I'd smoke it if it killed me," declared Uncle George. Suddenly he threw back his head. "Citronella!"

"APPLE felt the bottle going. His frantic clutch served only to accelerate its downward speed. Almost as if hurled, it struck at Aunt Etta's feet and disintegrated."

—and he shook with laughter.

It was infectious. As they laughed together the younger man felt the real pull of kinship. "It's a peace offering," he chuckled, "for what he said at the table. But, you know," he went on more seriously, "it was pretty bad. Aunt Etta will never eat spaghetti again."

"What of it?" inquired Uncle George. "There are other things she can eat. It's none of my business, Jim, but what's the idea of all this kowtowing to that old woman?"

"Well," began Mr. Martin a little apologetically, "she's always been good to Amy——"

"SO I've heard," interrupted Uncle George, "but I haven't noticed her being good to anybody. She's certainly made Apple's life miserable all day. Poor little kid!"

"You don't understand. She's about the only one left of my wife's family—took her in after her mother died—and some day she'll leave her all she has."

Apple's father, who wasn't so very old himself, flushed. "I don't want you to think that it's for myself that I care. We were married pretty young and she opposed it. She never liked me and"—with a sudden burst of candor—"I'm not very fond of her. But, you see, I'll probably never make a lot—just go along working for somebody all the rest of my life. So I feel that I haven't the right to take away from Amy and Apple anything she can give them."

"Why don't you start in for yourself?"

"Because it might be years before I made as much as I am making now. I've never dared take the chances. Amy has to economize too much as it is." He spoke a little bitterly. "Competition is keen here in the East. You need more than a willingness to work to build up a business. You need capital and pull—and I haven't got them."

Here came an interruption. The sharp tap of heels preceded the appearance of Apple's mother. One glance at her was a guarantee that something had occurred.

Even to a small boy in a hurry a flight of stairs is a fairly stiff grade. Apple had slackened a little as he reached the top, but there he again got under way and made the turn through the door of Aunt Etta's room at a speed startling to the occupants. Mrs. Martin was standing at the window looking out, but Aunt Etta was enthroned in a straight-backed chair directly facing him. For the issuing of edicts or the acceptance of tribute, she could not have been more perfectly placed. As Apple skidded to a stop she leaned back, raising her hands. Only eager friendliness was in his face as he thrust a paper-covered object at her, yet she reacted as might a Czarina confronted suddenly by the bearer of a bomb. Apple hastened to reassure her.

"It's for you," he said. "Uncle George—he bought it, and"——

Then came the deluge. Held firmly at the top, the paper opened at the bottom. Apple felt the bottle going. His frantic clutch served only to accelerate its downward speed. Almost as if hurled it struck at Aunt Etta's feet and disintegrated. The contents did its bit by the rug and various articles of furniture, but concentrated—she being in the direct line of fire—on Aunt Etta. No mosquito ever born of larva would have been bold enough to annoy her then. Like the victims of the first gas attack, she clapped her handkerchief to her mouth and nose. The present which was to soothe Aunt Etta had failed in its mission.

STRICKEN, Apple turned. His exit was not retarded by the sight of Aunt Etta rising from her chair. Climbing to the floor above he tried manfully to swallow the lump in his throat. He had failed Uncle George.

The closing of the door of his room behind him was the clang of a prison gate. His bed was a prison cot. Miserably he threw himself upon it, a small bundle, face hidden in a curving arm.

But presently a sound forced itself upon his consciousness. There it was again. "Plop!" Silence and another "Plop!"

The frog! Apple had forgotten him. Wearily he went over to the box. Yes, there was the frog, hopping dourly along inclosing walls—a captive, too. Apple was deeply affected. It wasn't just. This prisoner at least should be free.

The door was technically barred; but there was the window. Prisoners often escaped by means of rope. Naturally he felt in his pocket and his fingers encountered the spool, salvaged earlier in the day. What could be done? First the frog was fitted with three suspenders. Through these was passed another thread, long and doubled. Now all was ready and the escaping bird—having shown great uneasiness during the preparations—was gently thrust over the sill.

But as Apple leaned from the window he noticed directly beneath some garden tools against the house. The teeth of a rake stuck out wickedly. It would never do to lower it there. A more suitable spot was a mound of cut grass which promised a perfect landing place, lay a few feet out from the house and a little to one side.

THIS made it necessary to swing the frog first in pendulum fashion and later in a circle, something easier of accomplishment with twine a fairly short line. The actions of the frog himself made the portion of the work exciting. Apparently he visualized himself as swimming to freedom. The first was of course to release the frog at the exact moment that the captive prisoner was over the middle of the grass plot, but from the swing which took him to the edge of the refuge he returned so violently that there was danger of a head-on collision with the top of a second-story window frame. In a desperate effort to avert what might be a fatal accident Apple let out a little slack. Quick action—but too late. In through the window whirled the frog.

Sudden as a shell burst, a series of screams. There were still sounds

In a desperate effort to avert what might be a fatal accident Apple let out a little slack. Quick action—but too late. In through that window whirled the frog.

Sudden as a shell burst, a series of screams. There were still sounds of commotion from the second story when a small figure emerged from the house. There was no furtiveness in Apple's bearing. No use to struggle now. All was lost—and the blow had been dealt by his hand. The only thing left for him was to go far away. As he headed for the steps he passed Uncle George, who threw his arm about him.

"Wait a minute," he said. "It isn't as bad as all that." It almost seemed as if Uncle George was a mind-reader.

"Aunt Etta'll go." It was a flat, hopeless statement of fact. Aunt Etta, who had been good to his mother, certainly would depart.

"No, she won't. Don't you worry." The voice was positive. "I'll get us out of this. But"—Uncle George paused to look at his watch—"Son, do you think you could walk as far as the village?"

"Yes, sir." Apple's eyes were pools of something deeper than gratitude. The village? He would have started to walk to China if Uncle George had asked it.

Scribbling on a card his uncle handed it to him. "You go to the hotel and ask for Mr. Timothy Callahan. Give him this."

NO LONGER weighted by a heart of lead, Apple started. Even as he disappeared around the bend of the road there was a new sound of footfalls. Slowly Mr. Martin entered through the front door.

"What was all the row about?" inquired Uncle George.

"A frog jumped into Aunt Etta's bath," replied Mr. Martin briefly.

"What?"

"Yes." The narrator's voice gathered animation. "Jumped through the window into her bath. Looks strange to me a frog should hop into a second-story window, but she says it did. Leaped right past her as she started to get into the tub. Beat her to it."

"Nonsense," interjected Uncle George.

"Well, Mr. Martin continued in a duller tone, "I guess that just about ends it. When she came out of hysterics she insisted on dressing. I suppose she'll want to go and take the next train home."

"Jim"—Uncle George was serious—"I'm willing to admit that your Aunt Etta has had rather a trying afternoon, but we ought to be able to smooth things out. Suppose we talk to her."

"Wild horses couldn't drag her down here," declared Mr. Martin, but he was wrong. A voice was heard from the hall and, accompanied by her niece, Aunt Etta darkened the door.

As the men rose Uncle George proffered a chair in the manner of one entertaining royalty. It was accepted, but with no softening of expression.

UNCLE George appeared not to notice the lack of cordiality. "I've been hoping you would come down," he said gravely. "You see, I'm not used to arguing with women who have startled things out as you have and I got sort of excited. I regret that I must have seemed very ill-mannered."

"Humph!" snorted Aunt Etta unaccusingly.

"I suppose as we grow old we are apt to be selfish and crotchety. Of course I'm far older than you are," went on Uncle George quickly, "but you have seen enough of life to understand. The only thing that keeps us young is to have youth around us. And even good friends are not like your own people. Sometimes I've been pretty lonely. That's why I envy you all you've been able to do for Amy and Jim and Apple."

"I have tried to do my best for them," admitted Aunt Etta, somewhat mollified.

"To be sure you have and that's why they are so fond of you," said Uncle George unblushingly. "I have been wondering if Apple would ever care enough for me to walk a mile in the hot sun to get me a present."

"He said you bought it," accused Aunt Etta.

"He bought it with the money I gave him. It was the first thing he thought of getting. It seems there was a mosquito in his room last night. He was only trying to make you comfortable, and he was broken-hearted because he thought you were angry with him."

"How was I to know?" demanded Aunt Etta. She seemed to have been put on the defensive. "And how do you know he was broken-hearted?"

"Because he crept down here and I saw him. I tell you his poor little heart was broken. I honestly believe he intended to run away."

"Where is he?" The Martins and Aunt Etta asked the question in chorus.

"I sent him on an errand," admitted Uncle George frankly. "But first I told him that it was all a mistake—that you weren't really cross at him. You should have seen his face brighten."

Aunt Etta reached out and caught her niece's hand. "I guess I'm another one who is getting crotchety and old," she said.

"You're not," denied Amy. "Oh, auntie, it would break my heart, too, if you went away."

"Don't worry. I'm not going, child," promised Aunt Etta quickly. She was not used to being addressed as auntie. It was rather pleasing. Turning to Uncle George almost fiercely, "I'm going to take care of them as long as I live," she said.

"Of course you are. But you must let me do my share."

HERE came the final interruption of a somewhat eventful day. It came in the form of a car which drew up at the door with a flourish. It was a large and imposing car of a make they recognized mainly from having seen it in luxurious pictures. On the front seat was a genial-looking Irishman in uniform, and beside him was a small boy. He didn't look broken-hearted. He was beaming.

"I found him," shouted Apple, as the man touched his cap.

"I see you did. This," explained

"Doctor, they say you treated Boireau for appendicitis and that he died of heart failure!"

"I protest. If I treat a patient for appendicitis, he dies of appendicitis!"

Uncle George to the others, "is Tim Callahan, who has been with me for years. It was quite a drive down here, so I sent him on ahead and took the train. But I guess you've found a new boss, Tim."

"It's a fine energetic boy he is, sir," volunteered Tim. "He wanted to drive the car comin' from the village. And he's promised to show me a menagerie."

"Considering the heat and everything it's been rather a hard day for all of us," said Uncle George, "so I thought perhaps we could motor down to the shore some place where there's good music and have dinner. You must know a place, Jim. If you don't, we can find one."

Mr. Martin knew of plenty of such places, but he had never felt able to afford them. Before he could reply Aunt Etta spoke. Her voice was a little sharp.

"You're rich!" It was an accusation.

AGAIN it seemed as if Uncle George was a mind-reader. The Martins' need of Aunt Etta, which had been so precious to her, was gone. Here was a comparative stranger who could do infinitely more for them than she could possibly do. Her importance had vanished. She was just an elderly relative. So his answer was very gentle.

"Yes, I suppose some people would call me a very rich man, but money in itself is valueless. You and I know that. We spoke of taking care of this family. That, of course, is nonsense. Jim is the one who will take care of this family. But you and I can claim our share of taking care of Apple. And I guess it will keep us busy." Soon he turned to Mr. Martin, "you spoke of needing backing to go in for yourself. You've got it. As a matter of fact, I control a couple of big manufacturing plants, and my associates and I need a representative in the East. If you'll take the job I'll guarantee that it will mean considerably more than you make now—and a future. How about it?"

IT WAS all too sudden. For an instant James Appleton Martin, the elder, stared blankly at Uncle George. Then he realized that it was true, and somehow he appeared to grow younger, until he looked curiously like Apple. His voice was unsteady, his utterance a little incoherent.

"I—I wish I could tell you," he said. "You don't—you can't know what it means to us." This time it was his hand which sought Amy's and found it seeking his. "There's no way to thank you. It's—it's like a dream. There's no way to say it."

"Yes, there is," contradicted Mrs. Martin. And, suddenly rising, she kissed Uncle George. He didn't seem to mind it at all.

It was late that evening—long after Apple's regular bedtime—that two figures might have been discerned on the porch. Tim had returned to the village, a well-fed Aunt Etta had gone upstairs and Mr. and Mrs. Martin were somewhere in the house talking of many things they had been sacredly until they were alone.

Apple pressed close against Uncle George's shoulder. It was comforting to feel near to Uncle George. Thus they remained for a space, age and youth looking out together upon a summer world. It was Uncle George who broke the silence.

"Son," he inquired, "we're good friends, aren't we?"

Apple turned to face him. "Oh, yes, sir!"

"Then," said Uncle George, "between friends, and man to man, tell me how in the name of the Star Spangled Banner you got a frog into that bathtub."

So Apple told him.

Dangers of Permanent Wave Removed by New Discovery

Amazing New Invention Assures Perfect Wave - without slightest danger of frizzling deadening or breaking

NOW at last every woman in America can enjoy all the charm and wonderful attractiveness of a beautiful permanent wave—and do it with positive assurance that not a single hair of her head will be damaged or weakened by the process.

Due to an amazing discovery and the invention of a wonderful new scientifically designed testing instrument, an absolutely perfect permanent wave can be given any type of hair regardless of its texture, color or condition, without any danger of frizzing, deadening or breaking. Furthermore, this wave can be given in considerably less time than that needed by the old fashioned methods, and without all the old style cumbersome borax tubes, pads, sachets, caustic soda lotions and hours of torture.

Equals Personal Treatment By Most Famous Expert

Thousands of straight haired women have hesitated about having their hair permanently waved or rewaved solely and simply because they were afraid that their particular hair was not suited for it—that it wouldn't "take"—that their hair might be damaged. A friend perhaps who had her hair waved was dissatisfied with the way her hair responded. It was frizzy, dry and lifeless. That isn't strange. The miracle of it is that there haven't been more. For up to now—even with the famous Nestle Lanoil process, acknowledged as the greatest advance in hair science the world has ever known—results were occasionally not completely satisfactory to the skillful Nestle operator.

Now, however, with the complete and accurate diagnosis and analysis of your particular hair revealed by the Nestle Testing Machine, the precise temperature and treatment can be properly applied and more than merely eliminating all danger of any possible damage to your hair, the wave actually helps the hair and makes it healthier and thicker. It is exactly as tho you were accorded the individual attention and services of the world's most famous expert.

New Method Just Like Nature's Way

This amazing new process—called Nestle's Circuline Process—not only assures perfect safety for your hair but produces exactly the same identical wave—and in the same manner—as Nature does for people with naturally curly hair. By gently opening the pores in the hair—allowing them to breathe and reabsorb the moisture they have been denied for years, the individual hair expands and because it cannot increase its length, it curls, becomes alive, fluffy, beautiful—which is exactly what happens in naturally curly hair.

Beautiful Wave Now SAFE

Up to the present time the success of your permanent wave has depended upon the individual skill, experience and keen judgment of the operator. Due to lack of exact scientific knowledge of the true condition of your hair—its tensile strength, true texture and physical condition, perfect results in all cases have been largely a matter of luck. In fact they have been rarely possible. For the exact qualities of your particular hair—many of which are completely invisible to the naked eye—have a tremendous bearing on the quality of permanent wave you get.

The new Circuline method, however, which affords the most complete and minute data, now enables the operator to tell exactly what treatment to use, how to wind the hair on the right curlers and the exact heat necessary to produce in every case the most beautiful, natural and lasting permanent wave safely.

Why Individual Prescriptions Are Vitally Necessary

This ingenious invention literally "reads" your hair—reveals its exact characteristics, indicates the exact proper treatment of your hair, and insures a perfect natural permanent wave without chance of harm.

No two heads of hair ever present the same identical characteristics for a permanent wave. Your hair has almost as much individuality as your face. It not only varies in color, texture, strength and thickness with others, but often presents wide differences in itself. One part may be sturdy and strong—another frizzy and weak. And even if your hair were uniform all over, it also varies with your constantly changing physical condition and health.

The Nestle Circuline Process is the first and only method that considers every single factor that influences a permanent wave. And only thru this unique process can nature's curly wave be duplicated artificially in perfect safety.

Circuline BY Nestle

Scientific Prescription For Each of the 10 Basic Grades of Hair Now Discovered By Astonishing Instrument—Works Wonders for All

There are 10 general grades of hair, each of which demands a separate and distinct type of treatment in effecting a perfect permanent wave. Within these 10 distinct grades there are of course hundreds of variations in color, length, thickness, tensile strength, expansion and absorptive power.

By testing individual strands of hair both mechanically and chemically the Nestle Circuline Process determines in advance the one type of treatment needed for best results. A delicate testing instrument invented by Mr. Nestle, the originator of Permanent Waving, at last discloses facts about hair strength and quality which enable an operator to know just what can be done with every type of hair to be waved. The results made possible with this new process will amaze and delight even the most confirmed skeptic on permanent waves.

Microscopic Structure of Your Hair

Have Your Hair Analyzed FREE

You don't have to come to New York to obtain all the wonderful advantages of this personal hair analysis and the amazing new Circuline process. The exact waving itself can not be handled by anyone of the 4000 highly trained Nestle operators located all over the country.

But on account of the elaborate technical equipment and scientific apparatus used in testing all hair, analysis is done by mail from our New York Laboratories. This service is free. Simply fill out the coupon below and mail it to us accompanied by a strand of your hair about 5 inches long and as thick as a knitting needle (no combings). Include with this a $1 deposit. This deposit will be credited to you on your next permanent wave by any authorized person or concern giving Nestle waves. The actual analysis of your hair by this scientific process therefore costs you nothing.

Don't take any chances of ruining your hair. If you are contemplating a wave—and every woman will, now that it's safe—by all means for your own sake don't wait a minute. Have this vitally important test made at once. It means all the difference in the world between a beautiful head of gloriously wavy hair and a stringy, straggly mass of dead, broken ends. So send your hair sample today and end once and for all danger of damaging and ruining your hair when you have it waved. Mail the coupon NOW. Most Important of all Beauty Treatments—Restoration of Natural Color to GRAY HAIR

Facial treatments, dieting, are important. But even they can't make you look young when your hair is gray. Now try this simple way to restore natural color to gray hair. Beauty specialists urge it widely—do not delay

Once she was gray

Gray bobs won't do—restoration comes first

A youth talk by Mary T. Goldman

OF course your friends will tell you that gray hair is distinctive and becoming—that it gives you style and dignity. But the fact remains that it is accepted as the sign of age. No matter how fresh your face, nor how slim your figure, you're classed as an "old lady."

This is a tragedy that needn't happen. Science has found a way to prevent it. You don't find stage and screen stars, social leaders, up-to-date business women letting their hair turn gray. They can't afford it! And neither can you, if you're an active, life-loving woman. So do what they do. Restore exact original color by the use of a dainty hair cosmetic.

Clean, colorless, pleasant to use

Restoration no longer requires the use of crude dyes. Now the miracle can be accomplished in an easy pleasant way.

The use of a clear colorless liquid —Mary T. Goldman's Hair Color Restorer — brings back original color perfectly. No matter if gray hairs are few or many.

Application easy. You simply comb through hair until damp (special-application comb supplied). Then watch the gray disappear and natural color return in a few moments.

No streaking, no discoloration, no artificial dyed look to betray you. Just silky, glossy, natural young hair.

Mary T. Goldman's doesn't interfere with shampooing, there's nothing to wash off, nothing to rub off on hat lining and pillow.

Not a single disadvantage attendant on its use. You can forget you ever were gray.

Test on a single lock

Mail coupon for Special Patented Free Trial Kit containing trial bottle, special application comb and full instructions for testing on a single lock of hair. Absolutely free—I even pay the postage.

This test demonstrates ease of application as well as the almost miraculous result. It proves that restoration of natural color to gray hair can be made an easy, successful beauty treatment by the use of this scientific yet dainty hair treatment.

Now, mail free bottle coupon

Fill out the coupon carefully. Mail it. That's all you need to do now. By return mail you'll receive Special Kit.

Make the single lock test, learn exactly what Mary T. Goldman's is and what it will do. Then, when you're eager for complete restoration, call on your druggist for full-size bottle.

But—here's a warning. If he can't supply you, or if he says "here's something just as good," walk out without further ado. Go home and use the order blank enclosed for your convenience and we'll supply you direct. Carrying charges prepaid.

Mailing the coupon is the first step. Fill it out and send it today.

STOPS gray hair, renews color to faded, discolored hair (if you've tried some unsatisfactory dye which has spoiled your hair, Mary T. Goldman's will remedy the disaster).

Brightens dull, drab hair. Changes red hair into glorious auburn.

In all, Mary T. Goldman's is a general hair beautifier which safely and surely gives your hair the youthful color and appearance you want it to have.

No More Cloudy Teeth Restore Whiteness Now

Gain gleaming, sparkling whiteness

Please accept full 10-day tube free. Note the amazing difference in the color of your teeth and firmness of your gums when dingy film is cleared off as leading dentists urge.

MODERN dental science has discovered a new way in tooth and gum care. Off-color teeth thus are quickly whitened, restored to sparkling clearness. Tender gums are firmed, given healthy coral color.

One's whole appearance thus is often amazingly changed in this way. Famous movie stars use it before going on a scene as an essential part of "make-up." That's largely why movies' smiles glisten so.

Leading dental authorities now widely urge it. For it marks a new era in tooth and gum protection. Please accept a full 10-day tube to test. You'll find your teeth are not naturally off color . . . simply coated with a ding film that clouds them.

Just a film hiding them And imperiling your gums

Dental science now traces scores of tooth and gum troubles to a germ-laden film that forms on your teeth.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel it — a slippery, viscous coating.

That film absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. And that is why your teeth look "off color" and dingy.

It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It lays your gums open to bacterial attack. Germs by the millions breed in it. And they, with tartar, are a chief cause of pyorrhea and decay.

Old ways won't clear it off

Ordinary dentifrices and cleansing won't fight film successfully. Feel for it now with your tongue. Note how your present cleansing method is failing in its duty.

Now new methods are being used. A dentifrice called Pepsodent — different in formula, action and effect from any other known.

Largely on dental advice, the world has turned to it.

Clears film off Firms the Gums

It accomplishes two important things at once: Removes that film, then firms the gums.

A few days' use will prove its power beyond all doubt.

Send the coupon. Clip it now before you forget.

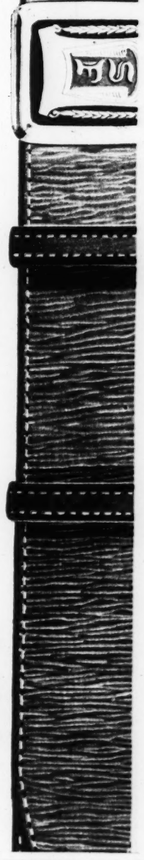
AT LAST ~ BELT STYLE PLUS COMFORT



The Self-Flex Concealed Spring Flexes with the Body

You have always wanted comfort as well as style in a belt. You will find it in the Self-Flex—the new idea in men's belts.

Self-Flex expands and contracts with every breath, and flexes with even the slightest movement of the body muscles.

It does away entirely with body welts caused by the tightness and muscle-resistance of the ordinary belt.

Self-Flex in appearance is like any other high quality belt, but it has the "plus" features which only Self-Flex can give you.

Self-Flex always keeps your shirt down and your trousers up.

Self-Flex is made in a wide range of smart colors, widths, and grades of leather, and sold either with or without buckles. Any type of buckle fits the Self-Flex strap. If your haberdasher does not carry Self-Flex, send us his name and we will arrange to supply you.

The Self-Flex concealed spring is guaranteed to outwear the strap.

The X-ray cut above shows the Self-Flex concealed spring.

EVERY NORMAL SKIN needs these Two famous Creams: Pond's Cold Cream for a purifying cleansing, Pond's Vanishing Cream for a delicate finish, a powder base and protection against the weather.

WOMEN of royal blood, of noble birth, of high position pursue a time-tested method of caring for their delicate skins. They use Pond's Two Creams, which together form a complete method of skin care. You should daily use them as follows:—

Before retiring and during the day whenever your skin needs cleansing, apply Pond's Cold Cream generously. Let it stay on a few moments. Its fine oils will bring to the surface the dirt and powder which clog the pores. Wipe off. Repeat. Finish with a dash of cold water. After every cleansing except the bedtime one, apply Pond's Vanishing Cream thinly, for a delicate finish, perfect protection against weather and dust, and to hold your powder smoothly.

Follow this method chosen by the most distinguished women everywhere, of whom these appearing on this page are but a few.

JUDGE ENGLISH BEFORE SENATE ENTERS DENIAL OF ALL CHARGES

Body, Sitting as Trial Court for First Time in 13 Years, Hears Answer of Jurist's Counsel.

HOUSE REJOINDER WILL BE NEXT STEP

Defense Contends if Charges as Set Forth Are True, They Do Not Constitute Impeachable Offenses.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Federal Judge George Washington English of East St. Louis appeared today before the Senate, sitting as a court of impeachment to try him, and made answer to the charges contained in the five articles of impeachment returned against him by the House of Representatives.

His answer followed the line previously indicated in the arguments made in his behalf before the House Judiciary Committee and the House itself. It denied some of the charges flatly and made modified admission to others but contended the facts did not warrant impeachment.

The proceedings today were even more solemn than on previous occasions and preserved the remarkable flavor of antiquity which gives such a quaint color to impeachment cases.

It was the first time in 13 years, and one of the few times in history, that a Federal Judge had appeared before the Senate to answer to an impeachment charge.

As the Senate clock indicated 12:30 p. m., the Sergeant-at-Arms droned his medieval proclamation containing dire threats of imprisonment for all who failed to keep silence during the trial about to proceed.

Vice President Dawes administered the oath to seven Senators who had been absent on the last occasion.

Managers Enter.

The managers who will conduct the prosecution in behalf of the House entered and took their customary places in front of the Republican side.

Vice President Dawes commanded the sergeant-at-arms to notify counsel for the respondent that the Senate was ready to receive their client.

Immediately Judge English entered through a side door, accompanied by his attorneys, E. C. Kramer of East St. Louis, William Acton of Danville, Ill., and William F. Zumbrunn of Washington. They were conducted to seats which had been placed for them in front of the Democratic side and directly across the aisle from the managers. All four were clad in business suits except Kramer, who wore a long-tailed coat.

English Visibly Nervous.

Judge English, who had a blue suit, was flushed and visibly nervous and Acton appeared under some strain, but Kramer and Zumbrunn were quite calm.

The Senate clerk read the minutes of the last session of the trial and also read the return made by the Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, who served the Senate's summons on Judge English in East St. Louis last Monday. The Deputy came forward and made oath that his return was correct and that he had served Judge English in his chambers at East St. Louis.

In a quavering voice the Sergeant-at-Arms called out three times, "George W. English," and commanded him to appear at the bar of the Senate and make answer to the charges contained in the articles of impeachment. Acton arose and informed the chair that Judge English was present in person and by counsel and was ready to present his answer. Zumbrunn handed a copy of a 56-page typewritten answer to the clerk.

Facing almost the full membership of the Senate, and with crowded galleries looking down, the Assistant Secretary stood on the Vice President's dais and read the Judge's prepared answer. Many members of the House also were present.

Judge English sat with hands folded in his lap and legs crossed as the Senate official droned through the long manuscript.

Answer to Charges.

A "state of Civil War" in Southern Illinois in August, 1922, during the railroad shopmen's strike, and his efforts to avert "a repetition of the Herrin massacre" were pictured
